Countless homes in every city in America have been enved from the said loss of some despairing member by Paine's celery compound.

The story of the life-work of the discoverer of this world-famed remedy is familiar to most readers. The likeness of Dartmonth's greatest professor, Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., Lit. D., given above, is the best portrait of him yet printed.

"Excepting its handful of magnificent state-men and its military heroes," says the most recent writer upon and critic of America, "the people owe more to Dartmouth's physician-teacher than to any other one man.

'In every walk of life, among the highest office-holders at the national capital, in the homes of the best people in the large cities, among the every-day folks of the country, families in comfortable circumstances, families in confortable circumstances, families that 'live from hand to mouth,' and could not, if they wished, afford the services of any but an ordinary physician—everywhere I have met people to whom Paine's celery compound stands without competition for feeding exhausted nerves and billiding up the strength of the body. It turns in the practice of medicine.
