REPUBLICANS TO VOTE STRAIGHT

To Follow Advice of Roosevelt and Stand By Party.

DEMOCRATS WORKING A GAM.

Hoping to Catch Opponents Off The Guard, They Are Secretly Working For Complimentary Votes For Candidates For the Legislature and For Congress Throughout Pennsylvania

[Special Correspondence.] Harrisburg, Oct. 27. "Vote the full Republican ticket; do not aid the Democrats in any way in this presidential year; follow the advice of President Roosevelt, and close up the party ranks and present a solid front to the enemy." That in a sentence expresses the general policy of Republicans of this state as evinced on every hand, and the efforts of Democrats and assistant Democrats to persuade Republicans to vote for independent or Democratic nominees for the legislature or for congress are proving unsuccessful everywhere. The Democrats realize that they cannot carry Pennsylvania for the presidential ticket, and they are, therefore, concentrating their efforts in the congressional, senatorial and legislative districts, in the hope that they will catch Republicans off their guard, and thereby be able to increase their representation in the Pennsylvania legislature or the national house of representatives at Washington.

Much is at Stake. Republicans who are interested in the perpetuation of Republican policies to which all the prosperity of the country has ever enjoyed it due, are reminded that it would be a serious mistake on the part of any one holding those views to neglect his duty at next Tuesday's election, when by such neglect a Democrat should be elected who would be sure to vote, whether in the legislature or congress, against Republican measures in which the country is interested. No greater disaster could befall the country than the election of a Democratic congress. It should be patent to all Republicans that not more than one Democrat could be elected to congress from this state unless through the neglect or disloyalty of Republicans to their party nominees. No man calling himself a Republican should be willing to be a party to assist the Democrats in an effort to embarrass a Republican administration, and this he would do by neglecting to vote the straight Republican ticket on Tuesday next.

COUNTESS A MOTHER.

Stork Leaves Daughter For Former Gladys Vanderbilt.

Budapest, Oct. 28.—The Budapest newspapers announce that the Countess Szechenyi, formerly Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, has given birth to a daughter.

Dispatches from Budapest and Vienna on Sept. 1 stated that the Countess Szechenyi was seriously ill following the birth of a child that died immediately.

A day or two later, however, the count declared that his wife was seriously ill, and on Sept. 11, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt of New York, she arrived at Vienna for the purpose of consulting a prominent gynecologist.

The event now reported was expected to take place the latter part of October.

Several Hundred Barrels of Oil Burned Boston, Oct. 28.—Several hundred barrels of oil stored in a storehouse on Long wharf were destroyed in an unusually stubborn fire. Several schooners had their top hampers damaged.

Burglar Leaves Trail of Jewels. Lenox, Mass., Oct. 28.—Scared away by a maid, a burglar jumped from a second story window of Brookhurst, Mr. Newbold Morris' villa, and left a trail for a quarter of a mile of jewels and silver.

Workman Whirled to Death. New York, Oct. 28.—While hurrying to change his clothes in a factory Julius Bremen was whirled hundreds of times around a shaft and killed.

Weather Probabilities. Fair and cloudy, with showers and shifting winds.

For State Senator.

SAMUEL W. HOFFORD, of Carbon. A WORD TO FIRST VOTERS.

You, young man, who are about to cast your first ballot, are facing a grave responsibility. Hitherto you have passively enjoyed the benefits of this Republic. Now you are to become an active factor in the government of the nation, assuming the full burden of the duties of citizenship. Though the privilege to vote comes to you without effort, do not forget that to obtain it other men left their homes in foreign lands, severing many ties and started life anew.

What will you do with your ballot? It is no light matter for you to decide how you shall cast your first vote, nor should you let yourself be swayed by whim or prejudice. The whole subject lies before you for calm consideration, and it is your duty to give it this consideration.

With your first vote you ally yourself with a political party. You have the opportunity to enroll yourself with the Republicans, who have made this nation what it is today; who have kept the faith bequeathed to them by the fathers, and established a firm standard of sound statesmanship, administering the government through men of proved experience and integrity.

If you make that choice you associate yourself at once with men of achievement, leaders of the nation, and with a party of honorable tradition and civilization, and can with proper pride feel that you have helped toward progress.

But if any whim impels you to cast your lot with the opponents of those who have accomplished so much, reflect well before you follow the impulse, for the so-called Democratic party of today has drifted completely away from its former ideals, veering like a weathercock under the influence of untried and visionary leaders who champion policies of political expediency.

Remember that if you assist in plunging the nation into want, discontent and disorder, destroying both domestic and foreign credit, some of the blame and disgrace will rest upon you.

For this year you have a vote in the election of a President of the United States.

The Democrats put forward as their candidate a politician who has changed his belief repeatedly, who is unstable, and untried, and is distrusted even by members of the party under whose name he conducted his canvass, many of whom make no secret of their intention to vote against him; whose very nomination created widespread alarm among business men.

The Republicans offer as their candidate for the Presidency a fearless, disinterested and upright man, trained in the severe school of duty, whose career of accomplishment assures his fitness, whose record is one of unceasing industry in exacting tasks, and contains no hint of failure; whose personality has won the esteem and approval of the American people.

His reputation for absolute spotlessness in both public or private life is as well known abroad as it is at home. By temperament, capacity and experience he is qualified for the administration of great affairs of state. He has shown a single-minded devotion to the service of his country, with a broad and humane sympathy to which sound appeal is never unavailing.

This man is William Howard Taft. Associated with him on the ticket is James Scholercraft Sherman, who for many years has sat in the councils of the nation and is skilled in the conduct of public affairs.

Young man, you stand on the threshold of decision.

Your first step in the world of politics will have a strong influence on your life, affecting your associations and your business.

Before making your decision and taking a step that can not be retraced, read what is said on this matter by two statesmen of unquestionable probity, devoted to the best interests of the nation, and honored for their high standard in political morality. These men are Charles E. Hughes, Governor of New York, and Albert J. Beveridge, Senator from Indiana.—Saturday Evening Post.

If you want your accounts carefully and honestly audited, a vote like this will count for Leshner and Larrabee, two accurate and painstaking accountants.

LETTERS TO HAINS

Wife Wrote of Visits Made to "Queer Places."

WITH ANNIS AS HER ESCORT.

She Stated That She Was "About to Retire After Turning a Few Somersaults For Minnie."

New York, Oct. 28.—Another turn in the Hains case which divulges secrets of the inner life at Fort Hamilton was revealed when forty letters written by Mrs. Claudia L. Hains to her husband and mailed to him at San Francisco were made public by John F. McIntyre and Joseph A. Shay of counsel for Captain Hains and his brother, T. Jenkins Hains.

In one of Mrs. Hains' letters she referred to the Duke of the Abruzzi, whom she met in New Orleans while her husband was in command of Jackson barracks there. This letter, dated March 23 last, said in part: "The Duke d'Abruzzi is to marry Miss Elkins, I see. Poor me! And I thought I was IT. Well, you needn't be jealous. A big kiss and the trimmings."

One of the first read: "I have been uptown with — bummer. We went up to supper and went into the Fifth Avenue for a drink and met Billy Annis in there with a bunch of men. We kidnaped him and took him along with us. Mrs. — is crazy about him. I am afraid she has cut me out. She is very attractive, has the prettiest mouth and teeth I ever saw, but she can punish booze. We got home about half past 12. It is now 1, and I am tired. We went into some queer places and very interesting. Good night, dear, with lots of love and many kisses."

In another Mrs. Hains said: "I am about to retire after turning a few somersaults in the kitchen for Minnie." Minnie, it was explained, was a servant in the Hains home at Fort Hamilton.

Other letters contained these paragraphs: "— came in this afternoon and rushed the groceries. He does that to perfection." "Good night, dear. See what you are missing by being with your sporty wife."

"I had such a headache this afternoon. I had been on there; not a thing was done because there was no booze last night."

"I have been running round the post with Mrs. — and Mrs. —. My, but Maude does smoke! Four or five in quick succession! Most of the women on the post smoke. I did my share today. Good night, dear."

"Mrs. — roped — and me into a game of cards. The others all sneaked. — wanted me to go home and have a smoke with her."

"I came in from the evening service at the chapel and found a letter from — saying she would be here in the morning. It was unexpected in a way, but I am glad. I went to chapel with Mrs. — to see about confirmation on Thursday. I am getting religion, and I suppose you will say, 'God, she needs it!'"

"Mrs. — and I went up to the Fifth Avenue hotel—this afternoon to take our last drink, as it is to be torn down Monday. I telephoned Billy, and he came over with a kid about twenty, and we had a bully time. I got away with a soup tureen and Mrs. — a chafing dish and spoons, and so on. We wanted to stay in the evening, but Billy had tickets with —, so we had to come home with our lieutenant."

RISKS LIFE TO SAVE WOMAN Engineer Climbs on Locomotive Running Board, but is Too Late.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 28.—James Freeman, a Pennsylvania railroad engineer, as heroic as modest, made a splendid attempt to save a woman's life at the Market street station here. Freeman sprang through the window of his cab, climbed perilously along the running board of the flying engine and, leaping far out over the cowcatcher, sought to pluck from the rails the woman, whose terror held her motionless.

The engineer was a moment too late; the woman was ground to death under the heavy wheels.

That story about forest fires turning out chestnuts roasted just right is a match for the old timer about growing corn popped by the sun in the hot weather belt.

Critics insist that there is too much of the "step lively" in many of the American schools to make scholars out of even the best of timber.
