STERLING.

New subscribers to The Citizen by sending $1.50 will receive the paper until January, 1911.

For several hours to-day the thermometer registered about 80 degrees in the shade, and at noon in the sun it was 115 degs.

All our water on the hill is getting very low.

H. H. Robacker is building a fine large stone silo.

C. E. Wegster is reroofing his barn.

Mr. Edgerton is a guest of his daughter at the parsonage.

A little boy, about five months old, died this morning at Robert Balslup's, and the funeral services will be held Thursday at the house, Rev. Webster officiating.

To-day Earl Cross left for Perkeomen Seminary; Floyd and Stella for Wyoming Seminary, and last week Grace Gilmer left for Bloomsburg. Mrs. S. N. Cross accompanied them as far as Scranton.

Last night Miss A. M. Noble returned from Ocean City where she had been with a sister for the past two or three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bortree have also returned from Niagara Falls and other points of interest to tourists.

A daughter of R. W. Bartleson left for Philadelphia this week.

Wm. Fitz is moving from Madisonville to Zion and will move into B. F. Simons' house.

Mrs. Clitia Magargle Phelon, of Chickapee, Mass., is the guest of her sister, Miss Pauline Magargle, of Moscow, and to-day Mrs. Gauge, with Melvine Magargle as driver, brought them to town.

MILANVILLE.

Mrs. James and Mrs. Walters, of Jersey City, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brush, of Callicoon, N. Y., spent Saturday at Reeve Sampson's.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornell and daughter, Miss Ethel, entertained their Milanville friends on Saturday evening. "The Influence of a Chaperon," written and presented by the following, was given by Mrs. W. A. Cornell, Misses Hall, Margruder, Luscomb, Cornell, and Cooper. The play, which was original, was very clever and well given to an appreciative audience. Later in the evening all enjoyed a campfire and corn roast on the shore.

Misses Edna and Lorena Skinner entertained their out-of-town friends on Tuesday evening of last week.

The Hocker young people gave their juvenile friends a good time last Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Holdridge and Mr. V. S. Lillie, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were recent guests at Volney Skinner's.

THE ARTERIES.

They Are Liable to Become Hardened in Old Age.

"A man is as old as his arteries," was said some time ago by a French physician, and the saying, like so many others of the phrase loving French, has a good deal of truth in it and a little error.

There is many a man, old in years but young in spirit, whose arteries are like pipstems. So brittle do they seem, indeed, that the physician hardly dares feel the pulse lest he crush the friable artery under his finger, yet these, old people are active in mind and body and seem often much younger than men of but two-thirds their years.

Again, one meets old and feeble folk, whose lives seem to flicker dangerously, like a candle flame in a draft, whose arteries are as soft and compressible as those of a child.

In general, however, the saying is true, and especially in premature old age it will usually be found that the arteries are hard, with fibrous thickening, if not already more or less calcified. Hardening of the blood vessels—arteriosclerosis is the accepted medical term—consists in a fibrous overgrowth of the walls of the arteries, usually following more or less degeneration of the normal tissues of the vessels. As to just how this comes about physicians are not entirely agreed. It is probable that the change occurs first in the very minute vessels, those that run through the walls of the larger vessels supplying them with blood for their nourishment. When these are hardened by the deposit of fibrous tissue they carry less blood and carry it more slowly, and so the nutrition of the walls of the larger vessels is reduced. This leads to softening, and then nature tries to repair the damage by the only new tissue at her hand—namely, fibrous tissue.

Later these fibrous and thickened walls of the larger arteries may be hardened still more by a deposit of lime salts from the blood.

The arteriosclerosis so common in old age is the result of "wear and tear." An tube dilated by hydraulic pressure and then contracting 10,000 times a day will have done much work by the end of seventy years. In younger life arteriosclerosis is most commonly caused by intemperance—not in drinking only, but in eating, especially meat eating, without enough exercise to consume the excess of nutrient material. Overwork, worry, and chronic poisoning, such as lead poisoning, are also factors.

The best thing for arteriosclerosis is not to get it, and the best way not to get it is to be moderate in everything. People growing old should be examined medically every six months, and then incipient arteriosclerosis may be detected and perhaps arrested by proper diet, drugs and regimen.—Youth's Companion.

London Ladies Fencs.

London ladies stimulated by the Olympic games of last summer have taken to the fells, and fencing is now the fashion. Indeed, an official of the Sword club holds that fencing is likely to have an even wider vogue among women than among men.

A TALE OF TWO PARROTS.

Popular Young Minister Uses It to Point a Moral.

Rev. Philip C. Fletcher, the most eloquent and popular of St. Louis' younger clergymen, was discussing the other day the sermon wherein he said he saw no harm in cosmetics.

"What I meant in that sermon," said Mr. Fletcher, smiling, "was that a woman owed it to herself to make the most of her looks. According to some people, I advised every woman to lay on powder and paint with a trowel. I would never think of giving such advice, of course. Such advice, coming from the pulpit, would have a strange sound—as strange a sound as the talk of the minister's parrot.

"A certain minister called on an old lady, and found a new parrot in her parlor. This parrot kept saying every little while:

"I wish the old girl would die!"

"The minister turned his head to conceal a smile.

"But I think I can set this matter right for you, dear madam," he said. "I, too, have a parrot, as you know. It is a very honest bird. Its talk is very edifying. I'll send it here and it will soon guide your own parrot into decent speech."

"He sent on his parrot that evening. The grateful old lady put the birds side by side. Then with a pleased smile she prepared to listen to their conversation.

"I wish the old girl would die," said the parrot host.

"And the guest rolled his eyes and declaimed solemnly:

"We beseech thee to hear us, good Lord!"

THE DESTINATION.

Teacher—Can any of you children tell me what becomes of the swallow? Tommy—I can, teacher; it goes to the stomach.

Willing, if He Would Wait.

In his address before the Philadelphia Conference of the Methodist Church the other day Bishop Hamilton related the following anecdote to illustrate a point:

"I think you are all good-natured enough to agree with the young lady who, with her fiance, was awaiting a street car. After several cars had passed and they could not get aboard the young man became impatient. When the next car stopped at the corner he leaped upon the platform and said, in pleading terms: 'Come on, Mary, we can manage to squeeze in here, can't we?' The young woman colored slightly, but bravely replied, 'I suppose we can, dear, but don't you think we had better wait until we get home?'"

Too Soon to Begin Counting.

A man came shooting from a brightly lighted window one night, and landed with a crash on the sidewalk.

"It's all right," he said to the crowd that had gathered, as he stiffly arose. "That's my club, the Ninth Precinct, I'm a Smyth man, and there are ten Jones men in there. I'm going back to them. You stay here and count them as they come out of the window."

He limped back into the club. There was a great uproar. Then a figure crashed through the window, and struck the sidewalk with a terrible noise.

"No," said the figure, rising, "don't start counting yet. It's me again."

All's Well.

All's well with the world, my friend, and there isn't an ache that lasts; all troubles will have an end, and the rains and the bitter blasts; there is sleep when the toil is done, there's substance beneath the foam; and the bully old yellow sun will shine till the cows come home! All's well with the world, my friend! Your star in the distance beams; and the burden that makes you bend, is merely a bunch of dreams; to music serene and fine, the woods and the streams give tongue; and the corpulent sun will shine, till the last of the dogs is hung!—Walt Mason in Emporia Gazette.

An Inspiring Model.

Little Johnnie owned a couple of bantam hens which laid very small eggs, this fact being displeasing to the youngster. Going to the town one morning, Johnnie's father was surprised to find a goose egg tied to one of the beams and above it a card with the words: "Keep your eye on this and do your best."

Too Easy.

Challenging a Socialist to debate is like offering money to a Wall Street broker.

Harmless Coffee Wanted.

A number of experiments have been carried out with the object of preparing a caffeine free product from the coffee seeds. A satisfactory result was obtained by certain methods which aim at subjecting the entire raw seeds to a procedure by means of which the caffeine salts are decomposed and the seeds are rendered amenable to subsequent extraction with a volatile solvent of caffeine. This procedure is at present employed in Bremen and in Mannheim, Germany.

Nature has produced a plant free from caffeine, native of Madagascar and Reunion, but unfit for use on account of its bitter principle. Grafting experiments have not yet proved successful. The requirements in case of the artificial non-poisonous product are its almost entire harmlessness, together with an unchanged appearance, taste and aroma.

The Penang Patrol Wagon.

Writing of the local patrol wagon the Penang correspondent of the Straits Times, Singapore, says: "It forcibly calls to mind at first sight a four wheeled baker's cart, bar the fact that it is drawn by about the slowest pair of bullocks in the settlement. There is nothing grim at all about it, for it is commanded by a sleepy Malay constable perched on the box; its roof and sides are formed of white canvas, and it has no door to close at the back, but merely an opening in which another Malay constable half slumbers. Two or three other constables ride inside sitting on the benches with the prisoners, who seem to be struck with novelty of the ride to make any attempt at escape. I should say that an escape from this prison van would be as easy as falling off a log."

To Be Looked At.

"Of course, madam, I would not be expected to light the fire?"

"Certainly not."

"Nor sweep the floors?"

"Certainly not."

"Nor attend to the door?"

"Of course not."

"Nor to wait on table?"

"No; I want none of these things," said the lady with her sweetest smile.

"The only thing I require a servant for is to look at her and for this you are too plain."—Royal Magazine.
