OUR COUNTRY : First, Last and Forever.

ENGLAND may not be willing at any time to recognize the right of the Transvant to independence, but there is not a doubt that every Englishman is ready to recognize the Boers as belligerents of the most active and dangerous variety.

Now that the periodical political excitement is about to subdue and the safety of the republic once more assured, the patriotic citizen will be able to turn his attention to the approaching Thanksgiving Day, and make his contracts for turkeys to distribute among the poor.

Those Spanish Possessions.

Thanks to some wholly unnecessary and, if it must be said, rather stupid obscurity in the wording of the treaty under which Spain ceded the Philippines to the United States, there is just the shadow of a foundation that three of the islands were not included in the transfer, still belong to Spain. and can be made the basis of negotiations with the rebels-or others. Article III, of the treaty begins: "Spain cedes to the United States the archipelage known as the Philippine Islands.

This shows plainly enough that which there is nowhere any doubt or dispute. But the Commissioners were not content to let well enough alone. and in the effort to be very definite they fell into an error, of no practical importance, indeed, and yet a possible opening for a lot of futile quibbling. To the words quoted above they added: "Including the islands they added: "Including the islands dicate the pluralities for Barnett (Rep.) Mr. Plump-You are too easily lying within the following line," and over Creany (Dem.) over 120,000.
