vessels are ready the blockade will be extended. No merchant vessels will be allowed to run in and out without molestation, and Captain Sampson has instructions to fire upon any Spanish craft he may come in contact with.

A VALUABLE PRIZE.

The capture of the Buena Ventura, as detailed in these despatches yesterday afternoon, caused much joy in naval circles. It is not much to brag about, but is a good beginning. Her cargo is worth $500,000, including the vessel.

Under the rules regarding captures by American naval vessels the Government will get one-half her value. Capt. Sampson as Commander-in-Chief of the squadron, to which the Nashville belongs, will get one-twentieth of the remaining half ; Commander Maynard, the Nashville's skipper, will get one-tenth of the remainder, and his officers and crew will secure proportionate shares of the rest.

There will probably be more captures of merchantmen in the next day or two. Every Collector of Customs on the Atlantic coast has been directed to inform the Treasury Department about Spanish vessels that have left his port recently. Capt. Sampson will be told of the names and ostensible destination of these.

The call to be issued by President McKinley for volunteers, and which was thought would be made to-day, has been postponed. It will not be issued until Monday, to avoid undue excitement on Sunday. The number named will be one hundred and twenty-five thousand.

Pending the issue of the call for volunteers and the mustering of the volunteer army, Gen. Miles has decided not to leave Washington for the South with his staff. It is more than ever unlikely that the regulars will be sent to Cuba before the volunteers are ready to go, though a detachment may be sent to establish a base of supplies at some Cuban ports.
