GLASSWORKERS TO STRIKE.

Manufacturers Declare That They Will Employ Non-Union Labor.

Indianapolis, Sept. 2.—The conference between the glass workers of the United States and Canada and the wage committee of the flint bottle makers, which has been in session two days in this city trying to agree, so that the factories might start the first week in September, at the usual time, came to an abrupt ending yesterday afternoon by the firm declaration of the bottle makers that they would grant no increase in wages and would enforce a lockout unless the men return to work at the present wage. They also announced that they will treat with the men again unless the committee comes authorized to act for the union and to accept the present wage.

The committee of blowers had a subsequent meeting and decided under no circumstances to accept the present scale for another year, and in order to give employment to the out of work union men several bottle factories will be started by the men. Just how many, or where they will be located, was not decided on. The manufacturers declare that it is not at a strike, but a lock-out that is on, but that every factory that desires to run will employ non-union labor.

All of the flint bottle factories in this country and Canada were to have started up yesterday.

WHAT EDUCATES?

Time and money are often wasted by attending an inferior school. A poor school is too expensive at any price.

Putting in time does not educate, even if a diploma is awarded for it. "Going through books" does not educate. Reciting lessons does not educate.

To be educated the faculties need to be developed by master minds, according to the true principles of pedagogy.

Those seeking the best educational advantages at the minimum of cost should read the new catalogue of the State Normal School, Bloomsburg, Pa. Note the courses for training teachers, and also the music and college preparatory departments.

The fall term will open September 12. For information address: J. P. WELSH, A. M., Ph. D., Principal.

The Coal Market.

There has been a slight improvement in the anthracite market during the past month, though little interest in the buying movement has been noted, and prices are practically the same as at its beginning.

The general tone is somewhat stronger, and while buyers still hesitate to lay in supplies other than for their immediate needs, they are watching the situation closely so as to place their orders promptly should there be any assurance of an advance in price.

The general tendency is toward a condition which may place the market again in the hands of the selling companies and, if this comes about during the month of September, further strength may be anticipated for the remainder of the year.

A fair amount of coal has been sold at present prices for optional delivery at a later period, but whether this is in greater quantity than usual cannot be ascertained with any degree of certainty. This practice has always had an inflationary effect upon the market, and it cannot be foretold what will result from this season.

From the care with which most buyers are watching the movement of prices, it might be inferred that such provision for their future needs has not been greater than usual.

The Western market shows no change. The advance in price has been on paper only, and all of the coal being delivered there, and that going to the consumers' cellars, is at the prices established in July. There has been, however, a greater quantity of coal taken by consumers than last year, but this is probably a temporary movement to take supplies while this price is assured.

The Eastern market shows a slightly better condition than that prevailing at tide, though this is, thus far, largely in the nature of inquires looking toward the placing of orders for future delivery.
