IN LONDON LODGINGS.

What It May Cost the American Visitor In England.

In England, though in London at least there are many boarding houses, it is more usual to live in 'lodgings' -that is, more usual to hire a furnished room by itself than to include the taking of meals at the common table. Frequently, however, you arrange to have part of your meals in the house, but served in your own room. In that case you may buy your own mafor a slight charge. In a thoroughly convenient and respectable location in London $7.50 a week would be a low price for a plainly furnished sitting room and bed-room and the cooking. You can do bet-any object.

Prices are lower in the smaller English

Prices are lower in the smaller English places and the landladies more endurable. Those of Landon are often so bothersome that many Americans advise against taking lodgings there. Figures from the ex lady and everything about the place was specifically clean, they paid $1.40 apiece for the night's lodging and three meals. It York they had lodging, supper and break fast for $1 apiece. At Oxford the same thing with a fine grate fire cost $1 apiece In Edinburgh they had lodging and break-fear for a week for $3.50 apiece.

In London and the large cities it is the custom to go out for dinner. London res same grade in the States, and so London is not the cheapest place in which to dine To live in this way abroad is much simpler than at home, for restaurant life is so much more common. It has been said that a third of the people of Paris dine at eafes. Women seldom have any serious trouble in finding a restaurant where they can dine unmolested, and a great many of the art students abroad live in this fash ion, often not spending $1 a day for the whole cost of existence. Furnished rooms, however, are not so easily to be found in Paris as in London, but they are there.— Robert Luce in "Going Abroad."
