Would Bave Contested His Father's Will Had Not Aifred Agreed to Incrosse the Amount Given to Him.

New York, Oct. 28.-The Tribune New York, Oct. 28.—The Tribune says: The provisions of the will of Cornellus Vanderbilt have excited intense interest. From certain remarks it appears that this settlement alone, effected after long discussions, prevented a contest that might have re-sulted in one of the greatest and costliest will litigations ever known. Cor-nelius Vanderbilt, Jr., when he learned the provisions of his father's will, placed his interests in the hands of his counsel, Carter & Ledyard. They conducted negotiations with Heary B. Anderson, the attorney of Alfred Gwyne Vanderbilt. Enough has been admitted to indicate that had Alfred not made the concession mentioned litigation would have followed. When Cornelius was seen he dismissed the subject briefly by saying:

"Whatever arrangements may have been made was effected through my attorneys, Carter & Ledyard. I have no comment to make upon the settlement. It was a family arrangement, and not a gift."

It was learned from a trustworthy source that Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., is much disappointed by his father's will and the attitude in which he has been placed by his brother's handsome concession, and that he will withdraw from any further participation in the affairs of the Vanderbilt properties. Cornellus Vanderbilt, Jr., is described by those who know him intimately as a reticent young man. He took his disagreement with his father much to heart, and after his marriage tried in every way to overcome the difficulty. He entered the office of the super-intendent of motive power of the New York Central, and went to work to prove his merit. He worked early and late, and never asked more than any other employe. He did everything he could to prove to his father his seri-ous intentions. He never complained, and never allowed an opportunity to pass without trying to secure a re-establishment of the former cordial relations between himself and father.

It is further asserted that he had hoped and believed he had succeeded in gaining his father's favor. The two also in this city. The young son of Cornelius, Jr., was often taken to the Breakers, and Mr. Vanderbilt manifested a keen enjoyment in section of the sectio fested a keen enjoyment in seeing his grandson. It is said that in the light of these talks and the fondness displayed by his father for the balls of the said that in the light of these talks and the fondness displayed by his father for the balls of the said that in the light color covert overcoats, in all shades, at prices $6.00, $7.00, $8.00 and $9.00. played by his father for the baby Cor-nelius. TUESDAY'S FIGHT AT KIMBERLEY

According to British Dispatches the Britons Repulsed a Superior Force of Boers, and the Boer Commander, Boths, Was Among the Killed.

London, Oct. 28 .- The dispatches from the seat of war in the Transvani are few and far between. It is presumed in Natal that the Boers are reconstructing their plans and that the English are resting, but telegrams from Ladysmith at express rates still the vacant senatorship. occupy 48 hours in transmission to London, and therefore it is not impossible that something is happening The special dispatches assert that Colonel Baden-Powell, the British commander at Mafeking, is aware that Pretoria has given General Cronje orders to stay his hand, as already there is quite enough to employe the Boers in Natal. During the momentary lull in the fighting in Natal comes news from the western border, which temporarily shifts the scene of chief interest to the beleaguered British force at Kimberley. The sharp struggle there on Tuesday appears to have been the result of a sortie with the view of breaking the cordon surrounding the place. The British, apparently 500 strong, met 700 Hoers, and, according to the official and other accounts, routed them after severe fighting, in which the armored trains appear to have done valuable service. The Boers were entrenched strongly seven miles northward, and the British brilliancy carried the enemy's position without serious It is said that the Boers twice infairly used a white flag. Botha, the Boer commander, who was among the killed, was a member of the volksraad.

and a famous Dutch fighter.
A special dispatch from Cape Town gives details of the defeat of 700 Boers by the British at Riverton, north of Kimberley, Wednesday, in which the enemy was completely routed with heavy loss, the British loss being three men killed and twenty wounded, including two officers wounded.

The Daily Telegraph has the following from Ladysmith, dated Wednesday; Our cavalry patrols have been fired on this forenoon and chased by signs of becoming aggressive. We learned of the capture of the Hus-sars in response to a military wire sent to Commandant General Joubert.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says he learns that Colonel Schiel, the wounded and captured commander of the German contingent of the Boer forces, is the same individual who acted as Cete-wayo's military adviser in the Zulu war, and who, after the battle of Ulundi, offered £1,000 as a reward for the capture of the fugitive chief.

According to the latest account of the first battle at Glencoe the Boer the first battle at Glencoe the Boer army amounted to 7,000 men, and about noon another army, almost as large, under Commandant General Joubert, advanced within 6,000 yards of Glencoe camp and then retired. The Boer losses were very heavy, fully 300.

Sir Alfred Milner, governor of Cape Town, and W. P. Schreiner, the premier, have issued a proclamation declaring null and void the proclamation of the Orange Free State asserting that a portion of Cape Colony is now Free State territory. Sir Alfred Milner's proclamation warns all British subjects in the colony of their duty and obligations to the queen.

A telegram from Buluwayo, Rhodesia, dated Monday, says: A Boer force is threatening Chief Khama and Chief Linchwe, who are loyal to Great Britain. The two chiefs' country lies at the extreme northwest of the Transvani and includes Bechuanaland. It seems a gross mistake for the Boers to provoke war among the natives. The prob able explanation is that the Boer force intends to destroy the railway to Buluwayo, and thus prevent any attempt of Colonel Plummer's Rhodesian force
