A Long Sentence. The tribunal of Modica, in the Sicilian province of Syracuse, recently pronounced a sentence which is declared to have no parallel in the judicial annals of Italy, as it has probably none in those of any other country.

A man named Lupo Salvatore of Comiso had passed himself off as an advocate and had with consummate skill committed 63 different acts of serious fraud, in which he succeeded in using the machinery of the law. He had forged the signatures of the president and judges of the high court, of the king's procurator and of the chancellor of the court. From this last mentioned official he had even, with splendid audacity, stolen for a short time the seal of the chancery, which he needed to give effect to his fraudulent documents.

The sentence is even more remarkable than the crime. Salvatore was condemned to three years' imprisonment on each of the 63 cases, which brings the total of the sentence to 189 years, though the longest incarceration which the convict can be legally made to undergo is 30 years. The penalty inflicted is in each case the minimum for the offense. Had the court decided upon the maximum, which is ten years, the aggregate term of imprisonment would have been 630 years.
