is indicated by its condition. When the natural secretions decrease; when the hair becomes dry, splits at the ends and comes out in combing; when the gloss disappears and the hair becomes gray or faded, the ill health of the hair is indicated. The success of the hair is indicated. The success of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is due to the fact that it restores the hair-producing organs to their natural vigor. It encourages and promotes the secre-tions of the hair follicles, and thus gray or faded hair regains its original color, new growth begins, and lost lus-

The mammoth floating derrick Monarch, which was chartered conditionally for raising the Maine, if such a thing were found to be practicable, has not even started on her proposed trip to Havana, and the officials of the department have practically concluded to abandon it. The sum of $500 a day was to be paid for the Monarch for every day she was in actual service on the wreck of the battleship. Her specialty is heavy lifting, and she was to be utilized for the recovery of such parts of the ship and its equipment as could not be lifted by the wrecking vessels now at work on the wreck. The owners of the Monarch were to be paid a jump sum aggregating many thousand dol-lars in case they were able to raise the warship and take her to the New York navy yard, and in case she was used in the wrecking operations it was also expected that she would be specially employed to raise the turrets and heavy guns, which the government is exceed ingly desirous of recovering at this time, without special consideration for their great value in dollars and cents,

The navy has particular need of first class guns at this time, and would re gard the recovery of the main battery of the Maine as a consummation de-voutly to be wished. Although there is not much prospect of raising the Maine. with its reported broken backbone, there is good reason to believe from the reports of the divers that many if not all of the guns may be recovered eventually from the wreck and put in places where they may be able to render good

An important conference was held in the office of the secretary of war yes terday in regard to the fortification of Tortugas harbor. There were present Secretary Alger. Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, of the may department; General Miles, General Wilson, chief of engineers, and Colonel Henry M. Robatching the heer trade of the town.

Howard Reimard and Charles E. Whiteand the construction of fortifications and harbor defenses was discussed. The engineer officers who have been investigating the matter estimate that it will cost about $1,000,000 and take nearly two years to put the Island in a proper state of defense from sea at and Secretary Alger and his associates hesitated to embark on an un-dertaking of that extent unless the navy department considers the work absolutely necessary. Definite action was postponed in order to give Secre-Definite action caught in a lumber jam in the mines at tary Long an opportunity to further in Girard colliery and sustained serious injuries vestigate the matter.

The preparations for the defense of the national capital have been practically completed so far as its approach by water is concerned. The battery at Sheridan's Point, on the Potomac, jus above Mount Vernon, is now complete ly manned and will prove a powerful auxiliary to the main battery at Fort Washington, on the opposite shore of the river, nearer the city.

Some men engaged in driving an opening to abandoned workings of Packer No. 2 colliery were surprised a few days ago by hearing strange sounds in the place ahead of them. The sounds were first heard the morn ing after St. Patrick's Day. One of the workmen who heard them turned to his companions with a queer expression on his coun-tenance and saked, "Do you hear anything, r have I got 'em?" Robert Carter determined to investigate and succeeded in getting into the abondened part of the mine whence the sounds came, where he found a large live goose, which had tumbled into the mine from a breach at the surface. The goose was subsequently claimed by the owner, who said the fowl had been missed a

She Believed In Presents. An old woman in Orkney was noted for selling whisky on the sly. Her house was a few miles from the town, and the exci e officers had often tried, but in vain, to get her convicted. A young officer was ap-pointed to the pince, who said, on being told about her, that he would soon secure her conviction. Early one morning he her conviction. Early one morning he left home and arrived at the old woman's house at seven o clock. Walking in, he saw no one. Noticing a bell on the table, he rang it. The old woman appeared, and he asked for a glass of milk. After a little he asked for a gass of milk. After a fittle he rang again, and the old woman ap-peared. He asked if she had any whisky. "Aye, sir," she said, "we aye have some in the bettle," setting it down before him. Then, thanking her, he laid down a sov-ereign, which she took and walked out. After belying himself be rang and asked for the change. "Change, sir," said the old woman; "there's use change. We had nac license. Fat we gie we gie in presents fat we tak we tak in presents. So good day, sir." The excise man left the house a sadder but wiser personage.—Strand
