WOLSELEY AND THE TROOPERS.

The Great English Military Commander's Way of Making Friends. An incident happened some years ago in the cafe of a restaurant of rather good class in the city of Dublin.

On the occasion referred to two finely set up men of dragon regiment, both wearing long service stripes and the chevrons of troop sergeant, entered this place.

"I can purchase what drink I require here, I suppose?" "Yes, sir," replied the man.

"Then immediately serve those two gentlemen (emphasizing the word) with whatever they demand."

"Excuse me, sir, but we should like to know the name of the gentleman to whom we owe this courtesy."

"The man smiled. 'Certainly. My name is Wolseley—Colonel Wolseley.'"

In a trice two pairs of heels came together with a click, and two left arms were brought up with respect to a salute.

PHILADELPHIA'S BIG STORM.

The Heaviest Fall of Rain in the History of the City. Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—Philadelphia was visited yesterday by a most terrific electrical storm and the heaviest down-pour of rain that has ever occurred in this city.

Peter Schell, aged 25 years, was drowned in the relay of his home. He was in the cellar removing some goods, when he was caught by a sudden rise in the water.

The damage done by the heavy rain-fall will run up to many thousands of dollars. In every portion of the city the cellars and the first floors of many buildings were flooded.

DESERVED A THRASHING.

He Jeopardized the Reputation of Two Generations of His Family. It was evident when the man rapped at the door of the hickwoods cabin that he felt that he had a grievance.

"Somethin' wrong, stranger?" inquired the man who came in answer to his knock, looking at the excited condition.

"Wrong!" exclaimed the stranger. "Wrong! Well, I should think there was! I met a boy about half a mile up the road that I think belongs to you."

"Long gawky boy, with a coonskin cap?" asked the man in the cabin.

"That's the one," returned the stranger. "He had a gun and was evidently out after squirrels."

"Big, old fashioned, muzzle loading gun?" suggested the native.

"Yes; a big gun about half a foot long that he is," answered the stranger. "I didn't stop to see whether it was a muzzle loader or not, but I guess it was. It didn't look new enough for anything else."

"That was like all right enough," said the native. "What do you want of him?"

"I want him thrashed," replied the stranger, with emphasis. "I want him thrashed good and hard so that he'll have a little sense."

"That's takin' a purty big contract, stranger," said the native doubtfully. "He's a right lively boy, an' there ain't any one in these parts has liked him yet, except his dad, which is true."

"Well, you're the one that I want to thrash him."

"Oh, that's differ'n't! I thought maybe you was goin' to try it yourself. I don't mind takin' him when it's a possum, just so's to keep him in his air tosh him that the ole man is some consider'ble yet. What's he been doin'?"

"He shot at me as I come along the road," replied the stranger.

"Sure about that?" asked the native doubtfully.

"Sure! Of course I'm sure. He yelled out that I'd scored a squirrel he was after, and he was going to swing me just to teach me to keep out of the way. Then he took deliberate aim and I fled."

"An' you're here to look about it?" exclaimed the native. "Well, don't you worry no more about that boy, stranger. I'll tan him good an' plenty, an' don't you forget it. Aimed at you deliberate never hit you, did he? Why, shootin' like that'll disgrace the hull family. Glad you spoke of it, stranger. If you hear any yellin' as you go down the road, you kin know I'm teachin' that boy of mine that he can't ruin the reputation of two generations without havin' to suffer for it."

Down Comes the Price On Wool Bunting U. S. Flags. Those who foolishly thought they were securing a bargain in buying the supposedly cheap "cotton" bunting flags are now regretting their action, as they view the scarcely visible colors in their flags as they are suspended overhead. By investing a few dollars more they could now have a flag that always looks clean and bright in color. Our wool flags have proved their superiority over "cotton" goods. We have again reduced our price on wool bunting flags down to a close second in price of the "cotton" flags. We manufacture our wool flags, and can guarantee them to be A No. 1. Call and get our new price list.
