CITIES OF THE TROGLODYTES.

Built In Layers and Reached by Menns of Steps Cut in the Walls. If you want to be introduced to the slowest people in the world, you must visit north Africa and make your way across the scorening desert that separates from the rest of the inhabitants of Africa the race known to the ancients as the Troglo-dytos, from the Greek "troglos," a hole. They were given this name on account of the habit of living in boles in the ground. a habit that probably owes its origin to the fast that Old Soi in that quarter is a very merciless old traint, and life above ground is scarcely bearable except when the sun has retired for the night.

The Eroglodytes are in the line of ours-van travel and are visited by these freight trains of the African desert. No outside influence has been able, however, to wear living. So far as is known, the manners and customs of the Troglodynes have not changed since Bible times, and any one coming upon a group of these people in the present day and comparing their ap-pearance with descriptions extant that some historians have regarded as fabulous will see that they are precisely the same now as they were many centuries ago.

A Trolgodyte city is the most curious dwelling place in the world. From the exterior it presents the aspect of a Homan circus. The habitations are built in layers one, above the other and form, a circular wall, with a single enteree from the out-side. All the doors of the houses open on the interior of the circular city. Each lab-itation has a deer and a window. To get to them you elimb a flight of steps cut in the wall, which brings you to the lower layer of houses. If you wish to go higher, you climb another pair of steps to the houses above, and from here to the third row if you are visiting some one living on the top of the pile. The doors are all fastened with the most primitive lock that is turned by means of a wooden key.

Besides providing protection from their enemy, the sun, the circular habitations with the dead walls outside form a strong fortree to guard the inimbitants from the attacks of neighboring tribes. In these more peaceful days, however, they have no such four before them, and so they use the walled city mostly for storing of crops, while they live in holes dug in the ground within the walls and frequently change their position in search of pasture for the

The age of the cities is immense. The exact date when they were built is un-known, but it is believed that they antodate the hirth of Christ. The people are penenally disposed, in which phase of character they are superior to most other elligent and hardworking, tending their flocks and farming their land with patient energy. The approach to their country is so difficult and dangerous on account of the trightful gorges it is necessary to travple have been disturbed but little by Eu-ropeans. Now that archeologists are turning their attention to the ancient people something more is being learned of them than was known heretofore.—St. Paul

Women Should Know It.

Many women suffer untold agony and nisery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They have been led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind

Neuralgia, nervoussess, headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dulf ache in the back, weak ness or bearing down sensation, profitse or scanty supply of urine with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it with scalling or burning sensation, sediment in it ofter stand ing in bonle or common glass for twenty-four nours, are signs of kidney and bladder troub a

The above symptoms are often attributed by the patient herself or by her physician to female weakness or womb trouble. Hence, so many fail to ob ain relief, because they are treating, not the disease itself, but a reflection of the primary cause, which is kidney troub a In fact, women as well as men are made niserable with kidney and bladder trouble

"A small boy of my acquaintance," says a writer in the Boston Transcript, stood the other day taking a lesson in feminine human nature—not his first lesson, but a bitter one—with quivering lip and deeply perplexed face. He exclaimed, having reference to his still smaller sister:
"Dolly cries because I don't do a

because I do it!"

"This was true and natural, but the boy's remark was not so profound as was an anecdote which I once road in the awakened by her husband's weeping and howling in the middle of the night. He was ovidently having a dream, and she woke him and asked what was the matter.

A RETIRED BURGLAR.

HE TELLS OF A CURIOUS INCIDENT IN HIS CAREER.

A Night's Work That Involved a Disagreeable Surprise, a Cool Headed Man and a Sufe That Had to Be Opened Before Morning.

'In the course of my time," said the retired burglar, "I have opened a considerable number of iron boxes of one sort and another, but never one under more pe-culiar circumstances than this one, in a house in a small town in this state. This safe stood in the diving room against the wall on one side. My light fell on it when I opened the door of the room to look in. It was a big, old fashioned safe, more like rage a and one thing and another like that then money. But a safe is always a pleas-ant thing to look at. It makes you think of money anyway. And so I was glad to see this safe, and, of course, I heped I'd find a lot of stuff in it too. Then I start-ed to swing my ham around to take a glance at the rest of the room before walking in, but I hadn't more'n begun to move it before I brought into the light a pair of shoes with the heels on the floor and the soles up at an angle of about 45 degrees, toes toward the safe. There were feet in those shoes, of course, and the legs went up from the other side at an angle of 45 degrees to what I didn't need to look to see was a man sitting there in a chair in "Woll, now, you know, that was unex-pected, and while a man in my business must expect unexpected things and be ready for 'em and not be surprised or star-tled this was really so very unusual that I will admit I was just a little bit startled ly it, and my hand must have shaken a little, and while under most circum stances that wouldn't have made the slightest difference in the world here it made all the difference, for the hand that shook was the one holding the lamp, which was at that moment close to the jamb of the door. I knocked the lamp against II—just a little bit of a tick, but enough to wake up the sleeper. I case his feet draw up toward the chair.

"Then I wanted to get out myself, and I started along the ball I was in toward the cellar door I'd some in at, but I hadn't taken two stops before I heard a man say:

"Hold on there—wait! Come back!" "And I went back. It was a command, bet it was an invitation, too, and I was ready to meet it or to chance it, and I went back to the dining room and looked in and saw a man lighting the gas; he'd been having for a light before a kerosene inp that I saw now standing on the taturned and says to me:

'He wasn't quite so tall as I was, but he was a pretty solid sort of a citizen, who could have held his own with me in a square rough and tumble easy, and he was a man who was accustomed to bossing things and having folks do what he said. I couldn't tell for the life of me what he was, what his business was, but I guess be was just simply the richest man in the town and spent his time looking after his property. And when I'd come in he says:
What's your business, my friend?

"And I said I was a traveling black-"H'm! he says. You do most of your And I said yes, I did do more or less

"And I said yes, I had tools there for any ordinary work.

"You see that safe? the man says, pointing toward the safe he'd been sitting in front of when I first leoked in, and I looked at it and saw the big, old fashioned safe, looking very imposing and strong, but a safe that a man that knew how could cut into about as easy as he could a cheese,

And I put my bag up on the table and got out my tools and went at it, with the owner looking on and greatly interest-The pigsty certainly was a nuisance, ed. "In about three-quarters of an hour I and after having filled the little fishing had the door of the safe off and laid on its back on the floor.

" 'You certainly are a handy man with tools, ch!' says the man, and then he asked me to look through the safe and see that there was no money in It, which was quite right. There wasn't any. Dumas' Adaptations.

Alexandre Dumas, who hated the Eng-lish, would have cursed in his breeziest style had he known of the number of unauthorized adaptations and annexations of his 'Three Musketeers' which bristle on our boards. Beerbohm Tree put on the his toric conglomeration in gorgeously pano-ramic style at Her Majesty's, Sidney Grundy, play adapter in ordinary, prepared that version for the stage, and his name appeared in bigger type on the posters than that of Dumas. Dumas was lucky to be mentioned at all. Most of the play tinkers here erase the name of the original author altogether and insers their own. As I walk along the Strand I sometimes think I hear Grundy and Comyns Carr and Ham-ilton and Rose, all the modish native adapters of the day, sing in chorus the good old couplets:
