THE ARMY OF INVASION MOVES!

Sailed This Morning With a Strong Convoy of Warships.

15,000 MEN LEAVE KEY WEST

The Spanish Fleet at Cadiz Pronounced Useless. Details of a Bloody Encounter Between United States Marines and Spanish Night As-sailants—Four Americans Killed.

Special to EVENING HERALD.

WASHINGTON, June 13.

Under the command of Major General Shafter the first division of the Army of Invasion sailed this morning from Key West for Santiago de Cuba to besiege and capture that town.

The troops in the army number over fifteen thousand men and they have a strong convoy of warships which will see them safely through to their destination.

NO DANGER FROM CADIZ.

It is authoritatively announced that Admiral Camara's fleet at Cadiz has been found wholly unfit for service.

BATTLED FOR THIRTEEN HOURS.

Special to EVENING HERALD.

Mole St. Nicholas, Hayti, June 13.—

A dispatch boat from the fleet off Guantanamo brings the following advice: Lieutenant Colonel R. W. Huntington's battalion of marines, which landed from the transports Panther on Friday and encamped on the hill guarding the abandoned cable station at the entrance to the outer harbor of Guantanamo, has been engaged in beating off a bush attack by Spanish guerrillas and regulars since 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The fight was almost continuous for 13 hours, until 6 o'clock yesterday morning, when reinforcements were landed from the Marblehead. Four of our men were killed and one wounded. The advance pickets under Lieutenant Neville and Shaw are unaccounted for.

Among the killed is Assistant Surgeon John Blair Gibbs, son of Major Gibbs, of the regular army, who fell in the Custer massacre. His home was at Richmond, Va., but he has been practicing in New York, and he entered the service since the war began. He was a very popular officer. The others killed are Sergeant Charles H. Smith, of Smallwood; Private William Dunphy, of Gloucester, Mass.; and Private James McColgan, of Stoneham, Mass. Corporal Glass was accidentally wounded in the head.

The Spanish loss is unknown, but it was probably considerable. The splashes of blood found at daylight at the positions the Spaniards occupied indicate fatalities, but their comrades carried off the killed and wounded.

The engagement began with desultory firing at the pickets a thousand yards inland from the camp. Captain Spicer's company was doing guard duty, but were driven in, finally rallying on the camp and repulsing the enemy at 5 o'clock.

The bodies of Privates McColgan and Dunphy were found, both shot in the head. The large cavities caused by the bullets, which inside a range of 500 yards have a rotary motion, indicate that the victims were killed at close range. The bodies were stripped of shoes, hats and cartridge belts, and horribly mutilated with machetes. When they were brought in the whole battalion formed three sides of a hollow square about the camp on the hill-top.

Below in the bay were the warships at anchor. Inland from the hill camp is a deep ravine, and beyond this are high hills. The adjacent country is heavy with thick growth. The sky was blanketed with clouds, and when the sun set a gale was blowing seaward. Night fell, thick and impenetrable. The Spanish squads concealed in the chapparal cover had the advantage, the Americans on the ridge furnishing fine targets against the sky and the white tents. The Spaniards fought from cover till midnight, discoverable only by flashes, at which the marines fired volleys.

The Marblehead launch, a Colt machine gun in her bow, pushed up the bay, enfilading the Spaniards, and it is thought that some were killed. The marines trained much blood to the water's edge, and there lost it. Sharks are numerous in the vicinity. The ships threw their searchlights ashore, the powerful electric eyes sweeping the deep tropic foliage and disclosing occasionally skulking parties of Spaniards. Each discovery of the enemy was greeted by the cracks of carbine fire along the edge of the camp ridge or by the long roll of the launch's machine gun. Shortly after midnight came the main attack. The Spaniards made a gallant charge up the southwest slope, but were met by repeated volleys from the main body, and broke before they were one-third of the way up the hill, but they came so close that at points there was almost a hand to hand struggle. The officers used their revolvers. Three Spaniards got through the open formation to the edge of the camp. Colonel Jose Campina, the Cuban guide, discharged his revolver, and they, turning and flinging themselves without support, ran helter skelter down the reverse side of the hill. It was during this assault that Assistant Surgeon Gibbs was killed. He was shot in the head in front of his own tent, the farthest point of attack. He lived two minutes, but did not regain consciousness. The surgeons of the hospital corps then removed their quarters to the trenches about the old Spanish stockade, north of the camp. The attacks were continued at intervals throughout the rest of the night, with firing from small squads in various directions. Toward morning the fire slackened. Dawn is the favorite time for attack, and as the east paled the marines lying on their guns were aroused. Some were actually asleep, as they had had no rest for 48 hours and tired nature could no longer stand the strain. But not attack came. Three new 12 pound field guns, which could not be used during the night, for fear of hitting our own men, shelled several squads of Spaniards after daylight. They dove into the bushes like prairie dogs into burrows as the shells broke over them in the gray dawn.

Lieutenant Colonel Huntington and Major Cockrell gave high praise to the nerve and steadiness of officers and men, especially the young ones, as the engagement was a baptism of fire for a large majority. The men were in darkness and in a strange land, but they stood to their posts with courage and fortitude, and there was no symptom of panic. The marines, though exhausted, were eager for more fighting, promising to inflict heavy punishment. They complimented the daring of the Spaniards with characteristic camp profanity. The amplest precautions have been taken, and as the dispatch boat was leaving reinforcements were landing from the Marblehead. A stormy time was expected. Estimates vary as to the attacking force. Some say 200, and the figures run as high as 1,000. Colonel Campina, the Cuban guide, said the Spaniards were mostly irregulars, but the reports of the discharge of Mauser rifles would indicate that they were regulars, as most of the guerrillas carry Remingtons. The Spanish guerrillas, as a rule, have more dash and courage than the regulars.

SAN FRANCISCO RAN ASHORE.

Special to EVENING HERALD.

New York, June 13.—A dispatch dated at the Highlands light-house, near Sandy Hook, states that the United States warship San Francisco ran ashore there this morning during a dense fog. No particulars are given as to the extent of damage, or probable fate of the vessel.

The San Francisco, Captain R. P. Lacey, is a steel twin-screw protected cruiser of 4,088 tons displacement. The vessel has a length of 310 feet and breadth of 40 feet 2 inches. She is equipped with engines of 9,912 horsepower, which give her a speed of 19.5 knots per hour. Her crew comprises 33 officers and 350 men. The vessel cost $1,000,745.

SOLDIERS RAID A "JOINT."

the Keeper of the Dixie. An incident occurred yesterday at Lytle, the camp station, that will probably terminate in the extradition of the Dixie. Whiskey stores and gambling dens which up to this time have been permitted to pay their business by the Georgia authorities without let or hindrance. A private of the Twenty-first Kansas who had been drinking at the whiskey store of one Joe Baker became involved in a difficulty with the bartender. Blows followed, and Baker drew a white hot pistol on the soldier. The soldier, striking him above the eye, inflicting a wound which may cause the loss of an eye.

The fight attracted the attention of the keeper of the office of the military room town, and soon a crowd of soldiers rushed in. Baker, fighting bravely, had gotten out of the way. A large body of soldiers formed with the purpose of handling him severely and avenging the injury to their comrade, and for a while it looked as if there would be serious trouble. An armed guard, however, was quickly detailed by order of General Brooks, who took charge of Baker and his place, and order was soon restored. The soldier was taken to the military hospital, where the surgeon investigated his injuries. He found a wound as indicated, but thought the injury had been caused by a bit of broken glass and not by a bullet, as a splinter of glass was found sticking in the eyeball.

After the shooting a number of soldiers discovered the gambling den was running a brace game, and that the difficulty between the soldier and Baker had resulted from the fact that the latter had been playing the former with loaded dice. It took the soldiers only a few minutes to demolish the place. They broke up the furniture, scattered the gambling paraphernalia in the street and were only deterred from pulling down the house by the arrival of officers.

It is stated that a number of good citizens in the vicinity will, because of the failure of the Georgia officers to enforce the law, petition that the portion of Walker county in the vicinity of the park be put under martial law, so that General Brooks can administer the law on the lawless element now doing a thriving business there.

SEEKING AN INJUNCTION.

Proceedings Against J. J. Franey to Restrict Building Operations.

A bill in equity was filed at Potomac today by E. A. and T. R. Boddell, representing the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, against Henry C. McCormick, Attorney General, complainant, against J. J. Franey, of the town, defendant.

The bill sets forth that J. J. Franey, of Shenandoah, is the owner of a lot of ground at the corner of Main and Lloyd streets. That he is remodeling the building thereon and erecting three lot, or bay, windows extending into Lloyd street from the second story on the lot a distance of 3 and 9/16 feet and two more lot, or bay, windows on the first floor for a distance of 3 and 9/16 feet on the pavement. The bill also sets forth that a stairway is also erected, leading from the ground to the second story and extending on the street three feet; that the said erection is a violation of the law and a deprivation of the rights of other citizens.

The bill asks for a preliminary injunction to restrain Franey from erecting the bay windows, etc. Attached to the bill is an affidavit of T. R. Boddell, Esq., setting forth that the facts stated are true to the best of his knowledge and belief. Next Monday was fixed for a hearing on the application.

Troublesome Penna. About three months ago Roy, the 10-year-old son of Thomas Jones, of North Main street, got the kernel of a peanut into his throat and has since been more or less troubled by it. The piece of nut passed through the larynx into the windpipe. About six weeks later, after a severe coughing spell, a piece of the nut was ejected, but the remainder is still in the windpipe and there is danger of hemorrhage of the lungs.

This morning the boy, accompanied by his father and Dr. J. S. Kistler, left for Philadelphia and an operation will be performed in one of the hospitals of that city to remove the balance of the peanut, if possible.

Boy Killed by a Train. John Quirk, aged 13 years, left his home at Lowest Gap yesterday and visited his brother, William, who is a train dispatcher at Summit station. While walking homeward along the P & O railroad the boy was struck and instantly killed by No. 7 passenger train.

Married. Nelson G. Bittler, of town, and Miss Katie A. Miller, of Frackville, were married Saturday afternoon by Rev. Robert O'Boyle, in the parsonage of the Trinity Reformed church.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES

Interesting Exercises in Two of the Churches Last Night.

DECORATIONS WERE ELABORATE!

The Ceremonies Were Under the Auspices of the First Baptist and Primitive Methodist Sunday Schools. Unique Features of the Decorations.

Children's Day was observed in two of the local churches yesterday, in the First Baptist and Primitive Methodist and in addition to the arrangement of elaborate programs much time was spent on the decoration of the church interiors. In the First Baptist church there was a profusion of flags and bunting, which not only made a striking appearance on the platform upon which the exercises took place, but also formed a canopy over the heads of the congregation. The bunting was arranged in beautiful flower and plant and upon the water floated a large model of a ship which, for the occasion, was designated the "Maiden".

The platform in the Primitive Methodist church also presented a beautiful appearance. The floral decorations were strikingly beautiful and surrounded a model of a ship made of metal in front of the pulpit. In front of this vessel was a small table to represent a deck, and a large portrait of Admiral Dewey and Washington also helped to ornament the platform.

The title of the service, held in the First Baptist church was "Glorious Gales," the program being as follows: Organ voluntary; opening chorus by the Sunday School; recitation; Mary's Lullaby; address of welcome by Ethel Roberts; responsive scripture reading; prayer; William Howells' motion song; recitations; Walter Capper; Jessie Griffiths; Gertrude and Roy Jones; Annie Jones; recitation; Sarah Brown; Joseph Jones and party; recitation; Robert Jones; dialogue; Stella Davis and Stella Roberts; recitation; Joseph Jones; exercise; John Boddell's class; recitations; Jennie Brown; Gertrude Howells; Annie Jones; Mrs. Hopkins; Lillie Roberts; Ethel Roberts; John Jones; song; school recitation; recitations; Maggie Roberts; Joseph Jones; Margaret Howells; Louisa Williams; recitation; Sarah Rogers; recitation; Annie Evans; song sermon; Sarah Jones; recitation; Claude Dawson; Stella Tounah; Charles Mullen; song; school recitation; Miriam Jones; conversation; Sarah Brown; exercise; school address; Mr. John P. Williams; collection for the American Baptist Publication Society; address of gratitude to those who assisted in arranging and carrying out the services; benediction.

The services in the Primitive Methodist church were entitled "Sunshine and Song." The following was the program: Prelude; carol; school; greeting song; during which there was a march by seven little girls; responsive Bible reading; prayer; hymn; congregation; carol; school; emblematic recitation; seven little girls' duet; Annie Timms; carol; recitation; Gertrude Philbrick and Willie Taylor; carol; school; recitation; six children; motion song; six little girls; responsive Bible reading; school and congregation; duet; Stella Bough and Jennie Haire; recitation; Frank Pusey and Myrl Haire; carol; school; recitation; Jennie Haire; carol; school; recitation; Adie Edmiston; anthem; dialogue; recitation; vocal solo; Frank Pusey; dialogue; responsive Bible reading; carol; school; offering; short address by the superintendent; recitation; Ruth Baird; duet; Minnie Dobb and Lillie Houser; hymn; school and congregation; benediction.

A vote of thanks was tendered to those who made donations for the decorations. The large ship used was made by Mr. Marshall Bough and the small one by Mr. William E. Phillips.

Best Human Animals in Athletic Feats. Among the many original and novel feats which will be visible in Buffalo Bill's Wild West show on Tuesday, June 21st, are those of Snake Lind, Tabor's troupe of family and wild Ankle have attracted much attention and favorable comment. These desert-born animals are not only fierce and daring brawlers, but athletes and tumblers of very unique and extreme ordinary strength and endurance. In their gymnastic drill they whirl and manipulate their long guns with almost the rapidity of flash-lightning. They perform acts of bound to lead, balancing and carrying seemingly insurmountable and requiring weeks of iron. A season among them includes the whole weight of animals in pyramidal shape, built with the ability of cats. They whirl in singular part whole the whole length of the big guns at four-racing-speed, run about on their hands as if they were feet, turn high spreads and side somersaults over laynets and awnings, and introduce many other wonderfully unique feats.
