WAYMART.

Rev. Brant, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., representative of the Anti-Saloon League, delivered an excellent address in the M. E. church last Sunday morning to a very appreciative audience. From the logical facts that he presented, we are led to believe that the grim monster, intemperance, is short lived, and will soon be known only as a relic of bygone days. Christian civilization is aroused and will not much longer tolerate such a demonical destroyer of homes.

It was announced, one week previous, that Dr. George W. Twitmyer would deliver an address in the M. E. church Sunday evening, July 18. Dr. Twitmyer is no stranger in Wayne county. The work that he did in the schools of Honesdale, a decade ago, is now yielding abundant fruit, not only in Honesdale but in every hamlet in Wayne county. Our people turned out well, and a very large congregation was present to hear the Doctor. The audience, as a unit, was enthusiastic in its praises. Every thought uttered was a maxim or better still, a Christian principle for better living.

We urge our alumni, patrons and in fact, the host of admiring friends of our school in Wayne and other counties, to aid us in every possible way.

One of the largest crowds that ever attended a base ball game at White Mills was present on Sunday last, and witnessed White Mills defeat Hawley by a score of 5 to 0 in the second game of the series.

Hawley ran a special train for the occasion and everything pointed to a good game of ball. In the second inning Hawley kicked on George Murrans' decision by calling Guthell safe on second. Manager McAndrew evidently seeing no chance to win the game from such a strong team as White Mills called his men from the field, but the majority of the spectators knew that Guthell was safe and would sustain Murrans' decision, knowing him to be an authority on base ball. Manager Jones, being a genuine sport of the true type, and not wishing to disappoint such a large crowd of fans, gave them the point in question.

White Mills and Honesdale will play at White Mills on Sunday, July 25th. Honesdale team is largely made up of professional players and everything points to a strong game. Brader, Hessling, Murrans and Sunny Edwards are the boys who can play the game.

Why is it that the law says, no Sunday fishing, because that is the only day that was given by the Lord to a poor man to fish. He has to work the other six. So the law should read, no fishing for a poor man.

SAVED BY SEAWALL

Galveston Not Damaged by Tropical Hurricane.

SEVEN FOOT FLOOD HALTED.

Storm Broke Over Once Devastated City at 68 Miles an Hour, but Storm Warning Had Been Sent Out.

Galveston, Tex., July 22.—Fortified behind her seventeen foot sea wall and elevated to a point above the danger line, Galveston passed safely through a hurricane that resembled the disastrous storm of 1900.

It was the terrifying experience of that flood that enabled the city to take the precautions that saved it from a like fate this time. Galveston had a taste of flood in 1885, but the great disaster occurred on Sept. 8, 1900. The flood then, as now, was the direct result of a gulf hurricane, which blew straight inshore with a velocity of eighty miles an hour. The duration of the storm was only five hours, but at the end of that time property to the value of $20,000,000 had been destroyed and 5,000 lives had been lost.

In this last flood part of the island on which the city is situated was again inundated, the overflowing sea water reaching a height of seven feet or more. That portion of the island which has been protected suffered comparatively little harm. No lives were lost and the property damage is not large.

The tropical storm attained a velocity of sixty-eight miles an hour and shifted to the northwest, leaving the waters of Galveston bay up against the island and flooding that quarter which had not been raised.

The water backed up into the main streets of the city, but the principal damage was confined to the beach front, where bath houses and pleasure piers were swept away. Shipping was undisturbed.

The weather bureau had sent out warnings and when the wind and rain arrived Galveston was prepared. The inhabitants in the low part of the island had already sought safety and the vessels that had cleared and had prepared to sail had safely anchored in the bay.

The fury of the storm soon abated and the anxiety of those who entertained fears of another tidal wave was relieved.

A heavy dredge torn from its moorings was blown against the single bridge that connects Galveston island with the mainland, breaking the telegraph cables that were carried by the bridge. As a result all manner of rumors were soon rife throughout the country to the effect that Galveston had again suffered such a storm as that which partly destroyed the city nine years ago. It was not until communication was re-established that these reports could be denied.

Few buildings were blown down, but many warehouses were flooded, and goods on the bottom floors of these buildings were ruined.

The storm covered a wide area along the gulf coast. Some damage is reported as far south as Matagorda bay and as far east as the parish of Cameron, Louisiana.

A fishing pier seven miles from Galveston was demolished by wind and waves. Thirty or forty persons on it were rescued by the pilot boat Texas and brought to Galveston.

As a result of the damage to the bridge communication by rail has been cut off. Crews are at work on it, and trains will go over the structure late today. Tugboats are carrying passengers, mail and freight across the bay to Galveston at present.
