

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Ground Feed For Horses.

For horses at hard work for long hours all the grain should be ground and mixed with chopped hay, says American Cultivator.

Around the Farm.

There is nothing like rotation, thorough cultivation and plenty of good barnyard manure to keep the soil in good shape.

There is a lot of satisfaction in working in good, mellow soil. It can be kept right only by constant, systematic working.

The poor places in the dooryard should be attended to at once. They are an eyesore to you and a discredit to your place.

In buying farm machinery always get the best and most reliable. It will prove cheapest in the end.

The right way to handle manure is to handle it as little as possible. Put it where you can use it at once.

Keep the cultivator shovels bright and sharp. They will do better work and the team will do more work.

Heart Girth and Vitality.

The boys at the Nebraska experiment station tried out some steers last winter to determine the type that make the best feeders.

Feather Pulling Fowls.

Feather pulling is a habit said to come from idleness. When once the fowls learn the habit they seem to delight in eating the feathers.

Prepotency of the Sire.

About the most reliable basis of calculation as to the power of transmission, or as it is called, prepotency of the bull, is the dairy character of the grandmothers and great-grandmothers on both sides of his pedigree.

The quality of his ancestors will have more effect on his offspring than the performance of his mother. She gives to him of what she inherited more than of what she does.

To Fatten Broilers.

An excellent mixture for fattening broilers is made as follows: One hundred pounds of finely ground barley, 100 pounds of finely ground corn, 100 pounds of finely ground oats, with hulls sifted out, to which mixture is added thirty pounds of beef scraps.

Value of Cultivation.

Probably no operation on the farm pays as well on the investment as the extra tillage requisite to secure ideal conditions. Clods repel the tiny roots and vacancies between carry neither ready moisture nor food.

Water Horses Frequently.

Watering often is far better than waiting till a horse is almost choked and then letting him have all he can drink.

THE WORLD UPSIDE DOWN.

International Bible Lesson for July 18, '09—(Acts 17: 1-15).

Whenever the enemies of Paul heard of his approach, they fled. "These that have turned the world upside down have come hither also."

When the apostle came to Thessalonica, on his itinerary he aroused the usual opposition. He had no sooner begun to deliver his message than his enemies started the story that he was presenting the claims of a rival king.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Sewing Hooks and Eyes.

Try this quick way of putting hooks and eyes on a waist. Sew the eyes on the left front the desired distance apart, with the loops out far enough to make hooking easy.

To mark the place for buttons, pin the buttonhole edge of the garment in place, then with a needleful of thread begin at one end and take a single stitch in every buttonhole, carrying the thread to the opposite end.

Care of Gloves and Veils.

Silk and lisle gloves wash readily in lukewarm suds made of good white soap. They should be well rinsed, squeezed in a towel and hung up to dry.

Some Uses For Lemons.

A teaspoonful of lemon juice in a small cup of black coffee will drive away an attack of bilious headache. A little lemon juice rubbed on the face, arms and neck at night will not only whiten but soften the skin.

Embroidery Stiletto.

The embroidery stiletto herewith shown will punch any size holes desired in a fabric. By any size, of course, is meant any of the sizes used in that sort of work. The device consists of a small rod tapering into a sharp point and equipped with a handle.

MAKES HOLES OF ANY SIZE.

toward the handle the circumference of the holes may be increased to that of the rod itself. It can thus be made to pierce any size holes, from small eyelets to comparatively large circles.

Fruit Mint Julep.

Boil together for ten minutes three pints of water and a pound and a half of granulated sugar. Add to this one packed cup of chopped mint leaves. Cover and let stand for ten minutes, then strain and cool. Add to this the strained juice of one dozen lemons, one cup and a half of strained orange and strawberry juice, and let all stand an hour.

Elderberry Wine.

Four two gallons of warm water on every seven pounds of berries, then to every two gallons of this juice add seven pounds of white sugar. Stem and mash berries in earthen jar, pour on the water, let stand three days, stirring every day, then strain or press, add the sugar and let stand overnight. In morning skim off, put in a large jug or keg to ferment. When through, cork jug tight or bottle.

To Protect Fingers.

To protect fingers from the needle in making buttonholes cover the first finger with white cotton plaster when sewing black goods and black plaster when sewing on white goods.

To Remove Mildew.

To remove mildew, rub common yellow soap on the damaged article and then sift some starch on that. Rub well and nut out in the sunshine.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

THE man who wants something of you may have a high regard for your opinion for all that.

A bluff is never a luxury, but often a necessity.

It is hard for a woman to be a good cook and keep one.

Being a dead one is a slow way of getting a living.

There is one thing about dying—you never have to do it over again.

One of the joys of going away for the summer is coming back for the winter.

Don't nurse a desire for revenge. It is generally pretty healthy, and your effort is wasted.

When a man is hungry he growsl. When a woman is hungry she goes and gets something to eat.

Most anything will pay. The only question to be decided is, Who?

Neglected Season.

The tuncful poets warble Of sweet and chilly spring, At seasons unresponsive Their pretty fancies fling. Let's sing a song of summer, For real don't you say It ought to have a look in When poets tune their lay?

Perhaps the spring is useful, And in a modest way It sort of gets things going To start the big display, But were it not for summer We'd sing about the harvest Pray, where would be the harvest And all the things to eat?

Yes, summer is a charmer, Not knocking any one, Its skies are fair and balmy, And friendly is its sun, Perhaps at times too friendly, But still you don't suppose We'd sing about the summer Were it to freeze our toes.

Then sing the balmy summer, And while its charms we scan, For goodness' sake, dear brother, Start that electric fan, And while in language classic, High sounding, but precise, We chant its many virtues Put something fresh on ice.

Worn Out.

"He finds it very hard to tell a lie." "Does he, indeed?" "Yes." "He must be very conscientious." "Well, I would hardly call it that. You see, he has told so many that he has simply run out of material."

Where It Excelled.

"How is your new machine?" "Fine." "Is it fast?" "Fast? I should say so. It can run up a bill quicker than anything I ever saw."

Ineffectual.

"Why don't you like Brown?" "No good." "I am sure he means well." "Maybe, but he doesn't mean it hard enough to count."

In These Days.

"Does she marry often?" "The widow?" "Yes." "Not very. She says men are so unreliable."

Could Be Easily Read.

"You say you like easy reading." "Yes; decidedly." "What do you prefer to read?" "Ten thousand dollar checks."

One For Keeps.

"Have you a good girl?" "Excellent." "What is her best quality?" "Her adhesiveness."

Properly Punished.

"It's a crime." "What is?" "Being as big a fool as you are." "How did you know I wanted to marry you?"

Wearisome Rest.

"You look tired. Are you?" "I should say I am." "What have you been doing?" "Keeping still."

The Reason, Perhaps.

"I always like to meet clever people." "Yes; I have heard that opposites were attracted."

It Molds the Race.

The pen is mightier than the sword. A wise old guy once quoth, The barrel stave'll well applied, Is mightier than both.
