CRUSHED BY CARS.

Two Mangled Victims Admitted to the Miners' Hospital.

Thomas, 10 year old son of William Goodrich, of North flowers street, had his left leg crushed by a coal train at the Main street crossing of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at about eight o'clock last night, while attempting to jump on a car. The victim was removed to his home and later taken to Ashland on a P. & E. train. At the Miners' Hospital the limb was amputated about an inch above the knee. The hospital officials stated to day that the boy's condition is very good, and that he will recover.

George Kozetko, a laborer 30 years old, was caught under a trip of coal cars at the Henry Clay colliery, Shamokin, yesterday and today mangled. He is at the Miners' hospital and his condition is very serious. His right leg is crushed from the knee down; his left leg is broken in two places above the ankle; his collar bone is broken, and there are contusions over the entire body.

NEW RAILS ARRIVE.

The Schuylkill Traction Company's Work Now Expected to Begin.

A car load of rails consigned to the Schuylkill Traction Company arrived at the Pennsylvania railroad station. They are intended for the re-laying of the company's track on Main street and the delay in their arrival has held back the street paving work. It is now expected that the company will proceed with and complete its work, so that the paving work may be started. The rails that have arrived are of the seven-inch pattern. They are very heavy and forty-three of them constitute the car load. They were shipped from Elyria, Ohio. Another car load of rails is expected from Johnstown, Pa.

He remained in the army until last spring when he received an honorable discharge and immediately re-enlisted at Philadelphia. He was then transferred to Manila. The Circus Pleased All.
The last two performances of Welsh Bros. circus yesterday afternoon and evening were witnessed by such large audiences that the management was compelled to increase the selling of tickets. The performances were fully up to the expectations of the public, and the Welsh Bros. have sustained a reputation among the people of Shenandoah as reliable entertainers. A notable feature of the closing entertainment was the appearance of our local acrobats, Messrs. Peeler, Cadden and Gossley. Their debut was greeted with an ovation and every feature of their turn was heartily applauded.

Mrs. Buchanan Returns.
Mrs. Thomas Buchanan, wife of the South Main street jeweler, returned yesterday from her thirteen weeks trip to England and Scotland. On her return passage to America Mrs. Buchanan had an experience she is not likely to forget. She was a passenger on board the "City of Rome," which, during its voyage, crashed into an iceberg in a fog. The big vessel's bow slid up on the iceberg a distance of twenty feet and its immense weight snapped off that portion of the ice on which the vessel was resting. There were 1,300 passengers on board. The vessel slid off the berg without sustaining damage.

VETERANS' PARADE!

Twenty Thousand Grand Army Heroes March in Philadelphia.

REVIEWED BY THE PRESIDENT.

The Chief Magistrate of the Nation Also Visited the War Veterans of the North Atlantic Squadron and Was Given an Enthusiastic Reception.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—Of the 50,000 veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic now in this city 20,000 participated in yesterday's parade, which was reviewed by President McKinley at this city hall. The parade was witnessed by nearly a hundred thousand people, who lined the streets along the three and a half mile line of march and crowded every window and other point of vantage from which a view of the great concourse could be had. The people were packed in such solid masses that even breathing was difficult. As a result of the crush about 400 men, women and children were overcome and taken from the crowd to various hospitals.

With President McKinley and Mayor Ashbridge there were on the reviewing stand the admirals Melville, Rear Admiral Sampson and the officers of the fleet now in the harbor, together with Secretary of War Root, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Jacob G. Schurman, of the Philippine commission; Presidential Secretary J. Addison Porter and Assistant Secretary George B. Cortelyou.

The parade was six hours and ten minutes passing the reviewing stand. After a portion of the department of Pennsylvania had passed, these veterans bringing up the rear, the president led to visit Admiral Sampson's feet, Governor Stone reviewing the remainder of the procession.

At the head of each organization marched military bands and drum corps, and as the war scarred veterans moved proudly along the streets a sea of handkerchiefs and small flags waved in admiration and welcome.

When the Ohio posts appeared the aged paraders became wild with enthusiasm. One veteran broke ranks and standing before his comrades shouted "The chief honors for the biggest man on earth, Major William McKinley, of Ohio." This invitation for cheers was followed by a mighty roar, which was echoed and re-echoed among the spectators for blocks.

As the veterans passed in review the president stood smiling and bowing, and on numerous occasions waved his hand to the more enthusiastic of the marchers. When the torn battle flags were dipped in salute he joined in the applause by clapping his hands.

No feature of the long parade inspired half the enthusiasm in the ranks of the marching veterans as did the singing of patriotic airs by 3,000 school children, who occupied seats upon the immense stand that faced the marching hosts as they came down Broad street to the public square. The children, attired in blue formed in huge outline the letters G. A. R. Between these letters those in red cloaks were seated in the form of monasteries, while a thousand or more who were attired in pressed white formed the background, which brought out the letters and the stones in vivid relief.

As the head of the parade approached in sight Enoch W. Pearson, director of music in the public schools, who had carefully trained the children, arose and gave the signal. Simultaneously from the thousands of throats came the first strains of "Auld Lang Syne." The mighty chorus gained in volume until the shrill echoes of the old air seemed to ring from the roofs of the tall buildings. As the head of the parade swung around the Masonic Temple the song was changed to "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and again to "Marching Through Georgia." "The Battle Cry of Freedom," "Guard the Flag," "America," "Home, Sweet Home," "Flag of the Free" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic" were all rendered in a stirring manner. The grim old veterans were inspired by the youthful chorus, and many of them passed the stand with uncovered heads and joined in the chorus.

Before the parade of the old soldiers president McKinley and his staff, together with Admiral Sampson and other officers of the fleet now lying in the Delaware, drove over the greater part of the route. Though the hour was early, there were already many people on the street, and the reception accorded them was of that hearty and enthusiastic character always accorded the president in Philadelphia.

After leaving the reviewing stand the president was entertained at luncheon in the rooms of the department of public works.

The visit to the feet was decided upon yesterday morning when Admiral Sampson called upon the president at the Hotel Walton. It was the intention to have the chief executive to remain here until Friday to review the next parade and visit the squadron, but the president's desire to return to Washington last night caused a rearrangement in the program. The visit of the president to the squadron proved to be the greatest marine spectacle ever seen here. It was the intention to have Mr. McKinley visit only the New York, but he grew so enthusiastic over the great fighters that he suddenly made up his mind to inspect all of them. Accordingly he visited the flagship New York, cruiser Brooklyn, and the battleships Indiana, Massachusetts and Texas. It was his intention to also visit the cruiser Detroit, but much to his regret he was unable to do so on account of lack of time. There was almost a continuous roar of gun during the one and three-quarter hours that he took to inspect the vessels. In all 462 guns were fired by the squadron in president's salutes.

The return of the president to the shore was an inspiring one. The Texas was moored furthest up the river, and the presidential party had to pass each of the great vessels on its return to shore. The river was alive with craft crowded to their utmost capacity, and a great noise was being made. As the barge neared the flagship the signal was given to salute, and six big ships again belched forth a terrific salute.

Every man and officer on the ships stood at attention, and the bands added to the din by again playing "Hail to the Chief." The barge was stopped while the salute was being fired, and after it had ceased the twelve brawny sailors pulled for the shore, closing one of the most patriotic scenes that has ever taken place on the river.

Last night the president attended the Grand Army campfire at the Academy of Music, and made a feeling speech of greeting to his comrades in the civil war. Later he was the guest of honor at a banquet in Odd Fellows' Temple, tendered by Meade Post, of this city, to the Lafayette Post, of New York and the Kingsley Post, of Boston. Here, too, he made a brief speech. Secretary Root and Professor Schurman also spoke.

The presidential party retired from the banquet hall and drove directly to the Pennsylvania railroad station, where the party boarded a special train and left for Washington at 11:30 o'clock.

FELL INTO AN AMBUSH.

Three Men Terribly Slashed and One of Them May Die.

John Martz and John Kerstetter, Pennsylvania Railroad employes from Shamokin, and Thomas Bart were attacked on the street at Shamokin by three unknown men, who slashed them with knives about the face and body. They fought as best they could, but were badly used up when help came, and their assailants fled.

They were attacked 11 times, and a thrust in his right kidney will likely prove fatal. His companions were cut worse about the face and neck, especially Bart.

That Dandy Council.

That dandy Council, which governs the county seat, is again displaying symptoms of a hysterical spell. Evidence is accumulating that the Bell Telephone Company, for some unknown reason, has sufficient influence among the "noblemen of Potsville" to keep out competing telephone lines, although the people of that place are clamoring for cheaper rates.

The Schuylkill Telephone Company has appeared before Potsville's town council repeatedly during the past three or four years, and on each occasion their application for right of way has been pigeon-holed. They have finally succeeded in getting the ordinance to second reading, and it was to have been taken up for final action at last night's meeting of Council. But that hysterical spell again appeared, and the chairman of the ordinance committee asked "that action be postponed until next meeting," for what reason is not plain. They express a desire, however, to meet the officers of the independent telephone company.

GOOD WORK BY THE GRAND JURY.

A Big Batch of True Bills Handed to the Court and Trials Are Rapidly Pressed.—Peter Lutwin Sentenced For Lockup Breaking.

Pottsville, Pa., Sept. 6.—Peter Lutwin was found guilty before Judge Henning of jail breaking. Officer Martin Foyle, of Shenandoah, appearing in the role of prosecutor, M. M. Burke was attorney for the prosecution and Wm. Durkin represented the defense. After the jury was drawn, Lutkin withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to pay a fine of 6 cents and costs and to serve ten months in prison from date. While Officer Foyle was taking him to prison Lutwin lost control of himself and made a series of threats against the Shenandoah police force. It was his same weakness for talking that prevented his enlistment during the Spanish-American war. While with the recruits and before taking the oath he boasted of certain escapades and the recruiting officer promptly rejected him.
