AMONG the new rules for the government of the Republican party adopted by the state convention is one which provides that "The delegates to the state conventions shall over 1,200 signatures. be chosen in the manner in which candidates for the General Assembly are nominated, or in accordance with the party rules in force in the respective counties." There might just as well be no rule at all on this subject as such a sip-shod one as the above, which practically means that the several counties may select the state.

A United Party.

The Republican convention at Harrisburg nominated candidates and adopte a platform which will receive the hearty endorsement of the Republican voters of the state

For Justice of the Supreme Court the convention named the Hon. J. Hay Brown, of Lancaster, who was clearly the choice of all factions of the party. Mr. Brown is a lawyer of marked ability, and is eminently fitted for the honorable position to which he has been nominated.

For Judge of the Superior Court the convention chose Josiah R. Adams, from Philadelphia, whose nomination is largely to be attributed to Mayor Ashbridge, and is a further energing out of the harmony program in the politics of that city.

For State Treasurer the convention unanimously nominated Lieut. Col. James E. Barnett, who was second in command to the lamented Col. Hawkins, and who helped lend the gallant 10th Pennsylvania Volunteers in their brilliant exploits in the Philippine

Col. Barnett's nomination is a tribute of the people to the soldiers who have been fighting for the flag in the far-off Pacific. He has proven himself to be in time of peace a citizen whose personal character is above reproach, and in time of wara patriot who was willing to yield his life, if necessary, in defense of the honor of

There is no dissatisfaction in the state this year, and the party presents standard bearers who will attract many Democratic supporters.
