

THE PRESIDENT'S TOUR

A Day of Speechmaking in Indiana and Ohio.

ONE CELEBRANT MEETS DEATH.

While Firing a Salute in Honor of the Chief Magistrate at Kokomo, Ind., James Jones Was Killed and Another Man Perhaps Fatally Injured.

Cincinnati, Oct. 22.—One continuous ovation marked the passage of President McKinley yesterday over the states of Indiana and Ohio. Defying the wind and rain of a most disagreeable October day, the citizens of these states congregated in great numbers at every station along the line, and never were they disappointed, for the president appeared at every point to speak a few words to his constituents.

Perhaps the most imposing demonstration of the day was at Indianapolis, where the streets through which the president was driven to the state house were jammed with cheering people. Here, on the steps of the state capitol, the president delivered one of the most striking and eloquent addresses of his long western tour. He was introduced by Senator Fairbanks, and said:

"My fellow citizens, I thank you for the words of welcome spoken in your behalf by your distinguished senator. I thank you for this cordial and hearty greeting at the capital city of your great state. We meet in no party name; we meet in the name of country, patriotism and peace. It gives me pleasure to come to meet the people of the city of the home residence of that illustrious statesman and predecessor in the great presidential office, Benjamin Harrison, and I do not forget in this presence that this was the home of that other distinguished Indianan, Thomas A. Hendricks. Both names are remembered by all of you, and both have been distinguished in the service of their country."

"My fellow citizens, we are here today because we love the old flag. It never went down in defeat. It was never raised in dishonor. It means more at this hour than it ever meant in all our history. It floats today where it never floated before. Glorious old banner, the same our grandfathers lifted up, the same our fathers bore."

"In many a battle's tempest.

"It shed the crimson rain.
And what God hath wovens in his loom
No man can break in twain."

The war has been successful. It ended in a little over a hundred days. Matchless victories on land and sea, our army and navy are entitled to every honor that a generous people can bestow. Matchless army and fearless navy, that have done their part, the rest remains with us.

"The war was inaugurated for humanity; it must not stop until it embraces humanity. It was not commenced in malice; it was commenced in a spirit of humanity, for freedom and to stop oppression in a neighboring island. We cannot shirk the obligations of victory if we would, and we would not if we could. Happy are all free peoples, too strong to be dispossessed, but blessed are they among nations who dare to be strong for the oppressed.

At Connersville, Ind., a 2-month-old baby was handed over the railing of the rear platform into the arms of Secretary Wilson, who presented to the president his youngest namesake—William McKinley. Another humorous incident was when Secretary Wilson was introduced after the president had finished his remarks at Connersville. Twice Mr. Wilson commenced to speak, and twice he was interrupted by the starting of the train. Then Secretary Gage shouted: "The eloquence of the secretary of agriculture starts the wheels going." Amid laughter Mr. Wilson then concluded his brief address, and the train pulled out.

The firing of cannon in honor of the presidential visit at Kokomo, Ind., was attended with disastrous results. James Jones was instantly killed by the premature explosion. Another man was seriously injured and may die.

The presidential train arrived at Columbus about 8:30 p.m., just as the lighting the heavy downpour of rain an immense crowd had assembled at the depot and the building resounded with cheers. A committee of citizens met the president and, accompanied by an escort composed of the Seventeenth United States Infantry and the Columbus Rifles, he was driven to the Auditorium. Fully 7,000 people were packed into the immense hall, and the president's appearance was greeted with deafening cheers. The president was introduced by Mayor Samuel L. Black, and spoke for about ten minutes, his address being frequently interrupted by enthusiastic applause. Secretary Gage and Secretary Wilson also spoke briefly. After a short informal levee on the stage the president returned to the train.

GERMANS AND TURKS FRATERNIZE

The Sultan Escorts the Empress Augusta to Luncheon.

Constantinople, Oct. 22.—The emperor and empress of Germany, with the sultan, reviewed 16,000 Turkish troops yesterday from a window of the Yildiz Kiosk. Their German majesties saluted the flag of each regiment. After the review the sultan escorted the empress to luncheon, taking her on his arm. An immense crowd of Turks surrounded the palace and cheered until Emperor William appeared upon the balcony.

Later in the day the emperor and empress visited the mosque of St. Sophia and the museum, as well as many bazaars. The prefect of police presented them with silver vases subscribed for by the populace, remarking, in the speech of presentation, upon the friendship between the two countries and the appreciation felt by all Musulmans at the visit of their majesties to Turkey.

Sultan Abdul Hamid presided at a grand farewell banquet to his imperial guests at which all the Turkish ministers and the foreign envoys were present.

Considerable comment is made upon the extraordinary fraternizing of the German and Turkish sultans.

Priceless Pain

If a price can be placed on pain, "Mother's Friend" is worth in gold as an alleviation. My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did altogether with her last. I find it particularly useful for "Mother's Friend." It is a blessing to any one expecting to become a mother," says a customer.

Thus writes Henderson Dale, Druggist, of Carmi, Ill., to the Bradfield Regulator Company, of Atlanta, Ga., the proprietors and manufacturers of "Mother's Friend." This successful remedy is not one of the many internal medicines advertised to do unreasonable things, but a scientifically prepared liniment especially effective in adding strength and elasticity to those parts of woman's organism which bear the severest strains of childbirth.

The liniment may be used at any and all times during pregnancy up to the very hour of confinement. The earlier it begins, and the longer used, the more perfect will be the result, but it has been used during the last month only with great benefit and success.

It not only shortens labor and lessens the pain attending it, but greatly diminishes the danger to life of both mother and child, and leaves the mother in a condition more favorable to speedy recovery. "Mother's Friend" is sold by druggists at $1.00, or sent by express on receipt of price.

Valuable book for women, "Before Baby is Born," $1.00, free on application to THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Ga.

THE FASHODA SNARL

In England a Resort to Arms Is Not Anticipated.

BUT FRENCHMEN ARE BELLOUSE.

In the latter country the populace make no effort to conceal their warlike opinions, while the English are still determined.

London, Oct. 22.—Government circles here are apparently satisfied that the Fashoda question will not lead to war. At the same time the determination is reiterated not to bring up the question, which has been taken up, no matter what the outcome may be. It is said on good authority that the government has also determined not to brook unreasonable delay, and that in the event of France declining to evacuate Fashoda the Marchand party will be removed from that place, although it is not expected that it will be necessary to resort to such extremes.

A dispatch from Paris announces that Major Marchand's report, telegraphed from Cairo by Captain Baratier, was received during Thursday night. It does not mention the arrival at Fashoda of General Kitchener, and only gives an account of the incidents of the expedition, with an elaborate description of the route followed, the points occupied, the manner of occupation, the raising of the flag, the force left at each point, and the treaties of submission concluded with the tribes, in addition to referring to an encounter with the dervishes. The report only goes as far as the beginning of September, and says that on Aug. 20 the supplies of the party were abundant.

The reason for the omission of any mention of the arrival of General Kitchener at Fashoda is said to be the fact that the report of Major Marchand was not ready when Captain Baratier left Fashoda. When the captain returned from that place he did not think he would go beyond Fashoda. Major Marchand, however, deemed it advisable to send the finished portion of the report, intending to dispatch the remainder of it as soon as Captain Baratier returned. But the captain, on arriving at Omdurman, found there instructions telling him to go on to Cairo, from which place he will proceed to Fashoda.

It is believed in certain quarters that Captain Baratier is the bearer of a verbal report, which the French authorities were not willing to trust upon the British telegraph lines.

Another dispatch from Paris says: A remarkable change has come over French opinion on the Fashoda question during the last 48 hours. The attitude of the public is more inflamed and more defiant. This is partly due to the tone of the British press, but more to the threatening speech of the British chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, which the Autocrat calls "provocation that is almost a threat of war."

The municipal council of Paris is abased on all sides for exhorting the government to avert war.

In government circles the disposition seems to be to resist the British demands.

It is reported that the policy of Great Britain, as definitely stated to Great Britain, includes the retention of Fashoda. Rumors that the Russian foreign minister, Count Muravieff, has assured M. Delcassé, the French foreign minister, of Russia's support in the controversy tend to stiffen the backs of the higher officials, although these continue to maintain a conciliatory tone and declare that France is prepared to carry amability to the utmost limits consistent with her rights and dignity.

Irishmen Cheer for Marchand.

Dublin, Oct. 22.—Mr. William Redmond, Parnellite member of parliament for East Clare, addressing a home rule meeting held last evening, called for cheers for Major Marchand, which were given with great enthusiasm. Mr. Redmond said: "The sympathies of Irishmen are with France."
