DANDO DEAD.

He succumbs to the injuries inflicted by Bialecki.

"Jack" Dando, the veteran Constable, died at 10:35 o'clock last night from the effects of the gunshot wound inflicted on Wednesday night by Wojcysk Bialecki, while the officer was trying to arrest the murderer on a charge of wife beating and desertion. Arrangements have been made to have the funeral take place on Sunday afternoon, at two o'clock, from the family residence on West Cherry street, where the services will be held. Interment will be made in the Odd Fellows' cemetery.

The murderer is still at large and the police have not succeeded in getting the slightest trace of him, although they have been working steadily on the case since Bialecki made his escape. The Philadelphia Times of today says: Bialecki is thought to be in that city, where the police are on the lookout for him.

This morning Dr. W. N. Stein made an autopsy on the body of the victim. He found the heart normal in size and in good condition. The liver was slightly enlarged, but healthy and the lungs showed the effects of minor asthma. Drawing his attention to the wound Dr. Stein found that the shot entered the body on the right side, two inches above the right nipple, five inches from the center of the breast and six inches from the top of the shoulder. The shot took a downward course, shattering the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth ribs, and penetrating the middle lobe of the right lung, making a cavity in the lung in which the doctor could insert his three fingers. Two of the shot and a piece of one of the ribs were taken from the lung.

Dr. Stein says the victim died from shock and hemorrhage from the lung, either of which was sufficient to cause death.

Deputy Coroner Manley has not fixed a time for the inquest, but will probably do so to-night. He is awaiting instructions from the District Attorney's office. The victim of Bialecki's shot was a son of the fugitive, he is pending as the assistance he can to the police. He spent all of yesterday and today visiting places suggested as possible haunts of his father, but his efforts have been as fruitless as those of the police. The son says he is as desirous as anyone to have the fugitive brought to justice and will do all in his power to that end.

THE FIGHT AT MANILA.

Described by a Son of a Former Resident of Shenandoah.

HE WAS PROMOTED FOR GALLANTRY
Joseph Beacham, of Brooklyn, Tells How the Volunteer Artillerymen Chased the Spaniards and Gained Fame and Victory by Their Pluck in Battle.

The thrilling charge made by the Astor Battery at Manila is graphically described in a letter received by Miss Sallie Beacham, of this town, from her nephew, who enlisted in the battery at this place. Joseph Beacham, of Brooklyn, a former resident of this town, and who is well and favorably known by many of our citizens. Young Beacham is now first sergeant of the battery, having been promoted for gallantry in action.

Beacham is an athlete of national reputation. In 1894, he rowed on the Cornell regatta man crew, while in the latter part of his college career he took up base ball. In his last year at Cornell, Beacham received the highest athletic honors which were in the student's power to offer, the foot ball and base ball championships. He was eminently successful in both, but especially so with the eleven.

The letter he wrote home from Manila is as follows:

My Dear Aunt:—Every minute that I live I think is overtime. We have been in a battle, and under fire for eight hours, and we are exhausted. I have been in a battle, and I know what it is. When the battle started we were notified to put our guns in position. We had to make the arrangements under fire, but we got it. No. 1 gun was the first in position, and they had a fine place. My gun was the next and last gun of the Astor Battery to get into position. We were placed in a very dangerous place; we were put in front of No. 1 and No. 2. I fired right over us, and every time that shot we had to crawl down. I measured afterward the height of their shot, and it passed over us just enough height. The fellows on my gun were not afraid. I told them I was not. I could not realize we were in a battle.

The Spaniards soon discovered us, and they made it pretty warm. I can tell. One shot took two spokes out of my gun, and the flying wood would have killed me. I was very detached. Another shot passed just over our heads and killed an Astor Battery man in another detachment. A third shot went over our heads and hit a man in the back. We were firing on a Spanish block house. We had knocked it all to pieces, and after that shot shot went in the air, and the block house burst in flame and the insurgents, for whom we were making a place, fled over the intrenchment and the Spaniards fled. We were firing on a Spanish block house. We had knocked it all to pieces, and after that shot shot went in the air, and the block house burst in flame and the insurgents, for whom we were making a place, fled over the intrenchment and the Spaniards fled. KIRLIN LOST.

His Race With Michael Salmon Was a Pretty One.

One of the prettiest foot races seen in this part of the coal region for many years was run at Mahanoy City park yesterday afternoon between C. C. H. Kirlin, of town, and Michael Salmon, of the former place. The race had been a topic for a month past, and the outcome was awaited with much interest. The backers of the respective men were confident of victory up to the moment the winning line was crossed, but the Salmon people had the most money and they offered odds as high as 19 to 4 before the men got off. The betting was not brisk, but considerable money changed hands.

The race was a 50 yard dash for $100 a side. James Smith, of town, was the referee and Mr. Turner, of Philadelphia, the pistol trial. The racers and their trainers were on the grounds at 2:30 o'clock and each took his spin. Promptly at 4:15 o'clock the men took the scratch and soon after Turner started them. They got off well, Kirlin being slightly in the lead. Salmon caught up with him, but Kirlin was again slightly ahead at the thirty-yard line. At forty yards, however, the men were even and with a sudden spurt Salmon jumped ahead and crossed the tape line two feet ahead.

Kirlin's backers were disappointed in the race, but not in their runner. They claim the result was due to Salmon's superior condition. He has been training and racing all summer, while Kirlin was only trained for about three weeks. It is not likely that the men will come together again, at least not this season. About two hundred people witnessed the race. The gate receipts amounted to $52.

ANOTHER MINE HORROR

A Frightful Accident at the Coaldale Colliery Yesterday.

FIVE KILLED AND ELEVEN INJURED

Four Months Ago Fire Was Discovered in One of the Lower Gangways and Men Were Boring Holes From the Upper Gangway For the Purpose of Drawing It Out.

Tamaqua, Pa., Oct. 11.—Five men were killed and 11 injured by an explosion of gas yesterday afternoon in Colliery No. 8, at Coaldale, near here. The dead are Fire Boss Thomas Smith, William K. Reese and Mattie O'Keefe, of Coaldale, and William Cook and John Konecka of Lansford. Konecka died after he had been taken from the mine, but the others met instant death. All were married and leave large families.

The most seriously injured were William Lawton of Lansford, badly burned; James Rodgers of Coaldale, leg broken; James Walter of Coaldale, burned about the head; James Powell of Summit Hill, about the neck; Evan Evans of Coaldale, seriously burned about face and body; Daniel Dorian of Lansford, leg broken; Reese Doran of Coaldale, badly burned; Patrick O'Donnell of Summit Hill, burned about the body; John Gallagher of Lansford, nervous shock.

The colliery is the largest producer of four in that valley owned by the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company. It has a capacity of over 300,000 tons of coal, and employs 2,500 hands. In consequence of fire which originated in the left section of the mine some months ago, shifts of men were put to work driving holes from the gangway, through which water was to be forced upon the flames. While the gang of men was building a dam to back up the water yesterday, the gangway caught fire. Nearly 100,000 gallons of water were turned into the holes, and almost instantly a terrific explosion occurred, followed in quick succession by four lighter explosions, of such force that the gangway was torn up for over 200 feet and the workmen were blown about in all directions.

A Sacred Bird.
Feathers from the tail of the Argus pheasant are the most prominent in trimming of hats. Golden brown feathers with their innumerable eyes are wonderfully becoming, and are bound to meet with favor among the most fashionable women universally. The popularity of the Argus feather in trimming revives the ancient Greek legend of the giant Argus from which the feathers derived their name. This giant, it is said, possessed one hundred eyes, of which only two slept at one time. This was continued in pairs in succession. It was the duty of this giant to keep guard over a beautiful woman who was transformed into a heifer by Juno as a motive for revenge for favors displayed toward Jupiter. Finally this many-eyed giant was slain by Mercury after which Juno ordered the eyes to be set in the tail of the Argus pheasant and to this very day this bird is regarded as being the self-appointed guardian of unhappy wives. This superstition made it a sacred bird among the Greeks and the feathers from the tail are still believed to bring happiness and prosperity to all who wear them. A fine collection of this feather and also a mounted pheasant were shown a HERALD representative at the Bon Ton millinery parlors, together with a large assortment of other birds and fancy feathers at remarkably low prices. A credit bestowed upon the Bon Ton milliners, is that they do not carry two kinds of a similar design, and furthermore they are trimmed by clever milliners. Mrs. Felder will make and trim the customer's hat but she may desire in 35 minutes. The largest assortment of sailors and walking hats ever shown in Shenandoah can be found at the Bon Ton Millinery, 20 North Main street.

Burglars Cause a Railway Wreck.
Scranton, Pa., Oct. 11.—Burglars who looted the saloon of Isaac Melvin, at Barbours town, after chloroforming the inmates of the building, were carrying their plunder on a handcar to a hiding place early yesterday morning when they caused a wreck on the Austin Heights branch of the Lehigh Valley railroad. John Howell, of Pittston, was killed, and John Carroll, of the same place, injured. The handcar, containing six barrels of whiskey and other goods, was being propelled along the branch road when it collided with a number of cars that were being pushed by an engine. Several cars were thrown from the track, with the result above noted. While the other trainmen were endeavoring to get the injured men from under the cars they were fired on a number of times by the burglars. The latter then fled.
