Our Troops Enthusiastically Greeted at Yauco.

AN ADDRESS BY THE ALCALDE.

A Proclamation Dated "Yanco, Porto Rico, United States of America." General Wilson Prevents Natives From Looting Spanlards' Homes.

Port of Ponce, Porto Rico, Aug. 1 .-Without seeing or hearing anything of the enemy, the advance guard of General Henry's division, which landed at Guanica on Tuesday of last week, arrived at Ponce on Friday, taking en route the cities of Yauco, Tallaboa, Sabana Grande and Ponuelas. Attempts by the Spaniards to blow up bridges and otherwise destroy the railroad between Yauco and Ponce failed, only a few flat cars being burned. Our troops have fired up the locomotives and are now operating the road from end to end, carrying supplies, messages and comed in an address made by the al-calde, and a public proclamation was issued dated "Yauco, Porto Rico, Uni-ted States of America, July 27," Major Webb Hayes, of the Sixth Ohio, son of former President Hayes, hauled up the flag on the palace, amid cheers from the populace. The people seem really glad that the Americans are here, but they fear an uprising of the natives in the Interior, who, it is asserted, will rob, kill and destroy property in revenge for many years of Spanish mis-

General Henry made a report to this effect to General Miles, and advises that a guard be left to protect the captured cities. General Miles is in constant demand with all his forces, and is keeping the artillery steadily in advance. He has the entire army encamped along the military road to San Juan, but he does not say when he will put them in motion. He is acting throughout, however, with a prompt-ness which indicates quick action all along the line as soon as the trans-ports containing the remaining troops

The news that Spain had sued for peace was received here in a press dis-patch, and was at once taken to General Miles. The general wrinkled his grave brow when he read it and said he did not know what effect it would have on his expedition, but he purposed to push on ahead and take San Juan, pending orders from the president.

General Jose Garcia, who is in immediate command of the Spanish regulars-not believed to number more than | tion. 500-was deserted by most of the Spanish volunteers in his command during the night, and they began straggling back to the city with the dawn. They immediately presented themselves to the provost marshal and surrendered their arms.

The appearance of the volunteers aroused in the breast of the natives who had suffered at their hands in the past, especially the political prisoners, who were released when we took the city, a desire for revenge, and they began to ferret out all Spaniards in the city who had ever been in the volunteer service and dragged them to the plaza. Bloodhounds could not have been more savage. Most of the Spanlards in hiding, upon being discovered were hauled in triumph by hooting, jeering mobs to General Wilson's head-quarters or to the provost marshal's office in the municipal building. Some of the natives even t looting the residences of the Spanlards They mistook liberty for license and were crazed with a thirst for vengeance. General Wilson, however, so taught them that the revenge could not e wreaked under the protection of ou flag, and peremptorily ordered that the arrest of the Spanish suspects should cease. Such volunteers as presented themselves were, however, received and released after their names had been Subsequently they were formally paroled. Many of them had been forced into the service of Spain to escape persecution.

Four-fifth of the people are overjoyed at the arrival of the army. Two thousand from one place have volunteered to serve it. They are bringing in beef, cattle and other needed supplies. The custom house has already yielded

Business in Ponce has enjoyed a great boom since the arrival of the Americans. The merchants, who closed their places last Thursday, opened them on Friday and are eagerly engaged in competition for the American dollar. American gold is at a premium of 100 per cent. Friday prices were cheap. Saturday they were enormous. On Thursday the price of a breakfast at the Hotel Francais was 25 centaves; the next morning it was one peso. Everything else has risen in propor-tion. The newspaper correspondents have difficulty in obtaining horses, even at $200 in gold. The natives imagine that the pockets of the Americans emit a ceaseless flow of eagles and double engles. There is a plenty of provisions in the city, except rice, one of the staples which is quoted at a very high figure for this country.

Rebbed the Grave.

A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue ceated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite-gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric litters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and any now a well mm. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim.' No one should fall to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle at A. Wasley's drug store. Rebbed the Grave.

Proposed Review Postpolica. Washington, Aug. 1.—The plan for grand review of the troops at Camp Alger before the president and cabinet is not likely to be executed. An announce ment has been made that the review, which was to take place next Saturday would be postponed until the 13th, but the prospect is that this is preliminary to giving it up entirely, owing to the prevalence of sickness and the possible removal of the camp. The case of Mrs. M. B. Reed, the estimable wife of the leading merchant in Delta, Iowa, interestingly shows that desperate cases require prolonged treatment. Mrs. Reed writes

I had been troubled with nervousness and occasional spells of prostra-In July 1891, I was stunned by a stroke of lightning striking the house, and became much worse. My limbs would all draw up, and my left arm and hand was in a cramped condition, and the chords in my neck would lie out prominently. One physician pronounced it a light stroke of paralysis. I would have throbbings in my chest that seemed unendurable. For three months I could not sleep, and for three weeks I did not close my eyes in sleep. I thought I could not stand it. I just prayed for sleep, and felt that if relief did not come I would soon be dead or insane. My physicians (two from What Cheer, one from Springfield, and one from Sigourney), all agreed there was no help for me; that I was incurable. January 1892: Catching at a last straw as I thought, I tried Dr. Miles' Nervine, and it helped me from the very first bottle. The second night I slept two hours, and from that time on my sleep kept increasing and my health improved; slowly at first, but steadily and surely. The family, gathered in an adjoining room, was plunged into the very anguish of grief by the moans from the death chamber The despair was intensified by Dr. Schweninger's absence, although medical art was unavailing. The only con-solation was that the prince was unconscious during the last two hours. Dr. Schweninger was in time only to afford some relief in the final moments. The last words Prince 1871. He was educated at the universities of Cottingen and Griefswald, spent some time in the army, and subsequently settled down as a country gentleman. Brought up in the political faith of the Junkers, or Prussian Tory squirearchy, he became, in 1846, a mem-ber of the provincial diet of Saxony, and of the Prussian diet, in which he first attracted attention by his flery speeches in defense of the old mon-archial party. During the revolution-ary period of 1848 the services he ren-dered in the public debates to the conservative cause led to his appointment as the representative of Prussia in the dist of the old German bund at Frank-fort. Austria was then all powerful in the German bund. From the time of Bismarck's appearance, however, the voice of Prussia began to have increas-ing weight. The successful audacity with which he checkmated Austrian intrigue at Frankfort was the source of constant irritation at Vienna, and naturally tended to produce some estrangement between the Austrian and Prussian courts.

Bismarck was sent as ambassador to St. Petersburg in 1850, and held that position until 1862. In May, 1862, he became Prussian ambassador at Paris. Five months later he was made first minister of the Prussian crown. With-in the next ten years he humbled the Austrian empire, destroyed the French empire and created the new German empire. He remodeled the map of Eu-rope, dismembering Donmark and France. He enlarged the frontiers of Prussia by the annexation of various provinces, including the dominions of three dethroned Gorman princes, and succeeded in placing Germany, which had previously been the weakest and least respected of all the great powers, at the head of all the states of Europe.

In 1868 Bismarck withdrew for some months from active public life, but he was in power again before the end of the year. Then came the Franco-German war of 1870, and after a campaign consisting of an unbroken series of victories, largely due to the strategic genius of Count Von Moltke, King William was able, through his chancellor, to dictate terms of peace to his

He first largely reduced the customs tariff, and ten years later imposed heavier duties than ever, While he thus alienated the Liberals, his May laws, which were afterwards repealed, interfering with the religious liberty of the Catholic priesthood, led to a long and bitter struggle with the Catholic church, and made all its adherents his bitter enemies. Recently, besides periods of unusual that command over his feelings which mental clearners, the prince had had might have been expected, especially intervals of drowshess, falling into in the earlier months after his retirelong, sound and beneficial sleep, on ment, considerable friction existed beawakening from which he would be tween him and the emperor, and after his visit to Visnna in June, 1892, on the occasion of Count Herbert Bismarck's On Saturday evening grave symp- occasion of Count Herbert Bismarck's toms appeared. Dr. Schweninger was marriage with Countess Hoyes, the Reich Anzeiger significantly published the circular instructions sent to the imeprial representative abroad in May, 1890, just after the prince had retired. This document stated that "his ma-jesty discriminates between the Prince Blamarck of former times and of to-day," and deprecated the attachment of "any practical importance to the press publications claiming to reproduce Prince Bismarck's views."

In 1833, however, the prince fell seriously lik and the emperor sent him a telegram of sympathy, and offered him the use of his castles to assist his conalescence. This offer the prince gratefully and gracefully declined, but the exchange of courtesies between him and the emperor served to make very manifest the degire of the German peo-ple for a reconciliation. This desire was granted in 1895. The emperor sent a property present of wine to Friedrichsruhe, and $1.00. an autograph letter congratulating the prince on his recovery from an attack of influenza. Prince Bismarck at once responded to this gracious advance by office. The emperor atterward returned the visit at Priederichsruhe.

The last words Prince Bismarck uttered were addressed to his daughter.
Countess Von Rantzau, who wiped the perspiration from his forehead. They were: "Thanks, my child."

The prince lies as he used to sleep, in an easy position, with his head slightly inclined to the left. The expression on his face is mild and peaceful. It is remarked that his head remained warm for an unusually long time.

In accordance with Prince Bismarck's wish he will be buried upon the hill opposite the castle, in the vicinity of Hirschgruppe.
