Harry Aspery, of Mt. Carmel, was arrested at Tanungus on Saturday, charged with bigamy. He was taken to Mt. Carmel and locked up. In the cell with him was one Frank Padusky, charged with assault and battery. The latter succeeded in breaking out of the cell and, with the aid of a stove lighter found in the corridor, forced open the outer door of the lockup and both men made their escape. Neither the man charged with bigamy, nor the other fellow, has been seen since, although the Mt. Carmel authorities have been trying hard to effect a capture.

Epidemic Feared.

The public health authorities of Mahanoy City fear that there may be an epidemic of diphtheria and scarlet fever in the public schools. DEATH OF A BOER LEADER

In an Engagement With the British Troops at Elandslaagte.

THE BOERS FOUGHT GALLANTLY

But the Combined Efforts of British Cavalry and Artillery Resulted in Crushing Defeat for the Transvaal Defenders—General White's Report.

London, Oct. 22.—The war office yesterday published the following dispatch to the secretary of state for war, the Marquis of Lansdowne, from the general commanding in Natal, Sir George Stewart White, regarding the engagement Saturday at Elandslaagte, between Glencoe and Ladysmith, when the British under General Buller, routed the Transvaal forces under General Jan H. M. Kock, second in command in the Transvaal army, who was himself wounded and captured and has since died.

"The whole force was under General French with Colonel Jan Hamilton commanding the infantry. I was present in person from 3:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., but did not assume direction of the fight, which was left in the hands of General French. Although desultory fighting took place earlier in the day, while reinforcements, sent out later on ascertaining the enemy's strength, were arriving from Ladysmith, the real action did not begin until 2:30 p. m. At that hour the Boers held a position of very exceptional strength, consisting of a rock hill about a mile and a half southeast of Elandslaagte Station.

"At 3:30 p. m. our guns took a position on a ridge 4 1/2 miles from the Boers, whose guns at once opened fire. This fire was generally well directed, but somewhat high. Contrary to previous experiences, their shells burst well towards the left of the enemy's position, and two squadrons of the Fifth Lancers toward his right. During the artillery duel mounted Boers pushed on from the left and engaged the Light Horse. In a few minutes the enemy's guns ceased firing and our artillery was turned on the mounted Boers, who opposed the Light Horse. The latter at once fell back after the artillery proposed our infantry advanced to the attack, supported by our guns, in the second position. The Devonshire regiment held the enemy in front, while the Manchester regiment and the Gordon Highlanders turned his left flank.

"The Boer guns, although often temporarily silenced, invariably opened fire on the slightest opportunity and were served with great courage. After severe fighting our infantry carried the position. At 6:30 p. m. this was accomplished, the enemy standing his ground to the last with courage and tenacity. The Fifth Lancers and a squadron of the Fifth Dragoon Guards charged three times through the retreating Boers in the dark, doing considerable execution.

"We captured the Boer camp, with tents, wagons, horses and also two guns. The Boer losses were very considerable, including a number of wounded and unwounded prisoners. Among the former are General Jan Kock and Piet Joubert, nephew of Commandant General Joubert.

"One goods train, with supplies for Glencoe camp, and nine English prisoners, were recovered. Our loss, I regret to say, was heavy. It is roughly computed at 150 killed and wounded. The collection of the wounded over a large area in the dark and the arrangements for sending them in have thus far occupied our time and attention. Our wounded and those of the enemy are now arriving by trains. Besides Boers we have many Hollanders, Germans and prisoners of mixed nationalities. The behavior of our troops and of the colonial forces was admirable."

The following additional details from official sources are at hand regarding the battle at Elandslaagte: The Boers, although driven from their guns, returned again and again whenever an opportunity occurred. The high ground near the left of the enemy's position was occupied at the commencement of the action, the British creeping along the crest and making a wide circuit.

The infantry attack was directed against the right of the enemy's position, the British coming quickly into contact with the Boers, who at that point occupied a strong footing, which they held resolutely until a flank attack was made by our troops, who advanced with great dash and in spite of heavy losses, carried the main position with a rush, just as the light was falling.

The ground traversed by our troops was rough and stony, and the capture of the position was a fine feat of arms. The cavalry lapped well around and inflicted severe loss on the enemy.

It was highly important to strike a severe blow, as the Orange Free State forces are known to be concentrated northwest of Ladysmith in considerable strength. The flank attack was gallantly delivered by the Manchester regiment, the Gordon Highlanders and the Imperial Light Horse. The front attack was done with splendid spirit by the Devonshire regiment.

The latest dispatches do not indicate any general incursion of Boers as yet into Behuanaland. Along the Orange river everything seems to be quiet. From Colonsburg, Cape Colony, it is reported that all the available burghers of the Orange Free State have been sent north and west.

On the other hand, a messenger from Allentown reports that a large body of Boers is advancing toward the Orange river. Refugees are leaving that town in greater numbers daily. The Boers have mounted a Krupp gun on a bridge commanding the most thickly populated part.

Advices from Cape Town say that a wholesome fear of a rising in Basutoland prevents the Boers invading Cape Colony, and that on the other hand there is considerable excitement at Maseru and other Basuto stations arising from native apprehensions of Boer attacks.

It appears that colonial news is in some mysterious way supplied to the Boers, and that their movements depend largely on intelligence communicated through natives. Disquieting information comes from Herachol and other points in Cape Colony, where the natives are much excited.

A Cape Town dispatch says: It is rumored here this morning that Barkly West, northwest of Kimberley, has been surrendered to the Boers without firing a shot. Cape volunteers, it is reported, will be sent to relieve Kimberley.

A Few Press Comments.

The metropolitan press is unanimous in its praise of "The Cherry Pickers," which comes to Ferguson's theatre next Thursday evening. "The New York Herald" tersely remarks: "The Cherry Pickers" is a success. "The World," "It stirred the audience to high pitch of enthusiasm." The Press claimed "The Blue Jeans was good. The 'Cherry Pickers' is better." The Sun, commending it stated: "The great gun seems successful in bringing down the house at every performance." Praise like the foregoing is praise indeed and speaks well for the merits of the play.
