An Unwise Move.

We have had occasion to draw attention to the apparent obliteration of sectional feeling in the Southern Fire Ins Co., American Fire Insurance Co., states, brought to the minds of the people very foreibly by the recent visit of President McKinley and the reception accorded him by the old vererans of the Confederacy. In the view of this apparent friendly feeling the if was an onwise move, to say the least, to introduce in Congress a law to pension Confederate soldiers.

Those who apprehend a revival of sectional feeling by the introduction of this proposition will feel greatly relieved by the announcement that the passage of such a law is expressly prohibited by the Constitution, a section of which reads

The validity of the public debt of the United States authorized by law. including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for service in suppressing insurrection or restate shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void."

Before a law such as is now proposed by ill-advised Southern representatives in Congress, who are probably seeking a little cheap notoriety, could be legally adopted, an amendment to the Constitution would have to be adorsted by the national Senate and House, and then submitted to the various state legislatures and adopted by three fourths of these bodies.

Such proceedings are hopeless, especially in view of the fact that patriotic Southerners themselves recognize the unwisdom of in any way ap proving the acts of secessionists, as is evidenced by the action of Company A, of the Memphis uniformed organization of Confederate veterans. This organization unanimously adopted the following resolution in opposition to Senator Butler's bill to pension ex-Confederates:

"Resolved, That while we favor more liberal appropriations in the Southern states for the maintenance of its disabled Confederate soldiers, we condemn the introduction of any measure in Congress looking to the pensioning of ex-Confederates by the United States government."

The Aboriginal Indians are said not to have known the disease. That proves it is not caused by our climate and must have been imported its growth was slow but persistent. Forty years ago there were less than 46.000 cases in the U.S., to-day there are 20 million. Soon there will be 30 million. Where is it to end? Shall we not awake till it has fastened its fangs on every man, woman and child in the land! How shall we prevent it unless we take immediate and vigorous steps to stamp out the plague? This putrid disease knows no sex, no class; no station. It is everywhere. A germ (microbe) disease it spreads by contagion. The carion breath and expectoration of the poor victim are loaded with those microbes. Others breath then in, they find lodgement and never release their hold till the victim lies down in death, unlend very microbe is killed. But can they be killed? Yes, but not by any "blood medicine." No Catarrh germ was ever found in the blood. The trouble is local and must be treated locally.
