INJURED WHILE PLAYING.

A Boy Tossed by a Guard Rope and Reared Unconscious.

Last evening Thomas, twelve-year-old son of R. F. Gill, while playing at the intersection of Main and Centre streets, ran against a rope guarding the street paving work with such force that he tumbled a considerable distance and fell upon the concrete portion of the street. Upon being assisted to his feet the boy toppled over unconscious, in which condition he remained but a short time, however. Dr. Grubler was summoned and found that the boy suffered from shock due to a bruise on the head. He is confined to his bed to-day, but his condition is not very serious.

BOY BADLY BURNED.

Powder Ignited in His Pocket and He May Die.

John Koenig, a 12-year-old boy employed as a pump wacker at the Park Place colliery, had his coat pocket with some blasting powder he stole this morning and in some unknown way the powder became ignited. He was terribly burned about the face, chest and hands. He is lying in a critical condition at his home in Shoemakers. It was necessary to throw him into a stream of water to quench his burning clothes.

To-night's Play.

A great many people are of the erroneous opinion that all colored shows are alike and of an inferior grade. After having once seen "A Hot Old Time in Dixie," which appears at Ferguson's theatre to-night, they will experience a decided change of opinion in that respect. Mr. McIntosh takes the leading part and is admitted to be the best colored comedian of the day. The play is bright, and the music, most of which is new and written for this piece by Mr. Davis. The scenery is all new and handsome, the costumes gorgeous in color, and the electrical and calcium effects the best that can be produced. The list of performers includes such well known colored artists as Mr. and Mrs. Tom McIntosh, in their side-splitting dialogues and songs; Perrin & Dudley, the original pumpkin colored coons; Tom Brown, entertainer and character artist; May Boies, the Cuban Melba; Pearl Woods, Philippine barefoot dancer and contortionist; Marcellus Masby, champion pickin' buck and wing dancer; Deas & Wilson, black moguls of comedy, and many others.

Mr. Thickens Improving.
A telegram has been received by W. H. Glenn, of town, stating that J. S. Thickens, of Florence, Colorado, a relative, is gradually recovering from his recent injuries and that he is now considered out of danger. Two weeks ago he was driving along a narrow piece of roadway with a load of lumber when one of the horses pulled aside, causing the wagon, horses and driver to be precipitated over a bluff 100 feet high. Mr. Thickens sustained a dislocation of the hip, fracture of two ribs, and a deep gash on the head, besides other injuries.

FOURTEEN GO TO JAIL!

Inquest on the Wm. Penn Murder Ended Yesterday.

SIX OF THE PRISONERS HELD!

The Remaining Eight Committed to Jail For Inciting to Riot and on Other Charges, After a Hearing Following the Inquest.

The inquest into the death of Joseph Rutkowski, who was foully murdered at Wm. Penn last Sunday night, was concluded last night. A difference of opinion has arisen as to the correct name of the deceased, but the question was settled yesterday afternoon by the relatives of the deceased, who stated that the name as spelled in the first report of the case was correct, and so it was. The proper name is "Rutkowski." It has been published as "Rutkaskas." This explanation is made in deference to the wishes of those most concerned.

The inquest was continued in Bender's hall, Wm. Penn, yesterday afternoon. Deputy Coroner Carlin, Deputy District Attorney J. Moran, Court Stenographer Martin Moore, Court Interpreter Moses Rosenstein, Justice Green, of Wm. Penn, several reporters and a multitude of witnesses were in attendance. None of the men under arrest were present. The inquest was conducted in the assembly room on the third floor of the Bender building and the witnesses were kept in an anteroom. They were summoned before the inquest, one by one, and as the examination of each witness was concluded, the interrogated was escorted from the place.

W. B. Durkin, Esq., was in attendance at the inquest as counsel for interested relatives of the deceased. Names of the parties under arrest were represented at the inquest by counsel. It was stated that the ruling made by the Coroner on the preceding day, and that character of the evidence submitted at the hearing, led the only counsel employed to decide that he would waive his opportunity to court.

Although fifteen witnesses were examined during the afternoon there were no developments of a sensational character. The testimony was interesting, however, in that it failed to sustain the popular belief that the murderer of the victim was the result of a plot, that there was an organization in existence with the view of murdering persons objectionable to the profession of his aims. Several witnesses were examined on this point, among them parties expected to give such information if they had knowledge of it, but the probing in that direction failed, although many people of Wm. Penn were of the opinion that the examination was not unreasonably directed.

A resume of the evidence leads to the conviction that at least six men started out on Sunday, last, to clear their path of all supposed obstructions. Whether the tour was the out-growth of an organized band, or of a profane deliberation, the evidence fails to reveal. But one thing appears to be certain; the murderer of Rutkowski was in the vicinity of the crime area in custody.

Of the many witnesses examined yesterday there were women. None could say they saw the fatal blow struck, but more than a majority of them brought all of the men held in custody before the jury close to the scene of the murder, and fixed weapons in the hands of at least two of them. A nine-year-old boy gave damaging evidence against two of the men. He testified that he saw Raleigh Buhnis with an axe under his coat and that he saw the prisoner Rutkowski fire two shots. The boy before Rutkowski was struck, the firing of the shots took place in the hands of the boy. The witness only knew Raleigh Buhnis, his brother, Thomas Buhnis, and Brzowski. There were other men in the crowd, but he did not know them.

Mrs. Eva Kavaioliski refused to be sworn when called, her claim being that she was in a delicate condition. She was told that her claim was not an exception under the United States laws, notwithstanding her contention that it was under the laws of her native country. She persisted upon her refusal, but when told that she would be in contempt of court, and liable to imprisonment, she took the oath. She stated that Anthony Matchulis, one of the accused, and one of her boarders, reached home at 10:30 Sunday night. The murder is fixed between Sunday and eight o'clock. She also testified that she was in bed with her husband, but she heard Matchulis say, while he was at the hydrant outside the house, "I gave it to him, and he was stretched out." He added "I hit him with the jumper and stretched him out." The witness was talking to the witness who Matchulis was talking to the witness could not say. She recognized the voice of Matchulis.

The widow of the victim was called to the stand, but she was so weakened by grief over her husband's death that her examination had to be dispensed with.

The verdict rendered by the jury was as follows: "We find that the said Joseph Rutkowski met death on Monday morning, September 25th, 1899, from the effects of a wound on the head received on Sunday evening, September 24, 1899, by an instrument of some kind in the hands of the following persons: Andrew Kora, Raleigh Buhnis, Matt Buhnis, Anthony Matchulis, John Stenkawicz and Peter Stenkawicz."

After the inquest Constables Bolin and Peters came to town and, with assistance took the fourteen prisoners to the office of Justice Green at Wm. Penn, where all were given a formal hearing. The six men mentioned in the verdict of the Coroner's jury were committed without bail on a charge of murder and the other eight were committed on charges of rioting, inciting to riot, discharging fire arms, carrying concealed deadly weapons, etc. This commitment will keep them within the jurisdiction until they can be called as witnesses on the murder trial. The men were brought back to town and kept in the lockup until this morning, when they were taken to the Pottsville jail.

NO EXTRA SESSION.

Governor Stone Will Not Call Pennsylvania Legislators Together.

Pittsburg, Sept. 23.—Governor William A. Stone arrived in Pittsburg yesterday on a brief business trip. There has been a good deal of talk about an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of electing Quary United States senator. Asked if he thought it probable that he would call the legislature together, the governor replied: "I certainly do." "What prospect is there for an extra session of the legislature?" "There will be no extra session of the legislature. There is no present need for any, and I have never intended or even contemplated calling one. No one has spoken to me on the subject one way or the other, but I have no notion of calling an extra session. I shall never call an extra session for the purpose of electing a United States senator. I shall never call an extra session for any political purpose whatever. All this talk about an extra session has been in the newspapers only."

OLYMPIA IN THE LEAD

Admiral Dewey's Flagship Heads the Fighting Squadron.

NAVAL WELCOME TO ADMIRAL.

Another Day of Great Rejoicing in New York Harbor.

REAR ADMIRAL HOWISON ARRIVES.

The Veteran Officer, Who Outranks Sampson, Was Surprised to Find That the Head of the United States Naval Forces Had Preceded Him—Thunderous Welcomes Greet the Hero of Manila as He Sails to the Head of the Column of Marine Fighters—Brilliant Harbor Illuminations.

New York, Sept. 23.—Through frolicking whitecaps the Olympia moved majestically up the lower bay yesterday and passed through the picturesque strait, guarded by Forts Wadsworth and Hamilton, amid the booming of great guns, and there, inside the city gates, Admiral Dewey and his gallant tars received the glorious, thunderous welcome of the steel-walled men-of-war as their stately ship glided up to her position at the head of the column, there to remain until the great naval pageant starts on Friday. Never, perhaps, did a triumphant warrior returning from a victorious campaign receive a more impressive welcome.

Although thousands upon thousands witnessed it from shores, balconies, windows or housetops, and the man-of-war anchorage at Tompkinsville, where the fleet lay, fairly swarmed with tugs, yachts and steamers and every sort of harbor craft, all jet black with wild, cheering, exulting people, and the towering white walls of the city beyond were lit up with a million welcoming flags, yesterday's greeting to Dewey was the greeting of his comrades of the navy. And it was eminently fitting that his comrades in arms should have the first chance at him whom the millions are waiting to honor. The people will begin to get at him on Friday and Saturday.

To outward appearances the welcome he received from the fleet was strictly professional. One can find the salutes, the trumpet flourishes, the drum ruffles, the parading of the marine guard and all the rest of the ceremonies done in his honor yesterday described in the naval regulations as due to one of his rank. But that only impressed the mind the more, because even naval regulations, rigorous and inflexible as they are, could not restrain the pent up enthusiasm when it broke forth, as it did occasionally, in rounds of cheers, any more than it could the bell cords of the skippers and the joyous people aboard the excursion boats. Cheering is not permitted by the naval regulations aboard men-of-war, but no reproof followed yesterday's breaches of discipline.

Very early in the morning, before Dewey left his anchorage inside Sandy Hook, Rear Admiral Howison, commander of the South Atlantic squadron, aboard his flagship, the Chicago, which arrived outside Tuesday night, travel stained and weather beaten after her journey of 21,000 miles around South Africa, foamed in past the Hook, expecting to join the North Atlantic squadron in receiving Dewey upon his arrival. As Howison rounded the Spit there right under his eye lay the Olympia. The surprise on the face of every man aboard the Chicago could be discerned without the aid of glasses.

Howison's Salute to Dewey.

Dewey's flagship was no sooner recognized than preparations were made to give her the loudest and most hearty welcome ship could give. The sides were manned, the marine guard was paraded and 17 roaring guns were loosened in honor of Dewey. The Chicago's jockies cheered wildly as she steamed past. The Olympia responded with 13 guns, and the two admirals, come together from the two ends of the earth, waved a welcome to each other from the bridges of their respective vessels. The Chicago continued on to the upper bay, and upon arriving there was saluted by the New York. Only the flagship of the squadron salutes upon the appearance of a rear admiral.

Long lines of crazy quilting, the universal language of the sea, fluttered from the signal halyards of the New York. Rear Admiral Sampson's flagship and the Chicago, and after a good deal of wig-wagging from the bridges of the ships the Chicago dropped her anchor at the foot of the column, close by the lee of Staten Island. Rear Admiral Sampson's blue flag came down as soon as the Chicago found her berth. Rear Admiral Howison is his senior, and to the main truck was hauled up the two-starred red pennant which denoted that he was outranked. It was explained subsequently that the Chicago did not go to the head of the column, the position to which she was entitled, because the place had been reserved for the Olym-
