A PAINTER'S PERIL.

Suspended in Mid-Air by a Scaffold Rope Breaking.

While John Haines and Francis Deegan, painters employed by Thomas H. Snyder, were at work on the Shenandoah Manufacturing Company's building, on North Emmerick street, this morning, Haines had a very narrow escape from serious injury, if not death.

Haines was on a scaffold suspended from the roof of the building to the third story, when one of the ropes fastened to the spreader torn apart and released one side of the scaffold. The pots of paint fell to the pavement and Haines, who fortunately had a good hold of a swinging rope, was left dangling in the air with the scaffold, forty feet above the ground.

Haines was released from his perilous position by Deegan, who took the former in at one of the third story windows. Deegan also had a narrow escape, as he was about to step from a window to the scaffold when the rope gave way.

Badly Burned.
William Sands, Jr., a 14-year-old boy of Wm. Penn, was terribly burned while playing with blasting powder. He, with other boys, had built a brush fire and they were throwing small portions of the powder into it to see it explode. One boy threw a large quantity into the fire and the return blast caught the powder Sands had in a tomato can. The explosion that followed burned Sands' hands and face in a terrible manner. It was thought he would lose the sight of one of his eyes, but better hopes are now entertained.

WILLING TO PAY FOR IT.

What Uncle Bill Wanted the Newspaper Publisher to Do.

A number of newspaper men were exchanging reminiscences a few days ago in a Court street inn. One of them, by the way, was an ex-publisher—that is to say, he once owned and edited a paper in the upper section of the state. One of his subscribers was William Makropus, "Chockery" Willington, whose neighbors called him "Uncle Bill" to save time and labor.

"One day Uncle Bill walked into my office," said the former publisher. "He placed his whip in a corner and removed his hat. He asked if I was the editor. I pleaded guilty. 'Shucks,' said he, 'I am glad to know ye. When I was a young fellow, I used to do some writin' myself.'"

"Uncle Bill lapsed into silence and did some solid thinking for several minutes. Then he resumed the conversation. He said he liked the appearance of the Banner of Freedom mighty well and hoped it was not only bringing me fame, but money also. Naturally my bosom swelled with pride. The old man said he had only a few minutes to spare, and, before leaving, he wished to suggest to me, I supposed he was about to spring a little poem which he had dashed off all by himself, but that wasn't the case. Uncle Bill said: "My son, I want to ask you a special favor. My eyes are not as strong as they were, and I would like to have you print my copy of the paper in a type two or three sizes larger than you use in the regular edition. Now, mind, I don't want you to do this for nothing. I'm willing to pay for it. Here's the money, and if that isn't enough let me know when my subscription is due again and I'll pay what's owing."

"The old man dove his right hand into his pocket, fished out a silver half dollar and plunked it on my table, saying: "There's the money. If that isn't enough to cover the extra expense, let me know when I call in next spring, and I'll make it good. I'm willing to pay for any little favors." Before I could explain the impossibility of his scheme he jumped into his buggy and started off for Deep Hollow."—Brooklyn Times.

20 MILLION
Catarrh Victims

Dr. Jackson points to the startling fact that there are now 20 million Catarrh victims in this country and the number rapidly increasing. It is already become the National Disease. Are we to become a nation of Catarrhites? It looks like it.

The aboriginal Indians are said not to have known the disease. That proves it is not caused by climate and must have been imported. Its growth was slow but persistent. Forty years ago there were less than 40,000 cases in the U. S., to-day there are 20 million. Soon there will be 30 million. Where is it to end? It is spreading by contagion. The catarrh of the bladder, urethra, prostate, and rectum, is everywhere. A germ (microbe) passes it around by contagion. The catarrh of the bladder and urethra, and the catarrh of the rectum, are the most common. They are the most dangerous. They are the most painful. They are the most incurable. They are the most fatal. They are the most common. They are the most dangerous. They are the most painful. They are the most incurable. They are the most fatal.
