FRIDAY, JANUARY 8, 1909.

Mr. FEURTH was the caucus nominee of his party for Speaker of the House. He received 35 votes—one more than his party vote. The Republican who cast this vote was a minister of the Gospel, a rabid local optionist and a red-hot prohibitionist, who refused to support the Republican nominee, Mr. Cox, for the reason that he believed him to be the nominee of the liquor interests.

STATE railroad commissioners representing Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin and Michigan, at a recent meeting in Chicago, took action toward lessening the terrible record of fatalities to trespassers on railroad rights of way. Resolutions were adopted urging the strict enforcement of laws against walking on railroad tracks, and suggesting that police powers be given to section foremen to arrest unauthorized persons found on rights of way. Upward of three-fourths of the killed on the railroads are under the trespasser head—persons for whom the railroads are in no wise responsible.

LOCAL ASTRONOMERS are deeply interested in the striking coincidence of the appearance of a huge spot on the sun about the time of the disastrous earthquake in southern Italy, but are not prepared to claim connection between the two phenomena further than to assert that the same disturbing causes operate simultaneously on the sun and earth at certain irregular periods. The spots now upon the sun disc appeared to view on Monday last week, and will be visible a day or two longer. They are believed to have been caused by violent outbursts of gases from the interior, making their way to the surface and obscuring the sun's light. The new spot has an approximate diameter of 30,000 miles, or nearly four times the diameter of the earth. Its center is dark while the outlying portions are visibly lighter, and it is making its way toward the western edge of the orb, where it will disappear from view.

THERE is a scientific side to the good roads question. No one will dispute that fact. The Scientific American treats the subject along that line, and its conclusions are not far from the real truth. It reasons along popular and common sense lines when it says: "Every pound of farm products brought from rural sections to thickly populated centers has placed upon it a fictitious value, because it costs the farmer more to transport it than it would cost him were the roads in passable condition. The price of the lamb chop that the city man eats for breakfast is based, not upon the real value of the lamb, but upon the cost of bringing that lamb from the western fields to the city man's breakfast table. The cost of the breakfast roll would be trifling did it not cost the farmer who grew the wheat from which the roll was made 1.8 cents a bushel more to draw that wheat from his farm nine miles to a railroad station than it costs to carry a bushel of wheat from New York to Liverpool, a distance of 3,100 miles. The cost of a soft-boiled egg, which is also closely related to the American breakfast, is established by the cost of transporting the product of the hen to the hotel, and not because the egg was at all intrinsically worth what was charged for it."

FROM time to time suggestions have appeared in the local papers favoring the organization of a Wayne county Historical Society. The idea is a good one, and it is a matter for wonderment that it was not favorably acted upon long since. Twenty years ago there were many Wayne county pioneers living who could have furnished information founded on experience and actual knowledge, which if it ever passes into recorded history, now or hereafter, must be based upon hearsay and tradition. Thanks to R. M. Stoeker, the late P. G. Goodrich and the compilers of local histories, much of value has been put in enduring form; but much more might be added through the agency of a well-conducted historical society. The oldest residents of the county are dropping off one by one, yet there are still a few octogenarians and some who have passed the ninetieth milestone, whose memories of early Beech Woods days are yet vivid and reliable. In the nature of things these too will soon have passed away, and if the knowledge they possess is to be utilized, but little time remains in which to make it available. Nearly every county surrounding us has its historical society, and there can be no good reason why Wayne should be an exception in this respect. Perhaps a home for such an organization could be found in the new school building, where its archives and historical relics could be safely kept, with privilege of holding annual meetings in the main auditorium.

CITIZEN ad's bring results.

CHINESE converts to Christianity recognize distinctions in the common faith, albeit sects and schisms are contrary to their national traditions. The description of Quakers as No-wash Society, Anglicans as Little-wash Society, and Baptists as Large-wash Society has, of course, regard to the administration of baptism in the three communities; but other salient points frequently form the basis of title. Thus, to Celestial Christians, Congregationalists are known as the One-man-as-good-as-another Society, Wesleyans as Hand-shakers—in consequence of the custom of their social gatherings—while Presbyterians figure as Women-can't-speak-in-public Society.

The oldest living postmaster is out of a job. The only way he could be pried loose was to discontinue the postoffice. That is what happened to George H. Chamberlain, postmaster of Bock Falls, Wis., a village located a few miles west of Eau Claire. Rural free delivery made a separate office at that point no longer desirable, and the position held by Chamberlain since 1857 has been abolished. Chamberlain isn't much of a sufferer, financially, by the operation. The perquisites of the place weren't more than a few dollars a year. The postoffice was established in 1857, and Mr. Chamberlain, who is now eighty-two years of age, had served continuously since then. President James Buchanan appointed him to the post, and succeeding administrations never interfered with him. Although appointed by a Democratic President, Mr. Chamberlain has always been a Republican, and has voted for every Republican nominee, from 1856 down to the Roosevelt-Taft era.

WOOL VERSUS COTTON.

A Protest Against Bad Advice—An Old Practitioner Takes Issue With the Independent.

Regarding the subject of winter clothing in accord with climatic conditions between Mason and Dixon's line and the Arctic Circle, the publisher of the Wayne Independent puts forth from time to time articles of considerable length, such advice as the following, which is decidedly contrary to the teachings of our profession.

"Old and young should wear open woven linen next to skin, if they wish to feel well and keep well. Wool is not an absorbent and therefore does not keep the surface of the body dry. Besides the majority of people live in a summer temperature in winter in their homes, shops and stores, and thus being made tender by heavy and very warm underclothing, frequently take cold because their skin is made soft and flabby and is not capable of resisting the changes that come from exposure."

"For underclothing, open woven linen is decidedly the most comfortable, sanitary and healthful."

I do not hesitate to assert that such publications as the above are both pernicious and dangerous; pernicious, because unphilosophical and contrary to the science of the subject, and thereby calculated to do harm; dangerous, because the wearer of such clothing next to the skin, in the winter season, whether an invalid or healthy person, is not well clad for personal comfort, nor for the protection of the body from the severity of the winter weather; and he is continually losing his animal heat, which is the prime cause of winter maladies. What can our would-be-instructor mean, when he says, "Wool is not an absorbent, and therefore does not keep the surface of the body dry." Such an idea is absurd; in health, the skin is never dry. Who wishes to keep the skin dry? Does the wearer of linen in winter weather keep the skin dry? If so it is deleterious to the wearer. Physicians know the importance of skin functions, and the danger of its being arrested, for they are physiologists, and know what the drying up of the cuticle means, with its twenty-eight miles of perspiratory tubing, and its seven millions of pores opening through the epidermis, and discharging daily two ounces of excrementitious matter, and not less than thirty ounces of watery vapor. The physician well knows, and can appreciate the results from the interruption of the excretion produced from the drying up of the cuticle, through which those pores are transmitted.

In discussing the philosophy of the subject it may be said, that of all the materials of which our clothing is made, wool is the worst conductor of heat, and it being a bad conductor, makes it the very best material for our winter underclothing, to be worn next to the skin, from head to foot, thereby retaining the animal heat of the person, preventing its escape into the colder atmosphere and promoting the natural insensible perspiration. We are thus protected from the winter maladies, and it is quite the reverse of this when cotton and linen fabrics are depended upon. The latter are for hot weather, or for those not far from the radiator, where the animal heat can be spared advantageously.

Nature does the same for the animals of our climate, by giving them longer, thicker, non-conducting coats in winter, which they very appropriately cast off in the spring to their advantage; but as the human animal cast off his hairy covering in his primeval state, he is obliged to imitate the other animals, by substituting wool and fur in winter, and cotton and linen in summer; and the latter for hot weather, and the former for cold weather, which simple statement is sustained by philosophy and common sense.

OCTOGENARIAN, M. D.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Special Correspondence.)
Early in the new year the senate probably will decide where it will place marble busts of two of the vice presidents, Roosevelt and Fairbanks. Mr. Roosevelt's career in the senate was extremely brief, and although it ended about seven years ago, up to recent date no bust of him had been made.

Mr. Roosevelt selected James Frazier, a young artist of New York, highly recommended by Saint Gaudens as one of the most promising sculptors of the day, and Mr. Frazier has been at work for some time in carrying out his commission. It is said that this bust is near completion and will be delivered before March 4.

Busts of Vice Presidents.
Sixteen years ago the senate adopted a resolution giving continuing power to its committee on the library, of which Senator Wetmore of Rhode Island is chairman, to have busts made of vice presidents. This resolution merely authorized the placing of such busts in the senate wing of the capitol, and they may be put in any of the niches in the gallery of the senate chamber or in other parts of the senate wing. There is no restriction against the removal of busts that now occupy most important places within the chamber itself to make way for new ones. By the removal of one of these marble effigies of a president of the senate during the early days of the nation a place was made for the late Vice President Hobart within the senate chamber.

Mr. Fairbanks' bust is being made by Franklin Simmons, an American artist residing in Rome, who has executed many designs for congress and whose work stands in many places about the capitol and throughout Washington. It is likely that Mr. Fairbanks' bust will be placed in the vice president's room until the expiration of his term of office.

Statue of Naval Hero.
At a meeting of the commission charged with the erection of a statue of John Paul Jones in this city held at the war department recently it was decided to have the statue made by Charles H. Niehaus of New York. Congress appropriated $50,000 for this statue. The commission consists of Secretary Wright, Secretary Newberry, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania and Representative McCall of Massachusetts.

It is as yet undecided whether the Jones statue shall be erected near the naval observatory in Massachusetts avenue, on New York avenue in front of the new Masonic temple or on the north side of Franklin park, midway between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets.

Mr. Niehaus was born in Cincinnati fifty-three years ago and began life as an apprentice to a marble cutter. He studied art in the McMicken School of Design and modeled busts of Disraeli, among others—in Germany, France and England from 1877 to 1881. He has won many medals and prizes since that time. His works ornament public buildings and parks in Cincinnati, Washington, Hartford, Muskegon, Mich.; Buffalo and Memphis. The pediment of the appellate courthouse in New York city was designed by him.

Religion and Politics Mixed.
The man who wrote in the heat of the campaign, "Behold the candidate and listen unto his lamentations," should hear Representative James A. Tawney of Minnesota recount the trials and tribulations he encountered in trying to retain his seat in congress.

"There was no end of roobacks sprung on me," said Mr. Tawney, "but one of the funniest came along at the close of the campaign. One night I went home late from a political meeting dead tired out to find my wife waiting for me."

"Give it up," I replied.
"Well, our pastor and one of the leading members of our church were just here to ask me if there was any truth in the report that you were going to have your wife and daughter change their church for political reasons."

"If they have got to the point where they are mixing up my wife's religion and my politics," I replied, "there is no telling what will come next."

Naval Vessel Condemned.
The converted yacht Inca has been condemned for naval purposes and ordered sold. She is a wooden schooner of 120 tons displacement and was built by George Lawler & Son at Boston in 1898. At the outbreak of the Spanish war she was purchased by the government and converted into a cruiser with a light battery.

Gossip of the Capitol.
"I must still look pretty green," remarked Senator Cummins of Iowa to Senator Flint of California as they strolled, arm in arm, down the capitol corridor the other day. "I've been here several weeks now and am beginning to find my way around a little."
"It's plain, however, that I haven't got over that back country look. This morning as I came through the door a guide walked right up to me and said with an air that meant 'You're just the man I've been looking for.'"
"You can't see the capitol properly, sir, without a guide. Don't you want me to take you around?"
"I told him I would be glad to accept his offer if I only had the time, but I was in a hurry to get in the chamber because I wanted to introduce a couple of bills and wasn't just certain how it should be done."

COUNTY CORRESPONDENCE

Sterling.
JAN. 5.—We are now favored with a little rain and it is very acceptable, for many are short of water.

Our young folks have returned to school, viz: Royal J. and David A. Cross to Cornell University; Floyd, Stella and Myrtle Cross to Wyoming Seminary; Earl V. Cross to Perkiomen Seminary, and Grace Gillner to S. N. S. at Bloomsburg.

Mrs. Alice Catterson is quite ill. Dr. Gilpin is in attendance.

Mrs. Eliza A. Hafler has heart trouble and is in a critical condition. Miss Orta is with her mother. Robert Hafler is improving.

Abram Garris is better, and the same may be said of Mrs. Mary J. Gilmer. Frank Garris is quite sick.

Minnie Howe is living with her Uncle Tom in Scranton, but spent Sunday at home.

For over a year past Willard McLain has been working at Moosic, but is home again.

W. B. Leshar left today to attend to his official duties as one of the county auditors.

For a few years past Harry Cross has been working in Cherry Ridge, but is now spending a few days at home.

On the 31st the Junior base ball team had a "night cap social" and a very pleasant time, realizing about $20 by the entertainment.

At East Sterling, on the 3rd, Rev. Bellas preached the funeral sermon of a daughter of W. J. Gilpin, who died a few weeks ago from diphtheria.

On Christmas day Mr. and Mrs. Floyd A. Neville entertained at dinner Miss Bertha Sadler, of Scranton, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Collins and Ada N. Sadler, of Honesdale, also Mr. and Mrs. Abm. Neville and daughter, Cassie.

During the past three months Prof. J. Creveling's class has averaged 99 per cent. attendance, Miss Laura A. Gilpin's school, with over 40 pupils, has averaged 98 per cent., and Miss Kate Cross's school a little less. We venture to say that there is not another school in the county where the attendance has been as good, and many of the pupils live at quite a distance. We are pleased to know that the schools are running so harmoniously and satisfactorily.

Indian Orchard.

JAN. 4.—The sleighing during the past week has been exceptionally good and all have made good use of it.

Should the weather prove favorable the farmers in this vicinity will begin filling their ice houses soon.

Samuel Saunders, Harry Bunnell, A. M. Henshaw, J. G. Swartz, W. D. Buckingham, W. C. Spry and W. H. Marshall attended Labor Grange at Calkins, on Saturday evening last, and witnessed the installation of officers for the ensuing year. After the installation all were invited to partake of a well prepared supper, consisting of oysters and the various delicacies of the season, after which several were called upon to speak, all of whom responded with appropriate talks, which were well received.

The stockholders of the Big Eddy Telephone Company will meet at Narrowsburg, in Odd Fellow's hall, on Tuesday, the 12th inst.

Christopher Hiller, a highly respected and aged man, of Beech Lake, died on Thursday last and was buried in Beech Lake cemetery on Sunday. Rev. John Tutthill, assisted by Jeremiah Tamblin, officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Taylor, were guests of friends here, on Sunday last. Thomas and Francis Oliver, of Scranton, attended Mr. Hiller's funeral, on Sunday.

Mae Burger, of Honesdale, who has been visiting her uncle, W. C. Spry, has returned to her home.

Edna Oliver, of Chestnut Lake, was a recent visitor at the home of Mabel Gray.

Clinton.

JAN. 5.—Surely no one can remark but that the January thaw is on time this year, and scarcely a person but that is glad to welcome it.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Norton, of Dalton, spent New Year at Ridge Farm.

Myren Grennell spent part of the holiday vacation visiting his children and friends in Carbondale.

Mrs. Emeline Perlam spent last week with her grand-daughter, Mrs. Earl Stanton, of Waymart.

Howard W. Starkweather, a student at Bucknell University, spent a few days last week with his grandfather, H. M. Bunting.

George Zazo died Dec. 28th. Interment was made in a Forest City cemetery.

Mrs. Bernard Groat, who was quite ill last week, is on the gain; and others who were suffering from La Grippe are better.

Farmers have been busy hauling mine props, 200 loads being delivered in Forest City last Saturday, it is reported, and we are told by the person counting, that one day last week 65 loads were drawn over the Griswold Gap road, and still we are without the long-talked-of bridge.

Sherman.
JAN. 5.—Edison Whitmore spent New Year's day in Binghamton, with his daughter, Mrs. Young.
The Ladies' Aid society will meet at the residence of Mrs. Oscar Curtis on Wednesday afternoon.

The glee club, from Deposit, will give an entertainment in the Red Men's hall some evening this week.

Rev. Charles Moon will preach here on Sunday at the usual hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis entertained the following at their home New Year's day, at dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McLary and their three children, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Curtis and son, Howard.

Horace Brown, from Niagara Falls, is calling on his many friends here.

Milanville.

JAN. 6th.—Mrs. LaVerne Twining, of Binghamton, and Mr. and Mrs. Luther Woodley, of Beach Lake, were guests at M. L. Skinner's, on Thursday last.

Silas Dexter, who was operated on several days ago, for appendicitis, by Dr. Swartout, of Port Jervis, is pronounced out of danger. Clarence Shaffer, also of Atco, was operated on for the same disease, recently, at the Port Jervis Hospital.

Miss Lorena Skinner returned to Albion, N. Y., last week.

Mrs. Elbridge Carpenter, of Burlington, Vt., is spending a few days with her grandmother, Mrs. D. H. Beach, at this place.

The ice went out of the Delaware on Tuesday afternoon.

R. R. Beegle was in Port Jervis, on Wednesday of this week, having dental work done.

Mrs. Beach entertained Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Page and son Howard, and Miss Ida Coats, at dinner, on New Year's day.

The Misses Luscomb and Cornell, who enjoyed a week in town as guests of Mrs. Reeves Sampson, returned to Brooklyn, last Saturday.

DR. C. R. BRADY, Dentist Honesdale, Pa. Office Hours—8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Any evening by appointment. Citizens' phone, 33. Residence, No. 90 X.

In Memoriam.

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst Edward E. Fowler, a member of our Club, who died Dec. 14th, 1908, therefore,

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with his family in the untimely death of the son and brother, who was just in the prime of his manhood, and who was loved and esteemed by those who knew him.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the records of our Club, a copy sent to the family, and publication be made in the local papers.

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS
The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it is, in fact, the popular unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation.

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.
