A QUADRUPLE MURDER.

Mother and Three Children Found Dead at Their Home.
Williamsport, Pa., Nov. 24.—Montgomery, this county, is in a frenzy over the discovery that a wholesale murder has been committed at a farm about a mile from the town. Several weeks ago three appeared on the scene a peddler by the name of Hummel, who married a widow with three children. For the past week neighbors driving past the farm noticed that there was no sign of habitation, and some comment was made. An investigation made late yesterday afternoon revealed the fact that a horrible crime had been committed. On searching the premises a burial covered with blood was found, and on searching further the bodies of two children were found hidden beneath a straw stack. On going into the house the mother and another child were found dead in the sleeping apartments. The dead were horribly mangled, and the murderer evidently having used a club in carrying out his fiendish crime. The husband was seen around the town Wednesday, but since that time nothing is known of his whereabouts. Mrs. Hummel's name before her recent marriage was Mrs. Oliver Delaney. She was about 39 years of age. Hummel's age is between 50 and 55 years. The couple were married on Nov. 10, Mrs. Hummel's first husband died about six months ago.

National Festival to-night.
The people of Shenandoah evidently know a good thing, as the demands for tickets for the National Festival are exhibiting the supply. The cups of coffee and sandwiches which will be given away are very low priced. Home made candy, for instance, for making of which the young ladies at the Scotch table have won an enviable reputation, and the demand for which has always exceeded the supply. The art gallery where each one may look upon a collection of masterpieces never before equalled. The fishing pond, which will give all true sportsmen any number of chances to show their ability to land large fish, and last, but not least, by any means, the musical program by the Riley orchestra and a special quartette. This program was published the other day and need not be repeated here. The weather men tell it will be a fine day and evening but whether it is so, or whether it turns to a blizzard, the National Festival will open just the same, and continue throughout the evening. Don't forget the place, Robbins' hall, and the time, to-night.

CLOSING THE CASE!

Wm. Penn Murder Case Has Reached the Final Stages.

THE DEFENDANT'S COUNSEL CLOSE

They Submit a Number of Points of Law to the Court—Commonwealth Asks a First Degree Verdict—Will go to the Jury to-night.

Pottsville, Nov. 24.—At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Peter Stenkawicz resumed his evidence in the Wm. Penn murder trial. He saw no one with Koras or Rollis Babnis neither did he see a pistol with Mike Brokos. I heard one shot fired, but did not see A. J. Koras have a revolver at the head of the crowd. I did not see or hear Mike Brokos with a stick, as he has testified, nor did I see my brother say "Give it to him" before the fatal blow was struck. Nor did I hear one of my brothers, nor did I see the blow, "One is dead," as Frank Delahis testified. I was not one of the four men who crossed the street, because I was fighting with Zugaranski at the time.
Q. How did you get across the street?
A. I was struck by a blow from the crowd only twenty minutes and then said he did not return until 10, or 11.
Q. Which of the sides is true?
A. This is true which I say last. The other stories are not true.
The witness appeared to be confused. He denied bearing the revolver fired and that any stones were thrown previous to the killing.
Joseph Capenikoff, not a defendant, was sworn. He said he lived at Wm. Penn, but did not bear the murder 'till the next morning.
The defense then offered to prove by him that he had struck a match to examine another man, to see if he was hurt, this for the purpose of showing that Mrs. Grow, one of the Commonwealth's witnesses, was mistaken when she said she saw one of the Babnis brothers strike a match and look over his brother's clothes from head to foot.
The question was objected to and court said it would not be allowed, unless it was first shown that the witness struck the match just before the killing. The witness was withdrawn.

cent of all crime, and the burden of proving the contrary is upon the Commonwealth.

Second—If the jury are not convinced, beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendants did, wilfully, deliberately and pre-meditately, and of their malice afore-thought, kill and murder Joseph Rutkofski, it can be no conviction of murder in the first degree.

Third—The burden of proof never shifts to the defendants, but remains on the Commonwealth to make out its entire case beyond any reasonable doubt.

Fourth—Declarations of intention and threats do not give rise to a presumption of law as to the intent of the defendants.

Fifth—The mere presence of defendants at the time threats are made by a third person do not constitute in themselves, in itself, sufficient to make them parties to any combination, or conspiracy, to carry out the threats.

Sixth—Unless there was a pre-arranged purpose to kill Joseph Rutkofski, or do him great bodily harm, in the absence of satisfactory proof, beyond a reasonable doubt, that they aided, assisted, or abetted him who did it, the defendants must be acquitted.

Seventh—The mere presence of the parties at the time of the commission of a crime, even though they be in sympathy with the criminal, does not, in the absence of any aiding, or abetting thereof, make them in any way responsible for the crime.

Eighth—If the jury believe that, at the time Babnis went to Rutkofski's gate, and pulled the bolt, he caused the death, the defendants had no knowledge of any intention on the part of Babnis to kill Rutkofski or inflict any injury upon him, they, the defendants, cannot be held responsible for Babnis' act, and must be acquitted.

Ninth—If the jury believe that the death of Joseph Rutkofski was a blow inflicted by Rollis Babnis, by means of a previous difficulty between Babnis and Rutkofski, and that the defendants had no part in the inflicting of the blow, they must be acquitted.

Tenth—There is no direct evidence in this case of any threat by any of these defendants, to take the life of Joseph Rutkofski, the deceased.

Eleventh—If the jury have a reasonable doubt of the guilt of the defendants, or any one of them, that doubt must work his, or their acquittal.

Twelfth—If a reasonable doubt arises in the mind of the jury from a comparison and consideration of all the evidence, leaving the minds of the jurors in that condition that they cannot say they feel an abiding conviction, to a moral certainty, of the truth of the charge against the defendants; or if there is such want of confidence in the result of the investigation, as would prevent a reasonable and prudent juror from coming to a satisfactory conclusion about an important matter in the business of life, the defendants must get the benefit of it.

Thirteenth—In every criminal case the defendant's guilt must be made out by evidence that is natural, just and reasonable. It must be founded upon facts, and the hypothesis of the guilt must be such as to exclude every reasonable theory of innocence.

Fourteenth—If the evidence in this case is susceptible of a construction consistent with the innocence of the defendants, the jury are bound to give it that construction and acquit the defendants.

ADDRESSING THE JURY.
A. D. Knittle, Esq., began the first address to the jury at 8:45 o'clock this morning, continuing until 11:15, in an eloquent, conscientious effort, in which he reviewed the case faithfully, belittling the idea that there was any conspiracy, and charged some of the Commonwealth's witnesses with perjury, whether willful or mistaken. He told the jury that all the evidence pointed to the fact that those of the defendants who were at the gate, were drawn there through the attack Zugaranski and Susawicz had made upon Anthony Stenkawicz, Rutkofski, the defendant's main object being to push Zugaranski outside his gate, saying to him "Go outside and fight," after Frank Delahis had pulled Zugaranski inside of the fence, away from Stenkawicz, to save him. These Rutkofski stood at the gate, laughing at the man who was being beaten by Zugaranski and Susawicz, when Rollis Babnis, with malice in his mind, arising from the quarrel they had at a wedding five weeks before, ran out of Lutski's yard and, crossing the street, struck Rutkofski on the head, inflicting a fatal wound. Then the crowd ran back across the street. There was no murder in the minds of Koras, or the other defendants on trial.

H. O. Bechtel, Esq., the other counsel for the defendants, spoke for half an hour, making a powerful address, concluding at 11:45. He declared that some of the witnesses who had said they heard shots at the gate may have been mistaken in the intent of the words. They were meant for Zugaranski and Susawicz, who were trying to beat Anthony Stenkawicz with a billy. He made light of the charge of conspiracy and insisted that the defendants were merely joking in all they said on their way to Koras' and at Bendler's.

District Attorney Bechtel began his summing up at 11:45 and spoke forcefully. He said he did not wish to excite the sympathy, or prejudice of the jury, but to encourage the reign of justice. If the labor of the case resulted in bringing to justice a band of criminals, it would not be deemed lost. The law is not founded on the principle of vengeance, but for the security of the people and the punishment of the wicked.

At 12:30 court adjourned until 2 o'clock.
District Attorney Bechtel resumed his address at 2 o'clock and was still talking at 3 o'clock. He intended to speak until 3:45, and then give way for Judge Henning's charge. He asked for a verdict of murder in the first degree.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Additional Cases Tried by the Court at Pottsville.
Dr. John Ege, of Reading, was tried before Judge Bechtel on a charge of false pretense, preferred by W. N. Stine, of Barry township, near Ashland. Charles A. Snyder, Esq., and Deputy District Attorney Moran, represented the Commonwealth and John O. Ulrich and W. H. Williams, Esqs., the defense. Dr. Ege is charged with pretending to have performed an operation on the wife of Dr. Stine and of having accepted $139 for the alleged operation and for the board of the patient, Mrs. Stine, in a critical condition and unable to be in court. Dr. Ege was paid $100 at other times.

Dr. Ege, on the stand this morning, testified that he performed the operation, and removed some of the foreign matter, and then stepped at the advice of his consulting physician. He said the charge was $100 for the operation and board, medicines, &c., of the patient of the hospital, amounting to from $15 to $20 per week. Stine objected to the price and it was cut down to $139, from $200.

MACARTHUR AT TARLAC.

Headquarters Established at Aguinaldo's Former Residence.

REBEL CHIEFTAIN HEARD FROM.

He Was Seen by an Escaped Spanish Corporal at Bayombong on the Night of Nov. 13—Was Hairless and His Clothes Were Torn.

Manila, Nov. 24.—General MacArthur has returned to Tarlac and has established his headquarters at Aguinaldo's former residence. During the entire movement from Gerona to Dagupan not a shot was fired. The inhabitants of San Carlos met the Americans with a band formerly attached to the insurgent army, and the alcalde (mayor), with General MacArthur and Colonel Bell, in a carriage, headed a procession through the town.

General MacArthur received an ovation. Explaining the American's intentions, he announced that they intended to garrison all the towns on the railroad. Hundreds of men are in the fields, harvesting rice, along the railroad. The foreigners in the territory are to be expelled. He is now expecting the American advance for a month, when the rains would have finished. He had permitted a large part of his army to scatter to their homes and do the harvesting. The soldiers had hidden their rifles about their homes. If this is true many rifles are likely to be brought in to secure the $30 offered for each weapon seized.

The fording of Pampanga river, above Tarlac, by the Thirty-sixth regiment and a battalion of the Seventeenth regiment was a noteworthy feat. The river is broad and swift. Part of the command was ferried over on rafts, and the remainder swam over, holding onto the life line strung across.

General Wheaton, when General MacArthur communicated with him, was holding San Fabian and two of the most important towns.

Captain Leonbauer's capture of the town of O'Donnell with three companies was a remarkable stroke. He started at 6 o'clock at night and marched 15 miles in the mud. The only regular approach was along a road and over a river bridge, which was strongly fortified. The entrance of the town was entrenched. The soldiers left the road and followed a cattle trail to the rear of the town. At daylight the command separated, one company advancing on the back of the town and the others flanking it. The insurgent force was asleep, except those at the outposts, who were captured without shooting. One platoon ran down the main street to a trench and the other detachment made a quick search of the houses.

An officer describing the scene said: "The negro soldiers were pouring from every house, dragging sleepy, frightened Filipino warriors by the collar and kicking them into the street. It was a race to see which company would corner the most Filipinos. The women and children, believing the stories told by the negro soldiers, were cowering, shrieking frightfully. After all the rifles had been secured the Filipinos were surprised by being told to go to their homes and attend to work."

Colonel Carpenter, Nov. 18, advanced to Santa Barbara straits, the route to Jaro, taking trench after trench, the enemy fighting and retreating. The country between Jaro and Santa Barbara is thickly entrenched, especially near Payia.

A Spanish corporal captured by the Filipinos has arrived here from Tarlac. He says he saw Aguinaldo, accompanied by a prominent leader and 15 men, arrive at Bamabong (Dayamban) during the night of Nov. 13, hairless, his clothes torn and spattered with mud and his horse exhausted. Aguinaldo and his companions secured fresh horses and proceeded immediately toward Mangalaren in Pangasinan province, west of Bayombong. The corporal is convinced that he is not mistaken, having seen Aguinaldo several times during recent months.

In the meantime Brennan's counsel has appealed to the Board of Pardons but there is little hope for the condemned man. Brennan, who has been confined to his prison cell since last July, displays most wonderful nerve, and falls to sleep when speaking of the gloomy outcome of his case. He hopes the money shall be shown him, but admits that he must hang be shall meet death without a tremor.
