USES OF SAWDUST.

Too Valuable now to Be Put to the Uses it Once Served.
Many are the uses of sawdust. In the days when the sawdust wagon made its lumbering rounds through the streets of most large cities two commercial uses of sawdust were to sprinkle thereon and to shelter bird nests from cold and glass broken from breakage.
Near every sawmill was a vat for the sawdust and it was carted away free by any one who had any use for it. In this era of the use of by-products of sawdust has a commercial value. It is no longer given away, but is sold.
One of the recent uses of sawdust is its distillation, resulting in acetic acid, wood naphtha, wood alcohol and tar. Sawdust may also be burned in special furnaces or mixed with other material for fuel.
Sawdust, when saturated with chemicals, can be effectively used in the manufacture of explosives, but it is more particularly in demand in paper making than for any other purpose. Such a thing as sawdust on the floor of a room as a substitute for a rug or carpet is now practically unknown. Sawdust has joined sand in this respect.
Cotton felt has been substituted for sawdust as a non-conductor of cold in winter. Gas can be made from sawdust. It is also used for briquettes, i. e., blocks of compressed sawdust and wood chips burned for fuel. Even in the protection of glassware against breakage sawdust has been superseded by excelsior, sawdust being regarded as too valuable for such use.

Tall Montana Fell.

A singular rivalry has arisen between two Montana towns as to which possesses the tallest family, Libby, in Flathead county, professes to have more tall people than any town of its size on the continent. Ten members of one family have a combined height of almost sixty feet. The father weighs 215 pounds and is 6 feet 2 1/2 inches tall. The mother weighs 225 pounds and is 5 feet 5 inches tall. The first son, 6 feet 2 1/2 inches tall, age 21 years; second son, 6 feet 4 inches, age 19 years. The head of this proud family is Horian Bockman.
Red Lodge calls attention to the fact that in that city four members of one family are taller than any four members of the Bockman family. W. A. Talmage is 6 feet 4 1/2 inches tall; Earl Talmage, age 18 years, is 6 feet 8 inches tall; Elmer Talmage, age 19 years, is 6 feet 7 1/4 inches tall, and Nathan, the youngest, who is only 12 years of age, measures 5 feet 6 inches. Then the average height of the father and three sons will unquestionably compare with that of any other family in the entire country.—Helen's correspondence St. Paul Dispatch.

THE COUNTY FAIR POULTRY SHOW.

"Let's go see the chickens" is one of the first expressions when folks enter a county fair. Who isn't tempted to poke those roosters, geese and quacks?
The peanut man is sharp enough to keep near the poultry pavilion.
The small boy will share peanuts every time with those crows and cacklers.
No use talking, everybody likes chickens.
Mother started that affection when she brought the peas in her apron from the nest for the little toddlers to laugh over.
The management of our fairs own that the poultry feature is most popular, and every year they are making advancement in housing, cooping, feeding, superintending and judging the poultry exhibit.
This season many societies advance the amount of premiums and throw open competitions and costly new poultry pavilions.
Some have advanced first premium on single birds to $5 and pen to $20 and offer magnificent silver cups. That this is appreciated by fanciers is shown by an increase in exhibits of high scoring birds, the entry at certain fairs last year being over 4,000. A few fair associations still have the fossil idea that the honor and advertisement of exhibiting is very great, so they expect fanciers to cooperate, coop feed, water and recreate their birds.
One of these pays 75 cents for first, 40 cents for second, and demands an entry fee of 25 cents, and the fancier must attend to everything, even to paying the drayage. Prize fags are not needed at such fairs—the management will do. Unfortunately fairs come at a time when fowls are in poor condition. They need special care and should be exhibited where drafts and most earnest touch them; bedding should be dry, a sufficient quantity of good mixed grain, grit and water should be provided, and the superintendent should not only know how to feed fowls, but he should know the symptoms of ailments that such fowls may be promptly removed. It pays to exhibit at progressive fairs, and you may have good birds to win.

A Practical Tip.
Should it be your ambition to write a humorous verse pick out an ancient subject and express in language terse. The editor may reject it if the meter's out of joint, but if you fashion it like this he'll surely see the point.

The Turkish Empire.
The Turkish empire has an area of 1,602,280 square miles and a population of more than 38,000,000.

Doctors Thick in New York.

The proportion of physicians to the general population is probably greater in New York city than anywhere else in the country. In the United States, for example, taking the estimated population of the Census Bureau for 1908 as a basis, there is one licensed physician to every 709 persons; in New York State there is one to 472, and in New York city one to only 653.

It has been estimated that the physician in general practice must have a clientele of 750 persons, or 150 families, to support himself and his family in comfort, so if this estimate is accurate the New York doctor is short an average of 100 patients, and many of course are further behind than that.

Kaiser Obeyed Scene Shifter.

A story is told in Berlin newspapers which places the Kaiser in a somewhat curious light. Recently he visited a theatre and strolling behind the curtain became liberal of advice to the manager, actors and even scene shifters, who listened in awed silence. Presently the Emperor lighted a cigar, puffing as he talked. On both sides of him were flimsy draperies and on the floor heaps of paper.
One of the scene shifters stepped forward and pointed politely to a printed notice: "No smoking allowed." For a moment the Kaiser flushed, then smiling, he put out his cigar, remarking as he did so: "Thank you, friend. It would be bad business if your Emperor taught you to disobey the law."

Beribboned Flowers.

The use of ribbons with flowers has a great field and enhances the beauty and value of them. A bunch or basket with an appropriate bow artistically placed makes it worth as much again, if you are not simply selling merchandise.
But put the ribbon where it belongs, where the eye suggests the need of something being tied. To put a red necktie on an araucaria is as bad taste as chiffoning an azalea with a lot of flussy stuff puffing out here and there. It does not do the azalea any good and wastes the ribbon.
You can use some receptacle with the plant that offers an excuse to tie on a bow of ribbon and you at once have the satisfying effect on the eye.

Curiosity Gratified.

Former Customer (after a long absence)—What has become of the pretty blonde that used to feed the hungry at this lunch counter?
Dark-skinned Walter Girl—I'm her. What you goin' to order, sir?
