Kills Two Persons and Fatally Burns Two Others.

OVER A SCORE WERE INJURED.

The Force of the Explosion Was So Terrific That Two Adjoining Buildings Were Demolished-Marvelous Escape of a Man Handling the Benzot

Philadelphia, April 26.-By the exlosion of 75 gallons of benzol in the laboratory of Frank H. Fleer & Co., manufacturers of chewing gum, at Nos. 2343 and 2345 Callowhill street, yeaterday two men were killed and over a score of others were more or less injured by flying debris. The dead are:
Walter Manwaring, assistant superintendent, and Charles McKinley, engineer. Of those who were injured Harry Randall, another employe, was the most seriously hurt, but he will recover. As Mrs. Givison, with her child in her arms, was hurriedly leaving her home, which was directly on site the laboratory, her dress caught fire from a flying ember and she and the child were badly burned. Their recovery is doubtful.

The explosion was a terrific one, and for a time caused the wildest excite-ment. No less than 100 buildings in the vicinity, most of them very small dwellings, were damaged.

The laboratory building was a two story structure. At the time of the explosion there were only four men working in the building, who were pre-paring a mixture for the making of vanilline. The doors to the room in which they were working were closed, but the fumes from the benzol in some manner reached the furnace in the on sale several cases of cotton next room, and the explosion instantly followed. Manwaring was instantly killed and Mckinley so badly hurt that he died several hours later in a hospital. Randall's escape was remark-able. He was blown through the roof and landed on an adjoining build-ing. At first it was thought he was dead, but after treatment in the hos-pital he regained consciousness.
