THE splendid victory achieved by the American fleet at Manila is the subject of much comment among naval experts in Europe. In an interview Vice Admiral Colomb, of the English navy, and the author of several naval works, said : "I doubt if there ever was such an extraordinary illustration of the influence of sea power. A superior fleet has attacked and beaten a Spanish fleet supported by batteries, and it now appears it by batteries, and it now appears it passed those batteries and has taken up an unassailable position off Manila. The holdness of the American commander is beyond question. Henceforth he must be placed in the Valhalla of great naval commanders. Nothing can detract from the dash and vigor of the American exploit or dim the glory which Dewey has shed upon the American navy. It may be bad for the world, for assuredly the American navy will never accept a subordinate place after this exhibition of what it can do."
