"Whatever may have been the individual opinions of Americans prior to the declaration of war, there can now be no two opinions as to the duty of every loyal American clines. A resort to arms was determined upon by the chief executive of the nation, with the advice of both Houses of Congress and after consultation with his cabinet officers, but not until after every effort had officers, but not until after every effort had been exhausted to bring about an honorable and peaceful solution of our difficulties with Spain. The patient calumess, the dignified forbearance, the subdued firmness of President McKinley during the trying time that intervened between the destruction of the Maine and the declaration are beyond all praise, and should command the admiration of overy true American. We, the members of the Catholic church, are true Americans, and as such are loyal to our country and our flag and obedient to the highest decrees and the supreme authority of the nation. supreme authority of the nation

the supreme authority of the nation.

"We are not now engaged in a war of section against section, or state against state, but we are united as one man against a foreign enemy and a common fee. If, as we are laught by our holy church, love of country is next to love of God, a duty imposed on us by all laws, human and divine, then it is our duty to libor and to pray for the temporal and spiritual well-being of the brave soldiers who are battling for our beloved country. Let us faithfully beg the God of battles to crown their arms on land and sea with victory and triumph, and to stay unnecessary effusion of triumph, and to stay unnecessary effus
