KILLED IN STRIKE RIOT

with a revolver in each hand. The miners pressed hard against him, and Eyster sprang upstairs he and the miners began shooting simultaneously. He ran to the top of the building and jumped behind a chimney, while the miners ran into the street and opened fire on him again.

Chips flew from the brick chimney, and Eyster ran from corner across to the roof of another building, firing into the street below as he ran. From there he crossed to the roof of the Bank of Virden, where he reloaded his revolvers. Blood was flowing from a wound in his side, but with dogged determination against terrible odds he continued his flight. Jumping to the roof of the Rae & Gish drug store he halted behind a projection from the roof of the buildings he had just left and emptied both his six chambered revolvers. Then springing from cover Eyster dashed ahead amid the rain of bullets to the roof of the Teed building, the upper story of which is known as Miners' Hall. He either fell or jumped through the skylight and landed in the arms of the crowd of miners, who seized him and carried him downstairs to the street. Other hands seized the almost unconscious man and he was dragged into the middle of the street. Local policemen drove back the crowd and carried Eyster to the city square across the street and laid him on the grass.

Eyster was motionless and supposedly dead. The police left him lying there and attempted to disperse the crowd. In a few minutes Eyster was seen to raise his head and wipe the blood from his face. Two men sprang at him and with the ferocity of tigers began jumping on his body and striking him on the head with stones. With a yell the angry crowd charged into the square to kill Eyster. The police charged in a body and fought their way to the center of the mob, where they took a stand over the prostrate man. A carrier was procured and Eyster was taken to the Buckles hotel. He had been shot through the groin and is terribly battered up about the head. The physicians state that he barely has a chance for recovery.

A detail of militia at 10:15 o'clock last night killed ex-Lieutenant of Police Tom Preston, of Chicago, at the stockade. He was standing outside the stockade as guard. The militia gave the bystanding miners the command to halt, and Preston stepped back to the door of the stockade, and he was shot in the stomach. He was carried into the office in the stockade, where he expired.

ORIGIN OF THE BATTLE.

Governor and Company in Conflict as to the State's Duty.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—The difficulty at the Virden mines originated April 1, 1893, when the miners of the fourth district of Illinois went out on strike instituted by the United Mine Workers. Troubles followed at once at Pana, but the Virden mines remained quiet through the summer. The strikers had asked for 40 cents a ton, and were offered 28 cents. Actual disturbances at Virden began Sept. 25, when the Chicago-Virden company, the principal mine owner at that point, imported a hundred negroes from Birmingham, Ala.

When the train arrived with them on board it was met by a large body of armed union men, who threatened to shoot the first negro that stepped from the cars. The negroes were finally prevailed upon to return to the south, and the mines were not operated.

President T. C. Loucks, of the Chicago-Virden company, then proceeded to make preparations to take the place of the strikers. Superintendent Lukens, who was with the sheriff at the time the request was made by telephone for the militia, said that the company proposed to operate its mines in its own way, and that they expected to import labor, both white and colored, from the southern states.

The governor told him that the best class of miners got employment at home and only the criminal class would come, men who would soon quit work and get into the poorhouses, jails and penitentiaries and become a burden on the taxpayers of the state—that he was opposed to the system—that while there was no law to keep them out of Illinois, he did not feel it to be his duty as governor to use the arm of the state to give protection to mine owners in operating their mines with this class of employees. Lukens, according to Governor Tanner, stated that the mines would be run at all hazards—that the company would employ such labor as they saw fit—that they would import this labor, and operate the mines with it, even if they had to do it at the point of the bayonet and the muzzle of the Winchester. No troops were sent.

The next day Mr. Loucks notified the governor that his mines would be operated, and demanded the protection of the state. The matter had been brought before the state board of arbitration, and that board decided in favor of the miners, but also held that an injustice had been done the Chicago-Virden company.

From this point the trouble has been a dispute between Governor Tanner and the mine operators, carried on by telegraph and other communications. The governor steadily refused to call out the state troops, and charged the operators with importing ex-convicts and an undesirable class of workmen. The operators declared that the men they desired to bring to their mines had been chosen for their ability and their capacity to become good citizens. They also said they were willing to take back the strikers at the scale of 25 cents a ton, but that they could not open their mines at the exorbitant demand of 40 cents. The mines, it is claimed, are all operated in accordance with the state law.

Sheriff Davenport has been in sympathy with the governor, and says he does not want to enforce laws that will bring negro labor into the state, and offered to resign rather than undertake the task.

One hundred Springfield miners reinforced the Virden strikers Oct. 10, armed, and determined to prevent the negroes from going to work. Armed men have since been practically in pos-
