eeded to a po that the pers object of ridicule. It is safe to say Rists. that in no other local movement has the old adage of "while there is life, there is hope" been more distinctly exemplified. The few with hope have kept steadily at work with the one object in view, and after twelve months' steadfast attention to the alm of the association they have eventually secured a title by deed to the only available site for a monument in this vicinity. It is not our purpose to give undue credit to anyone, nor to cast flattery, but we feel duty bound to say that, were it not for the individual efforts of Hon. M. C. Watson, the question of site for the soldiers' monument would not be settled to-day. About twelve months ago the gentleman referred to became actively engaged in the work and determined that the project of commemorating the memory of those who fought to defend the Union and perpetuate it, should not lapse into a sea of lassitude. By personal interviews with influential representatives and personal expenditures, he afforded encouragment to the few who kept the movementalive. and now the Association is in a position to say that, if there are loyal and patriotic people wuo wish to carry out the orginal aims of the Association, there is a site to which none but the Association can lay claim. We believe the object of the Association is one worthy of the enthusiastic support of all our citizens; and we think the progress made by and we think the progress made by its representatives is in keeping with its aims and objects. Now let the monument be erected, and let the people of Shenandosh do their duty in such a manner that when the events of the rebellion shall be called to memory by history, those who follow may turn with reverance and pride to the chief mining town of saved the bars out of their cells and Schuylkill county and say, "Well hid in the corridor.
