OUR COUNTRY: First, Last and Forever.

THE men who draw the salaries as a result of party success should of necessity "pay the fiddler."

MR. CARBUNKER is a much better citizen in the role of a philanthropist than in the war paint of an anti-expansionist.

MR. WANAMAKER is so anxious to keep out of politics in Pennsylvania that he has purchased one of the Philadelphia daily newspapers.

OUR Democratic friends, and especially the candidates of that party, are in a serious predicament when even their own partisans admit that the local government under their administration has been a failure in every particular.

SENATOR ALLEN, of Nebraska, is an inveterate smoker of stogies. He never lights a cigar, but always has a waist-coat pocket full of long, slender stogies and dispenses them to his smoking clientele.

THE Texas Legislator is considering a bill which is of interest to liars there and everywhere else. If this become a law, proof that a man has been called a liar will become a full defense in assault and battery.

THE conditions created by the big storm are not easily overcome, but the railways, the trolley system and the other agencies of communication absolutely necessary for the comfort and convenience of the people and the prompt dispatch of business are being rapidly brought back to a state of efficiency, and by to-morrow at best there ought to be a return to usual conditions.

If the Senators who aided Senator Gorman in his fight against Mr. Bryan's leadership of the Democratic party, to the extent of voting with him against the ratification of the treaty of peace, could see themselves as others see them, they would hang their heads for shame.

REPRESENTATIVE-ELECT LONG, of Kansas, who succeeds Jerry Simpson, said of his state: "Kansas is now back in the Republican column, and though I am not an aspirant for prophetic honors, I am free to state that it will remain there. The people have had their fill of populist heresy. In our banks there is more money in proportion to population than in any other state in the Union."

JUDGE BICHTER recently decided, in an opinion bearing upon nominations for Justice of the Peace at Girardville, that the office was a state office, and therefore nomination papers must be filed twenty-eight days before election. And now comes Judge Little, of Bloomsburg, with an opinion holding just the opposite view, taking the position that Justice of the Peace is not a state office within the meaning of the Act of 1897. The layman might well ask, where are we at?

In an interview Lyman J. Gage, Secretary of the Treasury, says that financial reform is neither dead nor sleeping. "The extraordinary prosperity of the government finances and of the business of the country," continued the Secretary, "has combined with the glut of important business in Congress to delay it. But the delay only adds to the sense of its importance, and makes it clearer every day what legislation is needed. I do not look for action at the present session of Congress, but I have no doubt that the next session will give effect to the recommendations of the President, and the Secretary of the Treasury in regard to the retirement of the greenbacks."

TRAVELING IN EUROPE.

Only Those Who Know the Ropes Can Secure Any Comfort. Rich foreigners traveling on the continent enjoy themselves to many annoyances which strike the American first class traveler as entirely unnecessary, but they also take a little comfort in their own way and according to private lights. Barring luxuries to which the great railway corporations have accustomed us, the modes of getting about in European countries are not to be despised. On the other side of the Atlantic, with all their language in their laps and on the seats of the compartment, and because of this time honored custom a regular class of shrewdly from one end of the steel thoroughfare to the other, over on the alert for the subtlest means of getting the most out of the situation in a hard hat.

The reason wealthy persons burden themselves with such things is there is always danger of the larger language being rolled in transfer. A man who ever been able to keep a strap on his or her trunk, porters on the other end, only removing them under the very eyes of the owner. Great thefts have been committed in France and Italy on the different railway lines, either at the station where the luggage was put on board the train or by those officials in charge of it before it reached its destination. No tourist who has thus suffered has been able to get redress, and hence the motive, aware of the weakness of these railway officials, carries the tempting hand bag which in its time may also disappear.

But aside from these inconveniences and also the bother of paying for baggage by weight, the wealthy man who has lived abroad long enough to know the ropes certainly travels in private. His rugs and his cushions are stowed in the baggage compartment, his books, his facilities for taking something nourishing on route, are marvels of entertaining completeness to the American who bounds from New York to San Francisco, and is cared for by a crew of half millionaires to every wack—Boston Herald.

HE DOESN'T PLAY POKER.

The Starting Incident That Ended His Interest in the Game.

"I can't tell any story of big sums staked and lost, nor of any great hands made on freak draws, but I can tell you a true story of why I haven't touched a card in the past 15 years, and why, if I should live to be as old as Methusalem, I will never play again," said Mr. George O. Summers. "You often hear men say they are going to quit, but they never do. I took no vow, made no promise to abstain, but ever since a certain evening in the year 1884 card playing has had no charm for me."

"A party of us had gathered in a friend's room, and the expectation was that it would be a long session, for most of us were poker fiends and, win or lose, would stay till the game broke up. In the crowd was a delicate young fellow, and it happened that about about 3 o'clock a. m. he was a couple of hundred dollars in the evening, and it was evident that nine hours of play had tired him completely out, but being drunk, he didn't want to quit, especially as he was ahead. Seeing he was undergoing punishment, I suggested that it was time to quit. A vigorous protest at once came from the losers."

"But our friend here is fagged out," I said, "and as it is almost day we can adjourn and resume another time."

"Then the others appealed to the young fellow, and with great cheerfulness he answered: 'Yes, I'm willing to play on as long as I can sit in my chair. In fact, I'm willing to agree to play till somebody drops dead.'"

"He meant it as a jest, but severely had uttered the words that I saw him turn ghostly pale. His head fell forward, and before any one could reach out to catch him he had fallen to the floor insensible. The whole party was for a moment overcome with terror, and then we set to work to revive him. He had only fainted from weakness, and yet the incident was so tragic in its nature that I could not have been more impressed by it if he had actually dropped dead. And that is why all the fascination of poker completely left me."—Washington Post.

"Honesty is the Best Policy."

Never was a more pointed saying put into print, and yet to be honest only because it is policy is a poor kind of honesty. Better change "policy" to "principle" and the world will like you better. In the medical world there is one medicine honest for principle's sake—and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It is the specific of the age for all blood troubles. The liver, kidneys and bowels are all toned up by its action as a cleanser and thus good health ensues. It never disappoints.

Scoliosis.—After 20 years of suffering with a cancerous sore on her nose and having it removed by physicians, my mother is happy for being completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It took 11 bottles to accomplish it. Her face is smooth, no more marks on her nose, and she is well. Hood's Sarsaparilla got sound and well. Do not sleep and work well. Mrs. J. J. B. Stocking, Bath, N. Y.

Malaria.—"I was very low with malaria, my doctor did not help me and I died because I would not stop working. Hood's Sarsaparilla got sound and well. Do not sleep and work well. Mrs. J. J. B. Stocking, Bath, N. Y.

Ecstasy.—"My mother's face was covered with sores, and her feet were swollen. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured her. We kept it on hand and recommended it to all our friends. Hood's Sarsaparilla got sound and well. Do not sleep and work well. Mrs. J. J. B. Stocking, Bath, N. Y.

Sick Headache.—"I am now 22. Since I was 8 years old I suffered constantly with severe headaches, and I was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It took 11 bottles to accomplish it. Her face is smooth, no more marks on her nose, and she is well. Hood's Sarsaparilla got sound and well. Do not sleep and work well. Mrs. J. J. B. Stocking, Bath, N. Y.

Stomach Trouble.—"Two years suffering with stomach trouble made me weak, run down, and I was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It took 11 bottles to accomplish it. Her face is smooth, no more marks on her nose, and she is well. Hood's Sarsaparilla got sound and well. Do not sleep and work well. Mrs. J. J. B. Stocking, Bath, N. Y.

What Shall We Do.

A serious and dangerous disease prevails in this country, dangerous because so deceptive. It comes on so slowly yet surely that it is often first seated before we are aware of it.

The name of this disease which may be divided into three distinct stages is, First, Kidney trouble, indicated by pain in the back, rheumatism, lameness, frequent desire to urinate often with a burning sensation, the flow of urine being copious or scant with strong odor.

If allowed to advance, this reaches the Second stage, or bladder trouble, with heavy pain in the abdomen low down between the navel and the water passage, increasing desire to urinate, with scalding sensation in passing, small quantities being passed with difficulty, sometimes painful to draw it off with instruments. If uric acid or gravel has formed, it will prove dangerous if neglected.

The Third stage is Bright's Disease. There is comfort in knowing that Dr. Kilmer, the great kidney and bladder specialist, has discovered a Remedy famous for its marvelous cures of the most distressing cases and known as Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

It is sold by all druggists. As a proof of the wonderful virtues of this great discovery, Swamp-Root, a sample bottle and book of valuable information will be sent absolutely free by mail on application to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing kindly mention that you read this liberal offer in the Shenandoah Herald.

SHOEMAKERS' WAX.

Experiments With This Substance That Will Surprise Every One.

One of the most apt illustrations ever made by Lord Kelvin was his likening the luminiferous ether to a mass of shoemakers' wax. What Lord Kelvin said of shoemakers' wax may be tested by any boy in a manner that will astonish his playmates. First let it be said that the ether penetrates all spaces. It is as rigid as steel and yet so flexible that it does not retard the passage of planets through space in the least. It is an invisible substance which travels in waves through all things. Now, to illustrate the nature of such a paradoxical substance, let us see how it is used. Where, and at last concluded that shoemakers' wax represented it best. He made tests and this is what he found:

He melted some wax in a common glass tumbler. After it had hardened he tried to thrust a lead pencil through it. It would not go. Then he placed a coin on the surface of the wax and left it there for several days. When he again visited it, the coin had sunk to the bottom of the glass. The wax had closed over it and by lifting up the glass and looking through the bottom he could see the coin lying there. Had the wax been as deep as a well the coin would have gone on sinking until it reached the bottom. This proved that the wax would conform only to very slow movements. If he had tried to push it too fast, it would have resisted him.

An idea struck the scientist. If the wax acted like this toward the coin, how would it treat an object which floated? He accordingly placed a cork in a tumbler and poured hot shoemakers' wax upon it. To his surprise he found that the wax had hardened with the cork at the bottom. Yet when Lord Kelvin looked at the bottom of the glass in a day or two he found the cork had disappeared. It was somewhere in the mass of wax and probably rising very slowly, but surely, toward the top. Sure enough, after a given period of time the cork peeped above the surface of the hard wax and finally it rose to a point where it remained half imbedded in the wax, just as it would have done in a glass of water. It rose no higher than this, however, and a corkswimmer probably would not have pulled it from the wax. Yet its own buoyancy had raised it up from the bottom, through what seemed an impenetrable mass of wax.

This, in fact, is the peculiarity of shoemakers' wax; that it resists all sudden or quick movements, but is highly susceptible to very slow and prolonged pressure. If you pressed a flatiron hard down on a lump of wax on a table it is probable you would make no impression on it, but if you left that iron resting on the wax for a day or two, you would find the lump flattened out under the iron. So curious is this property of the wax that tuning forks have been cast from pieces of it. These forks were capable of vibration, giving a musical note and being set going by vibration for another tuning fork, yet when one of them was laid across the open mouth of a jar it slowly collapsed and fell into the jar in a shapeless, sticky mass. Any boy may perform these experiments, and the lesson in physics to be got therefrom is no less valuable than the amusement which the performance affords.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

BOLTERS BLOCK ALL LEGISLATION.

Serious Condition of Affairs in the General Assembly at Harrisburg.

THE QUAY MEN ARE FIRM.

The Democrats Are Tired of Being Bounced by the Wannamakers and Demand That They Elect Jenks Senator or Take the Consequences.

Harrisburg, Feb. 14.—While the situation in the Pennsylvania senatorial deadlock remains practically unchanged, the friends of Senator Quay are as confident as ever that he will be his own successor. Even the bolting Republicans admit that they cannot name a senator, and the only thing they can possibly do is to prevent the election of anyone by keeping up the deadlock. They declare they will never go to a Democrat. It is this declaration that has made the independent element among the Democrats indignant, and many of them have publicly proclaimed that they will have nothing to do with the bolting Republicans. These Democrats say they would rather vote for Senator Quay, who has always treated Democrats with respect, though fighting them manfully to the bitter end, and that in so doing they would have the support of their Democratic constituents.

REGULAR REPUBLICANS CONFERENCE.

A conference of supporters of Senator Quay among the members of the senate and house was held a few nights ago in the room of the committee on judiciary general for the purpose of exchanging views on the situation and listening to an address by John P. Elkin, chairman of the Republican state committee. It was an informal meeting, but nearly every member of the general assembly who had been voting for Senator Quay was present.

Chairman Elkin's remarks were received with much enthusiasm. He said that he was pleased to address the men who had been standing so loyally and manfully by the name of the Republican party for United States senator. They had, by weeks of association, become better acquainted, and he complimented them upon the compact and thorough organization. Since the Republican caucus had made him the nominee of the Republican party for United States senator the personality of Senator Quay became a secondary consideration to the men who believed in Republican principles and the maintenance of a party organization to sustain and defend them. He said he had been in conference with the members of the committee on the re-election of Senator Quay, and that he was satisfied that opinion was held by every man present.

In response to a number of letters sent to Republicans in different counties of the state requesting them to urge their representatives for the nomination of the Republican caucus, Chairman Elkin said he had received the most cordial and enthusiastic letters sustaining the action of those who have stood by the party nominee, and commending the party services and the ability of the Republican caucus. "A compilation of these letters," said Chairman Elkin, "would make a testimonial of which any man might be proud."

The presence of Congressman-elect Joseph C. Sibley, who, with cyclonic force, has been elected to the senate district in this state on different occasions, has been an inspiration to the Democratic members of the legislature. Sibley does not propose that the Democracy shall be a tall to the Plinn-Martin-Wanamaker kite. He wants the Republican bolters to get down to business and give the Democrats an ultimatum. He says John Wannamaker has been preaching reform from Lake Erie to the Delaware. If Senator Quay is such a bad man as Wannamaker would have him appear he has an opportunity to demonstrate the integrity of his profession and elect George A. Jenks or some other clean Democrat. Sibley says the 52 bolting Republicans can do nothing but elect a Democrat. He demands that they act promptly or take the consequences. The bolting Democrats have been playing into the hands of Martin and Plinn, but Sibley says he wants nothing to do with them if they will not support a Democrat.

Legislation continues to be blocked by the filibustering tactics of the Republican bolters and the Quaffy Democrats against the passage of the McCarrall jury bill. Until this bill is either passed or defeated every other measure back of it on the calendar must be blocked. This is a bold and reckless waste of the public time and money. The state has already lost thousands of dollars through these dilatory movements.

The state has already lost thousands of dollars through these dilatory movements.

SENTIMENT GROWING.

Sentiment is growing stronger every day, not only among the members, but with the people, that the McCarrall bill is a just and proper measure and ought to become a law. While a majority of the bolting Republicans in the house can be counted to vote against the bill in the hope that its defeat might in some way be to the prejudice of Senator Quay in the proceedings in the Philadelphia court, they are becoming daily impressed with the fact that the Democratic side of the house cannot be lined up to help them in their personal crusade of spite and hatred against the senior senator in a matter of this character.

With few exceptions the most influential Democrats in the state have followed the lead of former United States Senator Wallace, ex-Governor Pattison and others who have stood for successful and progressive Democracy, and a ringing declaration from former Attorney General W. U. Hensel, Congressman Joseph C. Sibley and former Democratic State Chairman Robert E. Wright in favor of the passage of the McCarrall bill meet with expressions of approval from Democrats in the legislature.

SIBLEY FOR FAIR PLAY.

Shortly after his arrival here, Congressman Sibley was asked his views on the McCarrall bill, said: "I believe the McCarrall bill should pass. I am not a lawyer. I do not profess to have a knowledge of the subject from a legal standpoint, but from what I understand it was the infamous Jeffries who misinterpreted the present law under which we are governed, with a view to insure the certain conviction of all enemies of the king. If I am correctly informed there is but one other state in the Union that still has a similar law upon its statute books. My personal opinion is that the measure is just, and that it will be beneficial in its tendencies, and if so, the Democrats should support it without respect to who may be the beneficiary. It is not in keeping with the dignity or standing of a great party to assume the position that a proposed law is just and needed and then antagonize its passage because possibly one man to whom they are opposed politically may become a beneficiary of the law. To do that would be to drag a big party down to a high plane down to a petty law level. Senator Quay is entitled to a fair and impartial trial. If acquitted he should be respected accordingly, and if convicted he should be properly punished. No honorable man who has taken the oath as a member of the legislature, in my opinion, would be justified in opposing a measure, even if an enemy should be benefited by it, if he believed the provisions to be just and proper. He should support it loyally as a man if he thought it to be right. If he believed it to be wrong he should oppose it. No one is justified in making a political issue out of a moral question."

Miss Sadie Wertheim, age 14, of Toledo, O., was the winner of the first prize for execution on the violin at the Brussels Conservatory of music. German critics say she is a wonderful player. It is the greatest distinction to be given in anything. For this in statesmanship literature, athletics, science and art, men and women put forth their greatest efforts. Washington was said to be "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen." It is a great thing to be first. Nothing is of more value to mankind and brings greater happiness than a good remedy. Many things will relieve but the one that will cure is best. Brazilian Balm is such a remedy. Tens of thousands have found that it is the only thing that would cure Catarrh and Asthma. For 15 yrs. it has never failed in a single case to cure Asthma, and its record has been as wonderful in Catarrh. Cases that had, to all appearances, run into Consumption, or where the nostrils were entirely stopped up where the poisonous pus had eaten holes into the throat an inch deep, or where the stomach had become ulcerated and raw from swallowing the germ-laden matter, were all permanently cured. Such a record, unknown to any other remedy, justly entitles the Brazilian Balm to the first place in the regard of the American people. There are 20,000,000 Catarrh victims and countless Asthma sufferers in this country, all of whom can be cured with Brazilian Balm. A $1.00 bottle of Brazilian Balm contains a month's treatment for catarrh or asthma, and for 6 months we will wrap each $1.00 bottle a month's treatment of Toxicola Tablets, free. Toxicola is the best tonic and nerve tonic following the germ-laden matter, and strength builders known to science. This is the greatest offer ever made. Ask your druggist and take no substitute. B.
