Hard to hold down the enthusinsm of our people under such circumstances as those surrounding the work of the little conqueror. There is no place in the world where a good thing is better appreciated than right here at the world to make of the house tops outthing is better appreciated than right here at home. We are quick to see it and quick to "push along" in the manner that it merits. From all parts of the city come the same reports; success follows in every footstep and investigation of each new case but adds to the endorsement that has gone before and places their claims beyond a chajow of a doubt. This report comes from West Poplar street, where our representative found Mr. Robert S. Jones, miner, at his place of resi dence. The following statement will interest our renders:

"For years I had backache, but of late it seemed to have chauged more to hesdache. I also had difficulty with the kidney secretions, accompanied by too frequent action. I was troubled with a listless or tired feeling and though I used about every kind of medicine I knew about-I cannot name one that I have not tested-I got no permanent relief from any of them. I fically read about Doan's Kidney Pills and got them from Kirlin's Pharmacy. They were the first remedy which gave me positive relief. They stopped the bladder trouble and I have had none of those headaches since. I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as the best kidney medicine that ever came out."

door centers of rest and recreation. A flat can be made with a wooden flooring over the tin roof, strong posts with bars between set all about it along the four sides, and over posts and bars good, heavy wire notting, such as is used poultry yards, and thus the framework of the boys' roof playground is complete. The interior may be furnished in many different ways to suit the tastes of the three or four boys who may compose the family.

The boy carpenter may erect a shed at one end of the flat, a part of which can be used as a receptacle for carpentering and gardening tools, and in the larger part rabbits may be kept, and also varieties of pigeons.

Horizontal bars, quoits, a seesaw and other games and the much prized sand cap for the younger ones, all find a place in the list of outdoor amusements, and the flat can be made beautiful as well by adding to it the loveliness of the garden. This can readily be done with flower seeds This can reality be done and a few scap boxes. The boys can take care of these flowers under parental direction, and a deeper interest is added if each is apportioned his own boxes or "garden. warm summer days an awning may be put up over part of the space and beneath it arranged a hammeck, comfortable chairs and a table for books or more quiet games

The winter days bring also many pleasures, as the animals and birds live cozily in comfortable surroundings, and the boys have the usual games on clean, fresh snow in which to play and a better, purer at-mosphere, both for their physical and psychical improvement, than is obtainable in the streets of a city.—City and State. Robbed the Grave.

Robbed the Grave. A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is garated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreidful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite-gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physiciaus had given me up. Fortun-ately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victum." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 vents per bottle at A. Waaley's drug store.

Shortened It.

A negro servant on being ordered to anounce visitors to a dinner party was directed to call out in a loud, distinct voice their names. The first to arrive was the Fitzgerald family, numbering eight persons. The negro announced Major Fitz-gerald, Miss Fitzgerald, Master Fitzgerald, and so on. This so annoyed the master that he went to the negro and said, "Don't announce each person like that; say something short-

The next to arrive were Mr. and Mrs. Penny and their daughter. The negro solemnly opened the door and called out, "Threepence!"—London Globe.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the pealiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for Coughs and Colds does it, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give to those who call for it, a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 25 and 6oc. We certainly would advise a trial. It may have you from consumption.

PARIS POLICE SPIES.

FHEY KEEP TAB ON EVERY STRANGER IN THE FRENCH CAPITAL

Where and How You Go, Who You Meet and Even What You Say Are All Recorded at Police Headquarters How the "Mouchard" Works.

More curious than all its strange callings and its strange customs is the police system in Paris. Every hotel must keep a register of all foreigners and hand it over daily to the special officers who are sent around to collect them. In the case of the English or American citizen little interest is taken unless their expenditure is notheeably extravagant, and then a friendly interest is taken in them and their decription sent to Scotland Yard.

It is almost impossible to conceive the boroughness of the French police spy system. You never know who is a mouchard in France. The walter who serves you, the man who shaves you, the cocher who drives you, are as likely as not to be in the olice pay. They know everything, and my know everybody. Here is an instance nollee that occurred to a friend of mine only the other day. He received from the prefecture an order to appear on the following day. So far as he knew, he had done nothing particularly out of the way, and even if he had he had done it unintentionally. The magistrate invited him into his private room and put him at his case at once by explaining that the affair did not concern him personally, but he wanted some information on two or three of the English colony with whom he was associated. answers were perfectly satisfactory, and in leaving he turned to the magistrate and aid laughingly, "Now, why don't you ask me something about myself?" "But I know all about you," he replied, "Would you like to know what you did on any particular day within the last three onths?

My friend replied at random: "Take inst Friday week. I haven't the remotest knowledge as to what happened." The magistrate turned over his dosslet and replied: "You got home at half past 9 in a cab that you had taken at the Madeline. You rode out on your bicycle at half past 9. You lunched at the Cafe de l'Esper-ance." And so on throughout the day he recounted everything that had passed. There was no reason to have made the inquiry, as there was not the slightest mark on his dossier, but it suited the police to know just how he passed his time.

A casserole-that is to say, a monchard -who has by some indiscretion let his connection with the police become known and is accordingly valueless once told me a lot about the working of the system. I had pointed out to him that it seemed to me thoroughly impossible that I could have my footsteps dogged during a whole day without becoming aware of the fact. He answered: "Naturally. This, for in-stance, is how I should have acted if I had wanted to find out all about your movements. When you left this cafe, I should have followed you until such time as I knew you had noticed that I was at your heels. Then I should have passed the signal." "To whom?" I suggested. "Have you ever noticed," he said, "that around all the big cafes there are men offering novels out of date, but who are always scanning closely the faces of those on the terrasses? Well, I should have passed the signal on to one of those men. He would have followed you in a cab, if necessary, and on seeing you enter a cafe would have followed on the pretense of selling wares and handed you on to another of the band.

And so it would have gone on. "After all, are the French police wrong? The foreigner comes here and inseribes his name at the prefecture of polloe. We are not like you in England. We have only just enough money for our own poor, and we do not encourage the out of works of the world to come here. Neither do we want to harbor eriminals. Accordingly the police trace the man, and if they find that he is honorably earning his existence he is left in peace, but if there is a shadow of suspicion against him his dossier gets heavier every day, and one morning he finds that he has 48 hours in which to quit the country. It is owing to this system that the police find it comparatively easy to arrest criminals. The vilest class of an and the paints in the night cafes are all useful, the women especially. Your own servant may be spying on you Your concierge certainly He hesitated for a minute and then said to me in a semiwhisper, "Watch that gen-tleman in front with the ribbon of the Lo-gion of Honor in his buttonhole." I lookeacept that he seemed very intentional except that he seemed very intent in his newspaper "That's a mouchard," he continued. "I'm prepared to bet he has heard every word that has passed. If you had eyed him as closely as I have, you would have noticed that he has been looking at the same paragraph for over an hour." The man paid for his drink and went out. Next morning I suppose his report was sent in. The ruses of these men in finding out persons who are "wanted" have no limit. Only the other day the English police had sent over the description of a man they would like to put in the dock. As he spoke French without the slightest accent, and as it was certain that he would be disguised out of all recognition, the task was a difficult one. One afternoon two of these detectives noticed a well dressed man and suspected him. One of them took off his overcoat and hung it up side by side with his A few minutes later they got up to leave, and the wrong cost was put on In the mest fluent and polite French the suspected man pointed out the error. The mouchard took it off and looked at the name of the maker and saw that it was a London firm They had found their man .- Today.

THE PREY OF A GRIZZLY.

By a Little Oversight Brain Was Robbed of a Good Meal.

In the early settlement of California grizzer bears were numerous and trouble but few men ever had a more singular experience with a grizzly than Paul Sweet, who kept a tannery near Santa Gruz. The story is told by Mrs. Dall in 'My First Holiday." Mr. Sweet was one day walking alous in the woods, when he came suddenly upon a grizzly bear and her two cubs. He was guite unarmed, and before he had time to consider any plan of action the bear was upon him. She struck him down, but he opt his presence of mind and lay perfectly quiet. The grizzly stood over him for a minute or more, then seized him by the waisthane and began dragging him along. He did not resist, and she dragged him for a dozon rods to a little sandy bollow, where she dropped him and began diarging a bole in the sand. Into this hale she rooted the man, and then nesed and pawed the sand over him until he was buried from sight. The prodent animal, not being hungry at the moment, was making a cache of her prey

Mr. Sweet's heart lightened as he realized the brute's intentions, and he began to hope that he might escape. He waited a few minutes after the bear had covered him in, and then, thinking that she had retired from the scene, he began to work himself free very cautionsly. The grizzly wason the watch, however, and at the first movement of her prey rushed to the spot and with two or three strokes of her paw snugly tucked him in again.

Mr. Sweet instantly became motionless again and allowed himself to be reburied in the sand. Luckily his hat had slipped over his face, so that the sand did not fill his nose and eyes, and by raising his bead a little he was able to throw off the sand sufficiently to breathe.

He was more wary next time and lay still for an hour or two, until he felt pretty sure that the grizzly had retired from the spot. Very cautiously then he worked himself free from the sand and crept away.

Everything that a woman's dainty tuste can imagine is provided for the new-comer's wardrobe. Nothing is overlooked save one thing, and that one thing is the most important. Too many mothers forget that baby's strength and health, its ability to withstand the neural ailments of childhood, and its vigor and welfare, as a man or woman, are de-pendent upon her own health and physical condition during the period of prospective maternity. If during that critical time, she is weak, sickly, nervous and despond-ent, because of troubles peculiar to her sex, these conditions are bound to have their influence upon her baby's health.
