OUR COUNTRY: First, Last and Forever. The Cambria Iron Company has voluntarily added 10 per cent to the pay of its 3,000 workmen.

SENATORIAL contests are expensive. If reports from Montana are to be relied on, Marcus Daly asserts that the election of his successful rival, Clark, cost the latter no less than $500,000. The inference is that Marcus spent $400,000. And these two men are Democrats!

A DEMOCRATIC paper published at Washington affirms that the president has reconsidered his former intention to modify the blanket order whereby his predecessor riveted a lot of Democratic incompetents in the public service. This will prove anything but pleasant news to several Schuyler kill statesmen.

SENATOR PENROSE has again demonstrated the wisdom of the people of this state in selecting him to represent them in the United States Senate. Much credit is due the junior Senator for his persistent efforts in bringing to the support of the peace treaty Senators McLaughlin and Kenny. He had diligently and incessantly labored with these Senators, and in so doing performed successfully a duty which had been assigned him. There are few more active members in the Senate than Penrose.

A STRONG anti-trust bill, giving the right to sue for damages to all injured by trusts, has been introduced in our State Senate by Mr. Boyd. This measure is in the right direction. There is hardly a day passes that the newspapers do not record the formation of a trust by those engaged in a certain line of business. Under these circumstances the coming of a trust panic is inevitable, unless some such law as cited above is enacted and enforced. In all other respects our country is sound, with sufficient money and no inflation; with low rates of interest, not averaging 4 per cent, for all the money loaned in all parts of the land; with Europe emptying her surplus wealth in our lap and even borrowing to meet temporary needs. The future is bright, but for the one cloud, and good sense and the enforcement of the law can rid that of danger.

THE Shenandoah Herald attempts to poke fun at Pottsville's Federal building now in course of completion, and therein gives the local barons counter-opinion. Pottsville's building represents every dollar appropriated for its erection in substantial construction and plenty of space. It is a building that will stand for ages. It would be a useless waste of money to expend the sum to build a building in Shenandoah which is liable to drop out of sight at any moment—Minnor's Journal.

Well, we like that, from Major Finney, now Sub-Treasurer of Philadelphia! It may be true, as our esteemed but sometimes misguided contemporary remarks, that the building would "drop out of sight" were it erected in Shenandoah. We are positive of one thing, however, and that is the town would lose nothing by the drop. We are compelled to admit that the new building is a great improvement on the present antiquated quarters of Pottsville's postmaster; and, true again, were the new structure built on architectural lines as becomes a town banking after a city charter, the press of the county seat would daily sing the praises of "the late Mr. Reilly" and "the present Mr. Bruum," and point with pride to the Federal building as a monument to their memory. But perhaps it is well, if that is the purpose, that the building was erected along the lines of architecture that it is. Ignorance and taste in architecture," indeed! We will vouch for the truth of the assertion that not only do the residents of Pottsville avoid the particular locality of Norwegian and Second streets, but they refuse even to accompany a stranger for an inspection of their "public building." Yes, Pottsville has a Federal building—but they won't acknowledge it.

REST. I hear a bird that sings of yesterday, a lonely bird, but none so lone as I. Whose life is laden as a wintry sky. O heart, how weary are love's woods and ways. When tried in singleness! The sight obeys The soul and sees no beauty far or nigh Unless the soul sees "lovely!" And so I sigh Through this fair spring when I should praise my mate. I know not why the bird is sad, God knows, And to know why my heart makes out no sense. For I'm burdened with the grievous wrong Of hard words said to one whose aim and reason Would give all to one whose aim and reason, how long! How dark the night until your eyes unclose. —J. J. Bell in Pall Mall Magazine.

VALUABLE STATISTICS.

By Their Use It is Often Easy to Overcome the Multitude.

"Nothing like fake statistics for giving a fellow a reputation for scholarship dirt cheap," chuckled an astute citizen. "Statistics are the most impressive things in the world, and the fewer about 'em is that nobody dares to contradict you. I've been working the schools for several months, and my stock has advanced about 1,000 pounds a day. How do I do it? Well, to illustrate the thing, I was standing in a crowd on Canal street yesterday watching the big pile driver hammering down the walls for the drainage canal.

"A lot of power there," remarked a gentleman as my elbow in the weight came down, huh?" "Immense," I replied, "and, by the way, I was just making an interesting calculation in regard to it. Do you know, sir, that pile is exactly equal to 200 carpenter oak planks with four pointed steel hammer's? The man looked startled. "You don't say so, professor?" he replied respectfully, and presently I saw him whispering to the others, who elbowed me up with awe. The other day, when it was raining, I joined a group under an awning. "Had day," said somebody. "Yes, I returned. 'I was amusing myself a few minutes ago in figuring up the quantity of water that has fallen in the city limits between 6 a. m. and noon."

"At that other fellow got interested. 'How much was it, doctor?' asked one of 'em. 'Poured into a row of ordinary half pint tumblers,' I said impressively, 'it would make a line one and two-fifths around the globe; it would fill a 15 inch gun barrel reaching from here to a point about nine miles east of Copenhagen; it would quench the maternal thirst of 9,408,941 Kentucky colonists the day after Christmas; it would barely go into a tank 4,500 kilometers long and 2,411 millimeters wide.' 'By Jove!' you ought to have seen those fellows' eyes stick out. 'When they see me now, they all touch their hats. I squeaked a smart Alec at our boarding house by informing him at the table that the pie consumed annually in New Orleans would form a column, 12,032 miles high. 'I admit it leaves about 10 lbs. over,' I said when he ventured a question. 'But that's only 514 dekagrams and 50 milligrams to compute.' That settled him. Now I'm the accepted authority of the establishment on everything from hash to hydraulics. 'It's a good idea, by the way, to use the decimal system whenever possible. It mixes 'em up when you begin to talk about millimeters and hectometers and gives a fine flavor of learning to your remarks. I never ran across a fellow yet who doesn't know a statement or two in decimals.'—New Orleans Times Democrat.

Women Should Know It.

Many women suffer untold agony and misery because of the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They have been led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind.

Neuralgia, nervousness, headache, itchy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing-down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it with scalding or burning sensation, sediment in it after standing in bottle or common glass for twenty-four hours, are signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

The above symptoms are often attributed by the patient herself or by her physician to female weakness or womb trouble. Hence, so many fail to obtain relief, because they are treating, not the disease itself, but a reflection of the primary cause, which is kidney trouble. In fact, women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble and both need the same remedy. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and ready to get at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar.

To prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. It kindly mention Shenandoah Herald and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y.

The Smart Verger. The church possessed a valuable Bible, which was only used on Sundays, says a writer in The Cornhill Magazine, speaking of an English country parish. During the week it was kept in a box which rather curiously formed the stand upon which the reader of the lessons stood. On one occasion, when this was being shown to a visitor, the remark was made that it did not seem very reverent for even a clergyman to tread upon the Bible. "Pardon me," the old verger replied. "In this church, sir, we take our stand upon the scriptures."

COULD YOU DRAG AROUND.

Was In Feeble Health, Sleepless and Finally Paralyzed.

A Consultation of Three Doctors Gave Me Up To Die.

Physicians Recommended Dr. Greene's Nerrura, and It Cured Me.

Mrs. S. N. Miller, Roxbury, Vt., says: "I had the grip very severely. I was in very feeble health. I could not sleep at night and could not buy drag around, in fact, I gradually grew worse and was about to die. Finally, I had a shock and that finished me. My whole right side was paralyzed and I was as helpless as a child for a long time. I could not sit up or help myself. A consultation of three doctors gave me up saying that they could do nothing more for me. My husband went straight to the druggist's, who was also a doctor and had doctored me, and was at the consultation, and asked for a bottle of Dr. Greene's Nerrura. He stopped and thought a moment and then said 'That will help your wife, I know it will.' He bought a bottle and I can truly say that I am rejoiced at the results. I can now walk about quite comfortably and do my own work, get into a carriage spy, and am far better than I ever expected to be, all of which I attribute to Dr. Greene's Nerrura."

Dr. Greene, 53 West 14th St., New York City, can be consulted free, personally or by letter, at any time.

"Kid" is merely a jocular substitution for "lamb," used for a young child, and is very old. Charles Reade and Dickens used "kid" in this sense, and Virgil's phrase, "the capella," has been freely translated, "Go it, my kiddies."

William Black's Nervousness. I am sure that the characters of his stories were more real to him than most of the men and women whom he encountered in everyday life. They were so real that they affected him as if it had been the fate of his dearest friends. For months after he finished "McLeod of Dara," with its great tragedy of baffled love, he was so shaken in nerve that he did not dare to ride in a hansom cab.—Sir Wemyss Reid in Speaker.

A Barrel of Flour. A barrel of flour will make nearly double its weight in bread. Flour rapidly deteriorates with age unless kept dry. It absorbs moisture, and this moisture hampers the gluten which is indispensable to the lightness of the loaf. Besides, it changes some of the starch into sugar and a gummy matter known as dextrin, and this makes the bread heavy and sodden.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH. Varied Career of the Distinguished Courtier and Adventurer.

Raleigh's day of days was at the sack of Cadiz in 1596. It was Raleigh who overbore the timid counsels of Lord Thomas Howard, crying out to Lord Essex: "Entramos! Entramos!" a permission so acceptable to the gallant young earl that he threw his hat into the sea for sheer joy. Then Raleigh took him to his ship and led the van under the batteries and right into the harbor. When his vessel, shattered by shot, was on the point of sinking, he left it to enter Essex's ship, and, though wounded severely by a splinter, had himself carried on shore and fitted on to a horse to charge with Essex against the Spanish army. Of the sea fight Hakluyt says:

"What manner of fight this was and with what courage performed and with what terror to the beholder continued, where so many thundering tearing peeces were for so long a time discharged, I leave it to the Reader to think and imagine." Of the charge on shore he tells us: "The time of the day was very hot and faint, and the way was all of dry deepe slyding sand in a manner, and beside that, very uneven. But the most famous Earle, with his valiant troops, rather running in deede in good order, than marching, hastened on them with such unspeakable courage and celerity, as within one hour's space and less than the women were all dispersed and put to flight, their heads being struck down at the very first encounter, whereat the footmen, being wonderfully dismayed and astonished at the unexpected manner of the Englishmen's kinde of such fierce and resolute fight, retreated themselves with all speed possible that they could."

We know the story of Sir Walter Raleigh but too well—his cruel imprisonment, his more cruel liberation to save his life by accomplishing the impossible and his most cruel execution on a warrant signed 15 years earlier. He knew all that, it is to be known of success and failure, of courts and treachery, of sea fights and assaults on cities, of treacherous islands and tempests and long marches in tangled forests.—Fortnightly Review.

EVOLUTION OF MEXICAN MONEY.

In Early Days Things Were Traded For "So Many Beans."

Before Mexico was invaded by the Spaniards over the St. Ignace mission in this country, the natives used in the place of money the smallest bean beans, reserving those of larger size and better quality for the manufacture of liquor, to which they were much addicted.

About 14 years after the conquest—that is to say, in 1535—Castilian coin commenced to make its appearance in Mexico. As it arrived, however, only in very small quantities, it proved itself insufficient for the needs of trade, even though the latter was still of very insignificant proportions. It was then that the ruling viceroy, under authority of a royal decree, ordered the manufacture in the City of Mexico of small pieces of silver of a certain weight. These pieces were not stamped with any royal device, and their value was determined entirely by their weight and size. From this was derived the name "peso," which has outlived the first attempt at making money in Mexico up to the present. These pieces of silver remained in circulation a number of years, and pieces of gold and of copper were also added in time. Soon, however, it was found that this sort of circulating medium made fraud and abuse extremely easy, and the Spanish government, taking cognizance of this fact, established by royal decree three mints, granting them a perpetual existence for America. These mints were located in San Luis, Santa Fe and the City of Mexico. The same decree also provided that in San Domingo, on the Spanish island known today as Porto Rico, there should be money struck for the use of the regulations governing the mint of Cadiz in the year 1689. The coinage of Mexico was actually begun during the reign of Viceroy Antonio de Mendoza, who established a mint in a building belonging to the Marquis del Valle. Here, throughout only a short time, being transferred first to the council building and later to the viceregal palace. During all this time the coinage was of considerable amount, and the facilities of the establishment were not sufficient to meet its demands, the royal mints, for which reason frequent demands for minting apparatus are found in the ancient records. In the year 1778 the mint was established in the Apartado building and has continued since then in the street of the same name. The declaration of independence in 1810, granting the mint was rented out to private parties, who supplied with coin all the states of the republic that had no mints of their own.—City of Mexico National.

The African's Endurance. Two cases notably illustrative of the African native's power of endurance are reported from the British Central Africa protectorate. In each instance a man was dragged from his canoe by a crocodile and had an arm bitten almost to a pulp. The man had to be taken long distances overland to the nearest hospital, and the injured limb amputated and quickly recovered. Dr. Douglas Gray, acting chief medical officer there, remarks further in his report upon the growing confidence of the native in the European medicines. Reports of cures—more especially in regard to the treatment of malaria, cholera, dysentery, and the one old cure, a fiber band tied round a limb above the seat of disease, is, he says, fast losing its reputation.—London News.

The Landrail. The most remarkable thing about the landrail is its extraordinary instinct or passion for migration. Whence comes it that it overtopping desire which twice in the year impels it, winged though it is, to change its quarters, to range during our English springtime as far north as the bleak and frozen shores of arctic Greenland, to descend in the fall of the year away south into Africa and eastward into Asia, reaching in its return migration countries so distant and so widely apart as Cuba, Mexico and Australia? At present, in spite of theories and surmises, we have no satisfactory reason offered to us for the wonderful migration—recurring steadily, persistently and unflaggingly, year after year—of a bird like the landrail.

Scrofula, a Vile Inheritance. Scrofula is the most obstinate of blood troubles, and is often the result of an inherited taint in the blood. S. S. S. is the only remedy which goes deep enough to reach Scrofula; it forces out every trace of the disease, and cures the worst cases. My son, Charles, was afflicted from infancy with Scrofula, and he suffered so that it was impossible to dress him for three years. His head and body were a mass of sores, and his eyesight also became affected. He was so weak that he could not walk, and he was so afraid that he thought would relieve him, that he would not eat, and his condition was indeed pitiable. I had almost given up hope, when I was advised by a friend to try S. S. S. (Swift's Specific). A decided improvement was the result, and after he had used a dose or two, on one day of his former dreadful condition would be forgotten him. All the sores on his body have healed, his skin is perfectly clear, and he is now a healthy, robust young man, and as he has been restored to perfect health. 800 Elm St., Mason, Va.

CHAIRMAN CANNON'S WARNING. Extravagance in Appropriations May Force Another Bond Issue.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Chairman Cannon, of the appropriations committee in the house in the course of general debate on the sundry civil bill yesterday sounded a note of warning against extravagant appropriations and practically served notice that neither the ship subsidy bill nor the Nicaragua canal bill could be passed at this session. Although he especially disclaimed speaking for any one but himself, the statements he made, coming from the chairman of the appropriations committee, caused great interest. Mr. Cannon made a general statement of the revenues and expenditures for the present fiscal year, increasing Secretary Gage's estimate of the deficiency in the revenues from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000, exclusive of the $20,000,000 to be paid to Spain under the provisions of the treaty of Paris. Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio, Mr. Hepburn of Iowa and Mr. W. A. Smith of Michigan, although they did not enter into any lengthy discussion, took issue with Mr. Cannon, but he maintained that our revenues might be sufficient to meet our expenditures for the next two years if no new lines of expenditure were entered upon. But he indicated that it would be a close margin and that new expenditures would be necessary. Throughout its open session yesterday the senate had under consideration the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. A lively debate was precipitated over the appropriation for the support of the office of the supervising architect, which Mr. Cannon, and that official was criticized for the delay in the construction of public buildings throughout the United States.

A Remedy For the Grippe. A remedy recommended for patients afflicted with the Grippe is Kemp's Balsam, which is especially adapted to diseases of the throat and lungs. Do not wait for the first symptoms of the disease, but get a bottle to-day and keep it on hand for use the moment it is needed. If neglected the grippe has a tendency to bring on pneumonia. The Balsam prevents this by keeping the cough loose. All druggists sell the Balsam.

STRONG STATEMENTS.

Three Women Relieved of Female Troubles by Mrs. Pinkham.

From Mrs. A. W. SMITH, 59 Summer St., Hiddedford, Me.:

"For several years I suffered with various diseases peculiar to my sex. I was troubled with a burning sensation across the small of my back, that all-painful feeling was despondent, fretful and discouraged; the least exertion tired me. I tried several doctors but received little benefit. At last I decided to give you Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. The effect of the first bottle was magical. Those symptoms of weakness that I was afflicted with, vanished like vapor before the sun. I cannot speak too highly of your valuable remedy. It is truly a boon to woman."

From Mrs. MELISSA PHILLIPS, Lexington, Ind., to Mrs. Pinkham:

"Before I began taking your medicine I had suffered for two years with that tired feeling, headache, backache, no appetite, and a run-down condition of the system. I could not walk across the street. I have taken four bottles of the Vegetable Compound, one box of Liver Pills and used one package of Sannative Wash, and now feel like a new woman, and am able to do my work."

From Mrs. MOLLIE E. HERBEL, Powell Station, Tenn.:

"For three years I suffered with such a weakness of the back that I could not perform my household duties. I also had falling of the womb, terrible bearing-down pains and headache. I have taken two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and feel like a new woman. I recommend your medicine to every woman I know."

PECULIAR ENGLISH SPELLING.

Most Difficult of All Systems to Acquire Except the Chinese.

English spelling is the most unsystematic and therefore the most difficult of all systems to acquire, except the Chinese. The French has not a complete alphabet to represent all its sounds in a simple and systematic manner, but the French use the incomplete and defective Roman alphabet much more consistently than we. The object of writing is to convey thought. An ideal system would convey your meaning as thought with the least expenditure of energy on the part of both writer and reader.

The sounds of the spoken language should be represented by the simplest, most complete and most logical system. There are in English 40 distinct sounds; 40 distinct letters are needed to represent them. With such a system the interminable difficulty of learning to spell would disappear, the time spent in printing and writing unnecessary letters would be saved and the learning of the language by children and foreigners would be greatly facilitated. There is no valid objection to phonetic spelling except the difficulty of introducing it. The etymological objection is unworthy of serious consideration.

The etymology, for example, of "sophistic" (which, by the way, does not import a wise saying) resides in the real word, not in its spelling. Any one who knows the history of the word would associate that history with it, however it might be spelled. The Philological association favors phonetic spelling. It is of course, impossible to make so radical a change at once, but it does not follow that the benefits of phonetic spelling, the metric system or any other great improvement will come to us in the surest and best way by simply leaving the matter to chance. There is a tendency to shorten spelling, but the benefits to be derived from improvement are so great that definite action should be taken to secure them early and to make the changes in the way that will be most beneficial. Changes for better and for worse will continue to come by chance as they have come in the past, but chance changes in so important a matter as the language of the most enlightened and most progressive people of the world should not be satisfactory.—Self Culture.

GOT THE GRIP?

The sudden Epidemic of Grip has started the country. The doctors confess they have no sure Cure for it, and this is seen to be true in the sudden death of Garcia and Ex-Senator Brice and the alarming increase in the death rate. CHAIRMAN CANNON'S WARNING. Extravagance in Appropriations May Force Another Bond Issue.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Chairman Cannon, of the appropriations committee in the house in the course of general debate on the sundry civil bill yesterday sounded a note of warning against extravagant appropriations and practically served notice that neither the ship subsidy bill nor the Nicaragua canal bill could be passed at this session. Although he especially disclaimed speaking for any one but himself, the statements he made, coming from the chairman of the appropriations committee, caused great interest. Mr. Cannon made a general statement of the revenues and expenditures for the present fiscal year, increasing Secretary Gage's estimate of the deficiency in the revenues from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000, exclusive of the $20,000,000 to be paid to Spain under the provisions of the treaty of Paris. Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio, Mr. Hepburn of Iowa and Mr. W. A. Smith of Michigan, although they did not enter into any lengthy discussion, took issue with Mr. Cannon, but he maintained that our revenues might be sufficient to meet our expenditures for the next two years if no new lines of expenditure were entered upon. But he indicated that it would be a close margin and that new expenditures would be necessary. Throughout its open session yesterday the senate had under consideration the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. A lively debate was precipitated over the appropriation for the support of the office of the supervising architect, which Mr. Cannon, and that official was criticized for the delay in the construction of public buildings throughout the United States.

For real blood troubles it is a waste of time to expect a cure from the doctors. Blood diseases are beyond their skill. Swift's Specific, S. S. S. For the Blood reaches all deep-seated cases which medicine and surgery cannot affect. It is the only blood remedy guaranteed purely vegetable, and contains no potash, mercury, or other mineral.
