A glass of warm water before breakfast is a tonic for the whole system. If the complexion is in need of improvement try squeezing half a lemon into the water just before drinking.

Have as nice towels as you can afford, but pay less attention to the quality than to their cleanliness. There is little use of careful scrubbing if a half soiled towel is used for drying.

Sties almost invariably indicate a weakened condition of the system, but external applications relieve and better the lids. A pomade for the purpose is made from four grams white vaseline and five centigrams each of white precipitate and oli of birch. This is applied at night. A drop of belladonna on a lump of sugar is an old fashioned remedy that is taken when symptoms of a sty are first manifested. At the same time the lids are to be bathed in warm elder flower water.

A skin whitening preparation that can be easily made at home is in the proportion of two tablespoonfuls of ontinent, a half tablespoonful of powdered borax and a half pint of rose water. Let the mixture stand three days, strain and add a half ounce of alcohol. The addition of the alcohol prevents the souring which is the drawback to so many oatmeal preparations. If preferred, instead of using all oatmeal it can be mixed with half this bulk of almond meal. Either of these washes makes the skin feel soft and smooth if rubbed on the hands or face after washing.

This he did, escorting them while there to all the places of interest and beauty in that charming city but not during the whole of their stay or even on the return did one of the men say to him that they had liked the trip or had enjoyed themselves.

Naturally anxious to know whether they had done so, a few days after their return he asked one of the churchwardens, a farmer in the village, whether he thought the men had enjoyed their time in Paris. The churchwarden cogitated for a moment

"Well, sir," he said at length, "I ain't heard no complaints."

Liked the Treatment.

A slater who was engaged upon the roof of a house in Glasgow fell from the ladder and lay in an unconscious state upon the pavement. One of the pedestrians in the street who rushed to the aid of the poor man chanced to have a flask of spirits in his pocket, and, to revive him, began to pour a little down his throat,

"Canny, mon, canny," said a man looking on, "or you'll choke him."

The "unconscious" slater opened his eyes and said quietly, "Pour awa". mon, pour awa'; ye're doin' fine."

Storming the Winning Post.

William IV, of England, who was bred to the sea, had no particular predilection for horse racing, but he so far interested himself in the sport as to take up his brother's stud to run out the engagement of George IV. Just previous to the first appearance of the royal stud in his name the train er sought an interview to know what was the royal pleasure-how many horses the king would send down How the trainer must have stared when he heard the sailor king, as if giving a command for a three decker to fire a broadside, order the whole stud, upward of 100 horses, to be let off at one shot for a single race!

"Send down the whole squad!" said the king. "Some of them, I suppose.

Humor of the Stump.

During a warm political campaign an "old timer" took the stump. Whether he gathered many lost sheep into the fold of his party or not, he certainly did not detract from the humor of the situation. On one occasion a crowd of people gathered to hear him speak.

"Fellow citizens," he roared, "our opponents are resorting to every form of vileness, to dishonest and underhand tricks, to inconceivable meanness, to the corruption of voters, but we warn them"-his thunder shook the roof-'we warn them, fellow citizens, that that is a game that two can play at!"

Courage.

Courage is a virtue that the young cannot spare; to lose it is to grow old before the time. It is better to make a thousand mistakes and suffer a thousand reverses than run away from battle.-Henry Van Dyke.

He Learned a Lot.

Once a boy thought he would braid a mule's tail. Later, when his father was trying to straighten up his features so that his mother wouldn't have to get acquainted with him all over again, he asked, "Father, will I ever be beautiful any more?"

"No, my child," said the father, as he delicately pried the bridge of the lad's nose into something like its oldtime form, "no, my child, you will never be beautiful, but you'll know a danged sight more."
