His Hair Has Turned Gray and His Long Stionce Seems to Have Affected His Speech-An Affecting Meeting Between Man and Wife, Parts, July 1.-Captain Coffinieres de Nordeck, commander of the French cruiser Sfax, which brought Captain Dreyfus to France, said in an interview that he was struck by the Im mense power of self control displayed by Captain Dreyfus during the voyage. The prisoner's attitude through 'one of irony and disdain." He had been suffering severely from seasick-ness when he was transferred to the Sfax, but he walked with firm tread, and during the entire trip nover show-ed a sign of weakness or nervousness. Captain Dreyfus was ignorant of the fact that a new court martial awaited him, and remained in ignorance dur-ing the first part of the voyage. When be was finally informed not a muscle of his face moved. He merely said I have no ill will toward anybody, shall be glad to re-enter the army, which I have never ceased to love." He did not allude to the subject again during the voyage. Most of the time he passed in reading.

The captain's composure is the theme of all tongues. It seems that in the train one of the officers began to read a newspaper, but although Drey fus had not seen a paper since he left France he did not display the slightest interest. He speeks very little, and seems to suffer a partial paralysis of speech, owing to his long silence. Even on board the Sfax he had to communicate with the officers by writing.

He is credited on good authority with the following:
