Philippelinkle, Dec. 16.—That the art of recording sound has reached perfection was proven vasterday afternoon, before a large audience, at the Chestnul Street Opera House, the entertrain-ment being furnished by the "graphe-phone grand," an improvement on the ordinary graphechene perfected by Mr. Thorons H. Macdonald, Songs, orchestral selections and recitations were given with a degree of accuracy that excited the wender and admiration of the audience and evoked rounds of ap-plause. In every part of the large theater every word uttered by the graphophone was perfectly distinct. Indeed, so marked was the difference between the utterances of the graphophone and Mr. Macdonald's brief speech that many expressed the opinion that "his machine can talk much better than
