Martin Welsh, 13 years old and residing on West Lloyd street, was arraigned before Justice Toomey this afternoon on a charge of larceny. The presecutor was Joe Czupas, of East Centre street, who says that while he was in a neighbor's house Welsh and two other boys named John Augustaitis and Fred, Linkenbuff entered his store and opened the till. The ringing of the till bell attracted Czupas' attention. He saw the boys run from the store. He gave chase and captured Welsh, whom he turned over to Special Officer Alex. When the boy was searched he had $1.10 in his possession. He said he collected the money from two fam-ilies for washing done by his mother. He was committed to the lockup for further hearing.

Origin of the Doily. From the name of Robert D'Oyley originated the word dolly. A grant of land was given to him in the reign of William of Normandy on condition that he should give yearly a tablecloth of at least 3 shillings' value at the feast of St. Michael. According to the custom of the times, the women of his family were skillful with the needle and felt great pride in embroidering their "quit rent tablecloths." In time these cloths came to be valuable and were used as napkins at the royal table. They were called
