OUR COUNTRY: First, Last and Forever.

The Democrats of Luzerne county have endorsed the Republican judicial candidate, and that is to their credit.

The wise merchant advertises his wares in a newspaper of large circulation. The Herald, as everybody knows, is in that class.

ONE Mr. Lynch, of Philadelphia, contracted to furnish Williamsport with cheap street lights. But he has mysteriously disappeared.

The Lenahans downed ex-State Chairman Garman and his followers in Luzerne county. And still they tell us the "gold standard" Democrats have no poll!

TO-DAY is one of the most important holidays on the Jewish calendar. All orthodox Jews refrained from doing any kind of business and spent the day in fasting and praying.

The question of cheaper telephone rates is now up to Pottsville. The Councilmen at the county seat should shake off that hypnotic spell and be contented on the side of progress.

ANY one glancing over the returns made by the grand jury might conclude that this county is a colony of Austria-Hungary. The amount of business contributed to the criminal courts by Hungarians and Poles who occupy in our county's population. What is the remedy?

EASTERN people have no idea of the magnitude of the parochial school system in some of the Western States. In the city of Milwaukee, for instance, there is more than one pupil in the church schools for every two in the public schools. The aggregate of children in the parochial schools of the place is more than 30,000. In many of the country districts the proportion is greater. There are counties where the attendance at the church schools outnumbers that of the public school. The German and Polish Catholic and the Lutheran parents pay their share of the school taxes, and then pay for the support of the parish schools.

AND now we have a statement from Mr. Andrew Carnegie, that "if he goes into politics it will be in Washington, denouncing the betrayal of American principles in the Philippines." This we presume is a threat that he will go to Congress, and there fire off his broadsides against President McKinley and the Republican party. It is to be regretted that he is not a native born American citizen. In that case he might be able to secure second place on the ticket with Mr. Bryan, who is an ardent advocate of the same doctrine upheld by Mr. Carnegie. Then, too, the size of his barrel would be a great attraction for our friends the enemy.

A CENTURY ago Voltaire denounced the methods of French courts, particularly the absence of rules of evidence. One of the cases he cited was that of a peasant arrested for murder. His identification was essential, and the principal witness for the government failed to identify him. "Thank God!" exclaimed the prisoner, "he does not recognize me." That fervent ejection of gratitude created in the mind of the judge the belief that the prisoner was guilty, and he was broken at the wheel. Yet the evidence was that the man could not be identified, and after he was judicially murdered it was conclusively shown that he was innocent. Neither Voltaire nor the Revolution worked any essential improvement in this respect; there are still no rules of evidence, and if there were a military court would make poor work of administering them.

turn to the great trade pulse of the country, which was to be felt in the Centennial City so acutely in this Exposition. "While Philadelphia," he said, "could not claim this as an individual and local enterprise she could claim that as the city of the great Centennial exhibition of '76 she had an appropriate claim to be allowed to extend her hospitality, as well as her commercial and trade aid, to this great demonstration of American industry and progress."

The mayor's speech was appropriately followed by a chorus, "Untold Ye Fortalls," at the instigation of which the orator of the day, Hon. W. P. Hepburn, chairman of the inter-state commerce committee of the house of representatives, was introduced. His address was a masterly presentation from the standpoint of a statesman who has had the opportunity and possesses the ability to intelligently study the subject of the influence of American commerce and American industry and the growth of American methods upon the current history of the world.

Mr. Hepburn's address was learned without being pedantic, broad in scope and delivered with force and eloquence which held the audience throughout. Archbishop Ryan, at the conclusion of a number by the United States Marine band and the reception of a telegram from President McKinley, declaring the participation of the United States in the exposition, dismissed the audience with a benediction. The great throng, assisted by the United States Marine band, Professor Roseway and the grand organ, joined in the "Star Spangled Banner" after which the buildings and exhibits were inspected by the guests and by the crowds that participated in the opening exercises.

EXPOSITION ATTRACTIONS.

Scenes and Amusements that Will Claim Visitors to the Great Trade Show.

Philadelphia, Sept. 14.—Not a dull spot is to be found anywhere in the Philadelphia National Export exposition enclosure, comprising a tract of 22 acres. Out of this emerald field, dotted with the choicest of products from the domain of Flora, rises the White City, builded for the exposition. An advantage possessed by the great enterprise is its location. The grounds are of easy approach by the most important street car lines of the city and a special station of the Pennsylvania railroad. These means of access are, however, not the only ones. Long lines of bicycles today approached the grounds from every direction, in anticipation of which an extensive building for the checking of thousands of wheels had been prepared. The presence of a large number of cycle-bekitured women with natty outing costumes was one of the picturesque incidents of the proceedings in the Auditorium.

The main entrance of the building, on South street, leads to the main building of the exposition through a wide and beautiful esplanade, with many greenways and a profusion of evergreen decoration. The crowd passed through this grand avenue of approach, which is lined on either side by a succession of strikingly beautiful and peculiar and fantastic architecture, in which the lighter amusements of the exposition, the diversions, so to speak, of the show are to be seen and enjoyed. These structures comprise a group of buildings in which is gathered the inhabitants of a Chinese village, with a restaurant, a Chinese theatre, and a smoking room, in front of which one will see the curious dancers and performers of the theatre gazing at the passing throng, no doubt as funny a sight to them as they to the first day visitor to the exposition. The busy preparations for the camps for the holding of Navajo and Mogul tribes of Mexican Indians are also visible from the esplanade, affording an interesting picture of aboriginal life.

The grand facade of the Main building, with its lofty columns and imposing decorations, made an instant impression upon the crowd. The building itself is situated in the midst of 60 acres of ground, and extends from the main entrance back 1,000 feet. The effect of the great pediment above the main entrance is particularly attractive and is the subject of universal admiration. It is a representation of Commerce, 30 feet long and 10 feet high, and above this is a splendid quadragram 16 feet high to the top of the surmounting figure of Victory. This fine figure is balanced on either side by groups 10 feet high representing "Transportation and Navigation." Between the doorways of the main entrance appear large circular pinnacles, modeled in relief with the seal of the United States, Pennsylvania, the Franklin Institute, the Commercial Museum and the city of Philadelphia.

Through this splendid gateway the crowds pressed immediately into the midst of the exhibits in the spacious Main building, with its acres of floor-space, miles of aisles, lined with displays of every conceivable variety and kind, where moving machinery and products of the most minute description, as well as the most gigantic in design, appear in the process of construction, where one sees objects of utility no bigger than the head of a pin being turned out by machinery at the rate of a thousand a minute, in a single row, with a full-size section of the great stringing steel arches of a thousand feet span cantilever bridge. The Auditorium, in which the exposition opening exercises were held, and where concerts by some of the best musical aggregations in the United States will be given daily, is set in one of the five pavilions, all under one roof, comprising the Main building. Although this Auditorium is 360 feet long, 180 feet wide and 80 feet high, it is almost lost in the vastness of the great Main building itself. Upon the stage is a mammoth pipe organ, 24 feet wide in front, and stretching back 12 feet. This organ contains 1,240 pipes, and its tone is magnificent. Its swelling notes roll through the great Main building in beautiful and harmonious tones. The organ stands 22 feet from the floor of the stage.

There is a gradual ascent from the stage to the rear of the Auditorium, and a score of rows of terraced seats beyond the organ, mainly designated as the orchestra of the theater. The effect of the arrangement and massing of the great sea of faces, as seen from the stage proper, was very striking, and happily the acoustic properties of the hall were adequate to the demands made upon it.

Every nook and corner of the exposition home offers some attractions. Within the buildings are exhibits, attractive for beauty or grandeur, the whir of machinery mingled with the hum of voices; about the grounds an object lesson in modern landscape engineering, by which a bog was transformed into a great lawn; along the Esplanade a modestly interesting amusement. The effect of the interior and surroundings and the enjoyment of the interior and contents of the great exposition buildings will be heightened by the autumnal tinge applied by the artist, Nature, and the auspiciousness of this season of the year for outdoor moving about.

FOREIGN SAMPLES ON DISPLAY.

Philadelphia Exhibits' Vast Exhibit of Articles Manufactured Abroad. One of the most important departments of the National Export Exposition at Philadelphia is the department of foreign samples on the second floor of the Central pavilion. It comprises samples of manufactured goods made abroad and sold in all foreign markets, or prepared in those markets for local consumption. These samples completely and systematically illustrates the requirements of different foreign markets. The department shows American manufacturers just what competition they must meet abroad. By examination of these foreign made goods an accurate judgment can be reached as to the far adaptations and alterations must be made in similar articles manufactured here, and to what extent American goods can find a market without modification.

Congress appropriated $50,000 for the purchase in foreign markets of these samples, which, together with necessary business data concerning them, for the instruction and benefit of American manufacturers and merchants. These samples compose the only exhibits of foreign goods at the exposition. They will not be exhibited by foreign manufacturers or dealers, but have been purchased outright in foreign markets by commissioners of the exposition, aided by the consular service of the United States. A representative collection of the wares in demand all over the world has been secured.

Included in the department of foreign samples are exhibits showing how goods should be packed and labeled for shipment to meet the requirements and approval of foreign buyers. These exhibits will show the regulations incident to the reception of goods in every mart in the world. The American manufacturer will have an opportunity to study at leisure and in company with men whose trade and influence abroad he is seeking.

Mr. Wellman Undergoes an Operation London, Sept. 14.—Walter Wellman, the leader of the Welman Polar expedition, who arrived in this city Aug. 28 after successful explorations in Franz Josef Land, has undergone the first surgical operation for straightening his right leg, which was seriously injured by Mr. Wellman falling into a snow covered crevasse while leading his party. It resulted in the successful loosening of the sinews. Another operation is necessary, but the attending surgeons say they expect to save the leg and that Mr. Wellman will be able to return to America in three weeks.

Union Veterans Legion Encampment. Baltimore, Sept. 14.—The Union Veterans Legion of the United States yesterday began its fourteenth annual national encampment in this city, which will continue in session until Saturday. The business meetings will be held behind closed doors. The opening session was devoted to addresses of welcome by United States Senator Wellington, on behalf of Governor Lowmeyer, and Colonel Theodore, acting for Mayor Malvern. General S. S. Cross, of Maine, national commander of the Legion, responded. About 500 delegates are in attendance.

DREYFUS IN GOOD SPIRITS.

He is Under the Same Discipline as Prior to His Trial.

Rennes, Sept. 14.—Captain Dreyfus continues in good spirits, and his health is fairly satisfactory, although the stomach troubles still cling to him. Miss Dreyfus visited her husband yesterday and came away looking cheerful. She spent about an hour with him. M. Labori's assistant sees him twice a day.

Most of the captain's waking hours are passed in reading correspondence and Paris literary reviews. He is under the same discipline as prior to the trial and is allowed exercise daily in the prison yard. A canvas screen is now hung across the court yard to prevent him being seen from the windows of houses adjacent and to prevent photographers getting snap shots of him.

A guard of 40 soldiers is posted in the prison yard beneath his window, and a sentry with loaded rifle and fixed bayonet is stationed on the wall overlooking the second court yard where he takes his exercise.

Mexican Veterans Convene. Indianapolis, Sept. 14.—The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the National Association of Mexican Veterans met in the state house yesterday. About 100 of the 12,000 survivors of the Mexican war were present. The veterans were welcomed feebly by Governor Mount and Mayor Tamm. The veterans range in ages from 63 to 89. Letters of regret and congratulation were read from President McKinley, Secretary of War Root and Governors Roosevelt of New York, Bushnell of Ohio and Bradley of Kentucky. A resolution was passed to give Mexican veterans residing in the city of 70 a pension of $50 a month was offered.
