PENNSYLVANIA'S SCHOOLS.

Governor Stone May Be Compelled to Reduce Their Appropriation. Harrisburg, April 24.—Governor Stone said in an interview that in disposing of the bills filed with him by the last legislature he would keep the appropriations within the limits of the state revenue, and at the same time make provision for part payment during the next two years of the floating debt.

He expects to obtain accurate information how much money the state will have with which to pay the appropriations made by the legislature before considering any bills. The governor says that the first class of appropriations that should receive preference are those made for the expenses of the state government, including the National Guard and the various departments. Second in merit are the state insane asylums, the penitentiaries, the schools for the feeble minded children, the schools for the deaf, the dumb and the blind.

The third class of appropriations which the governor says have a claim upon the state are the private hospitals, which the executive believes cannot continue the excellent work they are doing without state aid. He declares that these meritorious institutions should be cared for and rendered state aid before the public schools are cared for.

He said that the appropriations of Governor Stone adds, "may be classified as appropriations for educational purposes, and first and foremost before them all I think the appropriation to the public schools should receive attention, and that it should be given, even to the exclusion of other educational institutions, from whatever money may be left. I shall deeply regret if I am compelled to reduce the appropriation of $11,000,000 to the public schools, but if I am compelled to do so I shall not hesitate to assume the responsibility. It was the duty of the legislature to provide sufficient revenue to enable me to approve this item. I make this announcement now so that what criticism and argument is to be made with reference to my contemplated course may be brought to my notice, so that I may have the benefit of it before action."

A DISASTROUS ENCOUNTER.

But It Ended, as Usual, With an American Victory.

SEVEN OF OUR MEN KILLED.

Colonel Stotsenberg Fell at the Head of His Regiment.

FORTY-FOUR AMERICANS WOUNDED.

The Filipinos Fired Upon Our Advancing Troops From Trenches—They Were Finally Put to Flight, Leaving Thirteen Dead Behind Them—The Americans Now Hold the Town of Quingua, Four Miles Northeast of Malolos.

Manila, April 24.—In an encounter with the Filipinos yesterday near Quingua, about four miles northeast of Malolos, seven Americans were killed and 44 wounded.

The following were killed: Colonel John M. Stotsenberg, of the First Nebraska regiment, formerly of the Sixth cavalry; Lieutenant Lester E. Sisson, of the same regiment; two privates of the Nebraska regiment; three privates of the Fourth cavalry. Most of the wounded belong to the First Nebraska regiment. The Filipinos retreated with small loss.

The engagement developed into a disastrous, though successful, fight. The insurgents had a horsehoe trench, about a mile long, circling a rice field, on the edge of a wood.

Captain Bell, with 40 cavalrymen, encountered a strong outpost. One of his men was killed and five were wounded by a volley.

The Americans retired, carrying their wounded under fire and with great difficulty, being closely pursued, a fog enabling the enemy to creep up to them.

Two men who were carrying a comrade were shot in the arms, but they continued with their burden.

Captain Bell sent for reinforcements to rescue the bodies of the killed cavalrymen, and a battalion of the Nebraska regiment, under Major Mufford, arrived and advanced until checked by volleys from the enemy's trenches.

The Americans lay about 800 yards from the trenches, behind rice furrows, under fire, for two hours.

Several were struck, one dying from the effects of the heat, as they lay there waiting for the artillery to come up.

Finally the Second battalion arrived, and then Colonel Stotsenberg, who had spent the night with his family at Manila, came upon the field. The men immediately recognized him and raised a cheer.

The loss to the Nebraska regiment in the campaign is the greatest sustained by any regiment, and yesterday's disaster has greatly added to the loss of men who promise to take fierce vengeance in the next fight.

Colonel Stotsenberg, deciding to charge as the cheapest way out of the difficulty, led the attack at the head of his regiment. He fell with a bullet in his breast, dying instantly, about 200 yards from the breastworks.

Lieutenant Sisson fell with a bullet in his heart, the bullet striking him near the picture of a girl suspended by a ribbon from his neck.

In the meantime the artillery had arrived and shelled the trenches. The Filipinos stood until the Nebraska troops were right on the trenches, and then they bolted to the second line of entrenchments, a mile back.

The Nebraska regiment lost two privates killed and had many wounded. The Iowa regiment had several wounded.

The Utah regiment had one officer and three men wounded.

Thirteen dead Filipinos were found in the trenches. Their loss was comparatively small on account of their safe shelter.

The Americans carried the second trench with small loss, and are now holding the town.

Colonel Stotsenberg had won a reputation as one of the bravest fighters in the army. He always led his regiment, and had achieved remarkable popularity with his men since the war began, although during his first colonely the volunteers, who were not used to the rigid discipline of the regular troops, thought him a hard officer. Indeed, they resented his methods so bitterly that they procured the passage of a resolution of censure against him through the Nebraska legislature. Once they became engaged in actual warfare, however, the merits of his course became so apparent that in response to a very strong demand from the people of the state and the soldiers themselves the resolution of censure, by a formal vote, was expunged from the legislative records. In the meantime Colonel Stotsenberg had endeavored himself to every officer and man in the regiment, and brought the command to a high state of efficiency.
