At KEITER'S.

EARLY MORNING FIRE.

Slaughter House Destroyed in the Southern Part of the Borough.

Shortly after three o'clock this morning an alarm sounded from the box at the corner of Main and Poplar streets summoning the fire department to that part of the town south of the line kiln, where a number of slaughter houses are located. All the companies responded and they found a good blaze awaiting them. The slaughter house and out buildings located at the crossing of the highway and the P. & R. Railway, and owned by William Palawicz, a butcher of West Centre street, were all on fire.

The origin of the fire is not known, but it is supposed to have been started by careless use of matches or pipes by people lounging in the place. The slaughter house has been practically abandoned for some time and tramps and idlers of town have made it their rendezvous. Testimony regret that the fence of the property was not also destroyed, as it makes the railway crossing a very dangerous one, shutting from view of locomotors the trains running south to the crossing.

NINE FIRE.

The Kehley Run Mine Discovered on Fire This Morning.

A part of the Kehley Run colliery was discovered on fire this morning. How it originated is a mystery. The supposition is that the fire started on Saturday night. It is located in the West Mammoth vein, several hundred yards from the bottom of the slope, in the direction of Kohinor colliery. The extent of the fire is not known, but it is causing some apprehension among the officials.

At about three o'clock this afternoon a line of hose had nearly reached the place of fire and shortly after water was being played on the flames. It was impossible for any of the workmen to reach the scene when the fire was discovered. It is stated that several men were affected by the fumes, but none seriously.

SENATOR LOSCH IS AGAIN A CANDIDATE

HE IS GREATLY IMPROVED IN HEALTH AND WILL LEAVE THE HOSPITAL PRACTICALLY A WELL MAN AGAIN.

He is Visited by a "Herald" Representative, and the Senator Announces His Intention of Again Going to the State Senate From the Twenty-Ninth District. Other Political News Touched Upon.

Special Herald Correspondence.

Pottsville, Nov. 27.—No sooner is one political contest over than the Schuykill county statesman lays their plans for the succeeding one. The contest next year promises to be a spirited one, especially so in this Senatorial district, where a Senator and three members of the Legislature are to be chosen. And right here I want to venture a prediction: Hon. S. A. Losch will succeed himself as State Senator. There are those who are laboring under the delusion that the Schuykill Haven statesman is out of politics by reason of impaired health. If Dr. Charles E. Quill or ex-Senator Keefer, or any of the other Senatorial aspirants base their political success upon such a contingency, they will be sadly disappointed. The Senator is not only greatly improved in health, but has kept in close touch with the political movements in this county during the past two or three months.

I had the pleasure of visiting Senator Losch at the Medico-Chirurgical college in Philadelphia last week, and I was most agreeably surprised at his improved condition, from what it was when he entered that institution about two months ago. He now takes short walks, and before the time arrives for the Senatorial nomination he will have left the hospital in better health than he has enjoyed for over a year. His condition was somewhat of a surprise to me because I had been led to believe that his case was past the point where medical skill would be effective. The fact that such is not the case will be pleasant news to the Senator's political and personal friends throughout Schuykill county.

In conversation with Senator Losch your correspondent was surprised to find that he was familiar with every move made on the political chess board in this county during his confinement, and it will violate no confidence to say that some of the most successful Republican strategic movements, and which beyond doubt resulted in the election of at least two or three of the Republican candidates, were directed from his room in this medical institution. He is familiar, also, with the plans of his political opponents to encompass his defeat for re-nomination; but Losch is stronger to-day, politically, than he was two years ago. Many things have happened to make this so, and many more are sure to occur (by his own wise manipulation) within the next two months that will add materially to his own personal strength. Senator Losch is a candidate for re-election to the Senate. I make this statement authoritatively. It might be well that it is made at this time, because there are some that have the Senatorial bee buzzing in their political bonnets, and who are nonchalance their ambitions in that direction under the belief that the present Senator would retire from active political life. There is not the slightest ground for such belief. Losch is a candidate for re-election.

Many prominent Republicans—not of the office-holding class—have since the election taken a retrospective view of Republican politics in this county, and now cheerfully concede that with a continuation of the present party managers in power Republican success will continue to be doubtful. Messrs. Whitehouse and Brumba, the self-assumed dictators, have not by any means made a brilliant success for the reason that there can be no party harmony with these two politicians as the dispensers of patronage. In either of them the people have little confidence. Then, again, there is no doubt but that the Whitehouse encourages party dissension. Without a factional contest he would soon be a man without a job. He is looked upon as the Quay representative in this county, and for that very reason the Senator will find much trouble in electing legislators favorable to his own election this fall. It is only necessary to point to the forced nomination of Schenk and his subsequent defeat in a strong Republican district. And the same thing is liable to happen next year, with Whitehouse and Brumba in the saddle.

The knowing ones say that Charles A. Snyder, that brilliant young Republican leader, will secure the position of deputy United States District Attorney, under the successor to Mr. Beck. Some people are trying to play the "confidence game" on Charles, but they will hardly succeed. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, especially so if they are political birds. Speaking of political leeches, here is a combination that would be hard to beat: Senator Losch, Daniel Duffy, Charles A. Snyder and William Wilhelm. With these men in control of the party, the county could be classed firmly in the Republican column.

THEATRICAL.

"Kidnapped in New York," which comes to the theatre this evening, November 27, is described as a comedy drama in four acts, and is from the pen of Howard Hall. It is said the play tells an interesting story and introduces Barney Gilmore in the genial role of Mr. Dooley, the detective, a part well suited to this popular comedian's ability in depicting many Irish characters. Mr. Gilmore has been surrounded with an excellent supporting company, and the piece will be presented with new and appropriate scenery.

J. C. Lewis and his big company of comedians will positively appear at the theatre Thursday afternoon and evening, Nov. 30, in the great comedy success, "St. Plunkard," a rural comedy brim full of funny situations and laughable novelties. This is one of the many successful comedies, and a money maker for its owners. This season the comedy has been entirely re-written and appears in its new edition.

Burglars Make a Raid.

Some time during Friday night burglars effected an entrance into the home of the late Elias Davis, at New Castle, which is now jointly occupied by his widow and her father and brother. Five men are known to have been in the gang, as their presence was discovered by Thomas Bonshoff, who fired at them as they were retreating from the home. They secured about $33 in money, a lot of silverware, an overcoat and a new suit of clothes which belonged to the late treasurer, as well as a package said to contain considerable money, handed to Mrs. Davis by her husband just previous to his death, though how much it contained no one seems to know.

Judge Henning held court one night until 7:30 and on Saturday, November 18th, Judge Bechtel went to the court house at 7 p. m. to take a verdict. All of the officers had to remain at the court house and they were not in love with the job, especially as Saturday is fixed as a legal half holiday.
