It is very easy to understand why Mr. Bryan is so concerned over the outcome of the Nebraska campaign. He is anxious to demonstrate his ability to carry his own state, for defeat may seriously affect his standing in his party. Consequently, he is visiting little cross-roads towns, and The Johnson Laboratories, Inc., Phila. speaking to crowds of 100 and 200 people. Bryan's influence is not as great, and the magic of his name as an attraction for crowds is certainly Commercial Hotel diminishing. The trouble with Bryan is that he has proven himself a false prophet. In 1890, he said that if we did not have free trade we would be wrecked. In 1896 he said that if we did not have free colunge of silver we Boarders by the Day, week would all be paupers. Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—Worn out by xcesses and years of confinement recolling from his long career in crime, "Jimmy" Logue, the famous ex-convict, who is believed to have stolen more money than any other thief of his time, died in the county almshouse here yesterday, aged 62 years. He sought religious consolation before he fied. Logue is supposed to have had fortune at one time or about $200,000 all other people's money. He started his career of crime at the age of 17 and spent more than 20 years of his life in the prisons of a number of states. His aptness displayed itself best in discovering where large sums of money were to be obtained. He was connected with three big bank robberies in this city, and also operated exten-sively in other cities. One of the bruest robberies he made was Washington, where he played his fa-vorite game of speaking through a roof

Walker, who had no relatives, worked around the farm. Tuesday afternoon he and Miss Maud Goshorn drove to Montgomery and were married. They then drove out to the Cook home, where the supper was prepared. A company of well wishers gathered. Company of well wishers gathered.

The bride and groom sat side by side at the table in front of an uncurtained window, when Rankin shot the couple, firing with a shotgun through the window. Both were instantly kill-ed, their heads being riddled with shot. A child, a member of the Cook fam-ily, was bodly wounded. No one saw the murderer, and his identity was un-known until his dead body was stumbled over outside the house.

A letter left by Rankin revealed the fact that he was a rejected suitor of Miss Goshorn's, and that he committed the murder because she married
