THE FARVIEW HOSPITAL.

The First Shovelful of Earth Thrown Out on Saturday.

On Friday last architect Shirk and contractor Glenn, of Philadelphia, arrived in Carbondale, and with Dr. T. C. Fitzsimmons, visited Farview, and after inspecting the site, made everything ready for beginning the work of laying the foundation of the mammoth structure.

On Saturday the first shovelful of earth was thrown out by contractor Glen, who will superintend the erection of the building.

No ceremonies were arranged for the event, but several of the State officers interested in the project were present, including architect J. C. M. Shirk, who drew the plans for the several buildings, and the following members of the hospital commission: Former Speaker H. F. Walton, president of the commission; Senator William Sprondel, of Delaware; James Milespeller, of Allentown; former Congressman Charles Mullen, of Mount Holly, Hon. C. Fred. Wright, of Susquehanna, and Senator Sterling Catlin, of Luzerne county.

During the year 1905 a bill was introduced in the State Legislature appropriating $160,000 for the purchase of a site and erecting suitable buildings in which to keep the State's criminal insane. Although there was some opposition to the measure, it went through with a large majority, and a commission was named to select and purchase a site and get plans and specifications for the erection of the buildings. A number of sites were inspected by the commission, but they finally decided on the Farview site as the most desirable, taking everything into consideration, and the plot of ground was secured.

It was expected to begin operations earlier in the year, but unavoidable delays prevented this, and now with every obstacle removed the work will be pushed rapidly. As soon as the foundation walls are laid a large force of mechanics will be employed, and it is expected that, where possible, local workmen will be given employment.

With the completion of the Farview hospital accommodation for many hundreds of the criminal insane will be had, and those now confined in other institutions such as the regular insane asylums, state prisons and municipal institutions, will be sent to Farview.

The site on which the hospital buildings will be erected was conveyed to the State by the Delaware & Hudson Railroad Company for a nominal sum. It comprises about 600 acres and includes a never failing spring of water, several acres of valuable farm land and a large tract of picturesque mountain land.

Proposed Changes in Fish Laws.

Important changes in the fish laws of Pennsylvania are provided in two bills adopted by the conference of representatives of the fish protective association of thirty-one counties, which concluded its work in Harrisburg on Friday last. The bills will be submitted to the Legislature.

It is proposed to permit violators of fish laws to appeal to court, and also do away with the division of fines among wardens and informers, and turn all the money into the State Treasury. Carp are added to the list of food fish.

Among the important changes are these: That the Commissioner of Fisheries be allowed to appoint thirty wardens, at $75 each, instead of twelve, as at present, and a number of special wardens; allowing the Commissioner of Fisheries to close trout streams on petition of 200 citizens; making possession of fish or illegal nets prima facie evidence of guilt; authorizing the setting aside of small streams for nursery purposes; prohibiting, under penalty of $100 fine, sale or offering for sale of illegal fishing devices; allowing two rods, two hand lines or two of each to each fisherman; reducing the number of trout that can be caught in a day to twenty-five; changing bass season from July 1 to December 1.

A HIGH LAKE TRAGEDY.

Fatal Accident and Suicide.

Father and Son Buried in the Same Grave in Dyberry.

Sanger McReynolds, 20 years of age, died at Brownsville, Buckingham township, this county, on Wednesday last week, as the result of an accident which befel him while hunting on the previous Friday. While walking on a log through the woods, the bark slipped, and he fell, striking his back on a stub. He was painfully injured, but managed to reach home, where ordinary treatment seemed to afford much relief, and by Sunday evening, while a young lady of the household was entertaining the family with some violin music, he arose and danced about the room with great apparent enjoyment. On Monday and Tuesday the case took a bad turn, and by Wednesday became alarming. Dr. G. C. Merriman, of Lake Como, was summoned by phone, but despite all efforts to save him the young man died at 6 o'clock in the evening.

Daniel McReynolds, father of the unfortunate young man, married Jennie, a daughter of Abial S. Brown, of Lebanon, and buying the farm of Francis Gilchrist, at Brownsville, now High Lake post office, located there and reared his family of six children. In making his purchase he obtained a loan of his father-in-law, securing it by a mortgage on the property. In course of time James Williams married McReynolds' oldest daughter, and the latter thinking to better himself at Forest City, removed to that place, leaving his own farm and stock in charge of his son-in-law, on a lease. About two years ago, McReynolds, disappointed at Forest City, returned with his family to this county, and found temporary employment with his father-in-law, Mr. Brown. This arrangement lasted till some time in the early fall, when the McReynolds family returned to the High Lake homestead, and its head, with the oldest boy, went farther west to engage in hop picking. This proved to be a profitless venture, and father and son came back to High Lake in worse financial plight than when they started. Then followed the unfortunate accident, and sad death of Sanger, as already related.

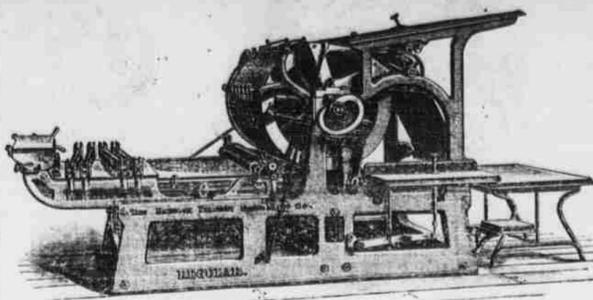

Friday last was fixed as the day for the young man's funeral, and as the interment was to be in the Pulis burying ground, in Dyberry, several miles from the McReynolds farm, nine o'clock was designated as the hour for the services. Shortly after breakfast-time relatives began gathering from distant homes, among them Samuel Wilmarth, an uncle of the dead boy, with his wife, son, and daughter. Mrs. Wilmarth and daughter alighted, and entering the house were greeted kindly by Mr. McReynolds, who then followed his brother-in-law and son to the stable where they were about to put out their team. He was evidently in much distress, but gave them a pleasant greeting, and returned with them to the house.

The Williams, McReynolds and Wilmarth families, with a sister, Mrs. Walton, of Buffalo, having gathered in the breakfast room, Mr. McReynolds was seen by his brother-in-law, Mr. Wilmarth, who was the only one of the group paying any particular attention to his movements, to take from a shelf a half-pint bottle, about half-filled with a white liquid, which Mr. Wilmarth supposed to be some sort of a stimulant. He then, turning his back to his visitor, opened a paper and read it, after which he raised the bottle to his lips and swallowed its contents. A cup partially filled with coffee was standing on the table, and this he immediately drained, after which he rushed out of the house and ran toward the barn, located perhaps two hundred feet distant, on rising ground. He was followed by Mr. Wilmarth and son, who, on nearing him, questioned him as to what he had done, but he made no reply, and on reaching the barn, for which his strength barely held out, he threw himself or fell on the floor, evidently in mortal agony. When he drank the coffee he threw the cup toward the table, knocking over a castor, which attracted the attention of the others in the room, and word coming in of his condition, Dr. Merriman was again summoned from Lake Como by phone. He responded immediately and reached Brownsville while Mr. McReynolds was still breathing, but too late to be of any service, as the unfortunate man died just fifty-five minutes after swallowing the fatal dose. The paper he read just before his rash act was an official notice from Sheriff Roadknight, sent at the instance of a creditor, and the contents of the bottle proved to be carbolic acid.

Mr. McReynolds was 47 years of age, and, besides his wife, is survived by two sons, Jacob and Daniel, and three daughters, Elsie, Clara and Bessie. The funeral of Sanger was postponed until Saturday, when father and son were laid to rest in the same grave, in the Pulis cemetery.

Arnold-Miller.

Married, in Hawley, Oct. 25, 1908, by the Rev. B. P. Ripley, pastor of the M. E. church, Miss Jennie C. Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Arnold, of Hawley, to Charles J. Miller, also of that borough. The bride received many beautiful and useful remembrances. Upon their return from their wedding trip they are to make their home with the bride's parents.

"THE CITIZEN'S" NEW BABCOCK PRESS.

The above is an illustration of the up-to-date drum cylinder press just installed as a part of the new outfit of THE CITIZEN, and upon which this issue is printed. It is from the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing Co.'s factory, New London, Conn., and is claimed by the builders to have no superior for country newspaper and job work. It is of "The Regular" style of their popular flat bed presses, and is capable of not only doing the best of newspaper work, but of turning out fine jobs in two, three or more colors. The distribution, for many varieties of printing is fully equal to that of two revolution presses. The press coming absolutely new from the factory, and being used for this edition as its first service, it cannot be expected that we are doing it, or it is doing itself, the fullest justice this week. For a month past THE CITIZEN office has been in the somewhat chaotic state inseparable from a general house cleaning, but we are finally getting the plant pretty nearly to rights, and when all of our new machinery is in place and in operation, we shall be not only pleased but proud to show such of the friends of the paper as may favor us with a call, what improvements have been effected by the new regime.

HYMENEAL.

Amos Knapp, of Norwich, N. Y., and Miss Et'el C. Marks, of Galilee, Wayne county, Pa., were united in marriage, at the M. E. parsonage, Hancock, on Wednesday last, by Rev. O. A. Marchant.

John B. Golden, of Scranton, and Miss Margaret Moylan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Moylan, of Fermoyn, were married in the former city, Oct. 20, 1908. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Julia Moylan, and the groom by his brother, Paul Golden. Both Mr. and Mrs. Golden hold important positions in the offices of the Scranton Railway Company. Their permanent home will be 601 North Hyde Park Avenue, Scranton.

The wedding of Miss Bina Jacobs, of Scranton to Edward Lowenstein, of Wilkes-Barre, was celebrated Wednesday evening last at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Roos, the latter being a sister of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. N. Anspacher, of the Madison Avenue temple, and was witnessed by a large party of friends. Daniel Jacobs, a brother, gave the bride away, and the bridesmaid was Miss Freda Lowenstein, of New York, a sister of the bridegroom. Nathan Jacobs, a brother of the bride, was best man. Mrs. Roos was matron of honor. The bride wore white lace over tulle. Among other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jacobs and Mr. Mrs. Arthur Leine, of Honesdale, who are relatives of the bride.

Sterling Jubilee Singers.

No attraction is so sure to draw a good crowd and please everybody as a first class jubilee company. The Sterling Jubilee Company have proven themselves to be the most popular organization of the kind that has been offered on any concert course. In addition to their regular program, they will introduce their new plantation melodies with banjo, guitar, and mandolin accompaniments, dividing their program into two parts—the first representing the negro in the old plantation days in the south, the second, the negro after coming north. This will certainly prove a very attractive feature of their program. At the Lyric Theatre on Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th.

Steele.

Nov. 2d.—Henry Hogenkamp is casting his optics around for a suitable residence for the winter months, as he thinks there is no show for getting into the new house now under way on the farm he now occupies.

Thomas Arthur has given up the butcher business and, with Richard Clift, has gone into the lumber woods.

It will be a wonder if the borough of Waymart doesn't have some damages to pay in the near future, as they have a large force of men and teams drawing and filling in the road with rocks and stone between the Hubbard & McMullen stock farm and Waymart. At the present time there is a stretch of about one-half mile of stone and rock, without any covering. Just drive over toward Waymart with a heavy load, and if the supervisor don't get a blessing it will be because you are too much out of breath to give it to him.

From one acre and a-half J. E. Haley has just finished husking 150 bushels of corn. This yield will average with the great corn crop of Albert Odell on the Aldenville road, who cultivated about seven acres with phenomenal success.

Several of the farmers in this section will run a creamery next season and make their own butter, as our creamery at Prompton hardly paid running expenses this season.

David Wonnacott is much improved from his recent illness.

Dreher.
Nov. 2d.—Mrs. Sarah Akers, wife of C. W. Akers, died on Friday morning, Oct. 30th, after a brief illness, aged 59 years. She is survived by her husband and three sons. Interment will be made in the South Sterling cemetery on Monday, Nov. 2d.

N. E. Hause, of Harrisburg, was the guest of J. W. Hause and family on Nov. 1st, and called on some old friends in Dreher.

Wm. Voeste spent a part of last week with relatives in Wilkes-Barre.

And now we have plenty of water again.

It may be interesting to the sporting fraternity to know something of the haul of big game made in this vicinity in the last ten days. Robert Boyce, John Hazelton and Edgar Cross started trapping for bear on the tract lying between the North and South turnpike and Gouldsboro, about two weeks ago. About ten days ago, Mr. Boyce caught the first bear, a cub weighing about 70 pounds. The following day Hazelton and Cross caught another bear that weighed about 100 pounds. On Tuesday morning of last week Boyce had another bear cub in his trap and the other two trappers, Hazelton and Cross, had a cub in one trap and a two hundred pound bear in another. A day or so later Boyce trapped another large cub and Hazelton shot another large bear, weighing two hundred pounds, making seven bears killed within a circle of less than two miles.

Mr. Boyce sold one of the cubs to F. D. Waltz and with the meat of the others he has been treating his friends and neighbors to bear steak. Messrs. Hazelton and Cross sold one cub to Wm. Hughes, of Scranton, the large cub to a man in Easton and one big bear to a man in Nazareth. The large bear that was shot will probably be sent to Scranton.

Mr. Hazelton's dog has treed eleven raccoons this fall and they were all killed. One caught last Friday night weighed a trifle over 15 pounds. After killing all this big game there is some chance for small game to grow.
