One of the most important dramatic events of the season at the Lyric will be the engagement on Wednesday, Oct. 6, of Mr. Paul Gilmore and his company in "The Call of the North," reputed to be one of the most convincing and faithful portrayals written of the rugged and picturesque characters and stirring events of life in the fur-trading territory of Canada around Hudson Bay. It is a comedy-drama of the style in which theatregoers most enjoy seeing Mr. Gilmore, its central character being a daring young adventurer who has trespassed upon forbidden territory to trade with the Indians, thus incurring the enmity of the ancient and powerful English that had held the monopoly on that rich wilderness for hundreds of years. The play is a dramatization of Stewart Edward White's widely read novel, "Conjuror's House," and was written by George Broadhurst, author of "The Man of the Hour" and other successful high-class melodramas.

William Igo, of Erie street, met with a serious accident about four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Igo was standing on a ladder while painting a small building on South Main street occupied by William Poble as a shoe shop. The building is near the cellar way leading into the O'Connell building. In some manner the ladder slipped and Igo was thrown headfirst to the cellar steps below, a distance of about fifteen feet. He was picked up unconscious and Dr. Griffin was called. Upon examination it was thought his skull was fractured. Mr. Igo was removed to his home on Erie street. His condition is considered serious.

Christy Rabbit, after a few days of liberty, was arrested again Tuesday evening by Officer John Canivan. Rabbit was released last week after serving twenty-two days of a thirty-day sentence on the charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He promised to behave but started drinking again. He went to the home of his sister, Miss Kathryn Rabbit, broke furniture and some windows. She made a complaint against him and officer Canivan made the arrest. He was arranged before Burgess John Kubbach and sentenced to thirty days in the borough lock-up. During all of the celebrations in Honesdale Rabbit has been in jail or in the borough lock-up. Last Xmas and election days Rabbit spent in jail. He was also locked-up when the Junger Maennerchor society was in town, and during Old Home week. Christy will miss the Wayne county fair next week.

The delegates to the Wayne County Christian Endeavor Convention meet on Tuesday 28th inst. at the Presbyterian Chapel, Honesdale. The morning session after the devotional exercises, was given up to the regular routine of business, consisting of reading of reports of last year's work, reports of officers and committees, and appointment of nominating and other committees.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

The delegates to the Wayne County Christian Endeavor Convention meet on Tuesday 28th inst. at the Presbyterian Chapel, Honesdale. The morning session after the devotional exercises, was given up to the regular routine of business, consisting of reading of reports of last year's work, reports of officers and committees, and appointment of nominating and other committees.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

This session was opened by singing, followed with prayer by the Rev. James Rainey, of Aldenville.

The Rev. Dr. Swift was then introduced and spoke upon the "Supreme Mission of Christian Endeavor," it was a splendid address and brought out the grand opportunities that the christian endeavorer has before him. This was followed by a very interesting and instructive talk upon "Committee Work" by Rev. A. L. Francke of Newfoundland and the Rev. Jas. Rainey followed with an address that was poignant with ideas and thoughts that should be valuable to the christian worker. R. M. Stocker was called on to fill a vacancy caused by an absentee and his address on the "Minute Men of the Past and Present" was very appropriate and greatly appreciated. A short talk from several delegates and the session was brought to a close.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session began at 7:30 with a song service led by President Frank Waltz whose strong and resonant voice brought out the singing ability of the audience to the extent that all joined in singing the inspiring song. After prayer and singing by the Honesdale Male Quartette the Rev. A. D. Thaeler, pastor of the Moravian church at Bethlehem was introduced and spoke upon the "Echoes of the St. Paul Convention" and his address was a rare treat to those who had the opportunity of being present. His earnestness, his intimate knowledge of the work being accomplished by the Christian Endeavor movement, and the fervid and inspiring manner of presenting his thoughts and ideas were greatly appreciated by all present. A solo was well rendered by Mrs. Archer; then followed a short concert meeting led by Rev. Mr. Francke which brought the convention to a close.

Newspaper Advertising.

If a member of your family died, would you print the resolutions on a billboard?

If you were going to enlarge your business would you advertise it in a hotel register?

If you were going to have a wedding in your family would you get out a handbill?

You would send such items to a newspaper, wouldn't you?

Then why don't you put your advertisements in a newspaper?

Every man who uses the billboard is adding to nature's faking.

The newspapers build your town; why not help build up the newspapers. There is no better advertisement in the world than a good newspaper. A newspaper is the barometer of the town's industry. Show us a good newspaper, full of advertising and we will show you a good town, full of live merchants.

Newspapers are town builders, town advertisers, fortune makers, prosperity forecasters—they are a necessity, not a luxury; they must be maintained. Without them we would retrograde to the medieval days.

Don't patronize them from a charitable standpoint—patronize them because they deliver the goods—that is if they are the right kind.

Cut out the foolishness and work for the upbuilding of your town and State by upbuilding your newspapers.

WARSHIPS' MEN IN RACES.

Germany Beat Other Foreign Sailors. Georgia's Men Also Victors.

New York, Sept. 30.—International aquatic honors were captured by Germany and America in the boat races for the crews of the warships at anchor in the Hudson. The brawny Teutons outstroked the Italians, British, French and Netherland in the races for the visiting ships, while a big, husky crew from the Minnesota showed the way to the German, Italian and British tars in the big international race.

The regatta included races exclusively for the men of American warships, revenue cutters and naval militia. The winners all received silver shields and purses of gold in addition to what they picked up in side bets, for the different fleets backed their countrymen heavily. Seven foreign crews lined up for the first event, one each from the British cruisers Drake and Duke of Edinburgh, one from the Italian Etruria and one from her sister ship, the Etna; one from the German Victoria Luise, one from La Justice of France and one from little Holland's cruiser Utrecht.

German muscle proved supreme, while the two Italians had a hot fight for second place, with the British, the French and the Hollanders in third, fourth and fifth place.

The hottest contest was between five American warships, the Georgia beating out the Louisiana by half a length, with the Connecticut, Vermont and New Hampshire close astern.

Mandarin Order For Admiral Seymour. New York, Sept. 30.—The degree of mandarin of the Imperial Order of the Dragon was conferred upon Admiral Seymour aboard the British warship Inflexible today as a recognition of the esteem in which the British officer is held by the American sailors and marines who served under him during the first expedition for the relief of Peking in 1900.

KILLS TWO, WOUNDS THIRD IN SALOON

Man, Just "Treated" by Proprietor, Returns, Masked, and Demands Cash of Owner's Son.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 30.—Two men were shot to death and a third badly wounded at an early morning hour in a saloon in the northern part of the city, presumably by a man who a few moments before the killing had been "treated" by the owner of the place.

The dead are James Quinn, twenty-three, son of the proprietor of the saloon, and Henry F. Saylor, thirty-three. John J. Cassidy, thirty-seven, was wounded in the side. The men were shot as they covered before the robber, who was masked.

Patrick J. Quinn, who operates a saloon at York road and Lycoming street, informed his family he was going to a late lodge meeting. His son James, who ran an elevator in the city, volunteered to take his place and the elder Quinn was so grateful at being able to get away for the lodge meeting that when he went down into the saloon from his rooms above, after having dressed for the occasion, he called everybody in the saloon to "drink on the house."

There was a quick response to the invitation, and young Quinn set up drinks for twenty persons. About the last words he uttered after being shot were that his father had just treated his murderer.

It was raining hard and after the elder Quinn left for the lodge meeting, all those in the saloon departed, save young Quinn, Saylor and Cassidy. Saylor and Cassidy were at a table near the bar reading a newspaper. While Quinn's back was turned a man walked in a side door and up to the bar. As Quinn turned to greet the supposed customer he found himself facing a masked man and a drawn revolver.

"Hands up, you fellows!" was the man's command.

Then, moving his revolver so as to "cover" the three men, he ordered young Quinn to hand out all the money in the cash drawer. Quinn grabbed a handful of bills, about $47, when the man fired the first shot. The bullet struck Quinn in the abdomen. The wounded man, with several notes in his hand, fell dying to the floor. Cassidy and Saylor ran for the door. The robber swung around and said:—"Stand where you are; you are not going out."

Cassidy says he stopped, but not quickly enough, and the robber fired twice, once at him and once at Saylor. Cassidy's life was saved by the fact that as the robber fired Cassidy was falling. He was hit slightly wounded in the side, but Saylor was hit under the heart and died in the hospital an hour later. He said the robber had taken all his valuables and fled.

Quinn lived only a few moments after the police arrived, but long enough to give a description of the robber and to declare that he was one of those in the saloon when his father had "treated the crowd."

In addition to robbing Saylor as he lay dying, the masked man rifled the cash drawer, took all he could find on young Quinn and searched Cassidy.

Reuben Conn was arrested in connection with the murders.

To Thine Own Self Be True. Take it not grievously if some think ill of thee, and speak that thou wouldst not willingly bear. Thou oughtest to be the hardest judge of thyself, and to think no one weaker than thyself. If thou dost walk righteously, thou wilt not much weigh fleeting words.—Thomas a Kempis.

"THE WOMAN PAYS" TO-NIGHT.

Beautiful Play to be Given in the Lyric Theatre.

Despite the worldliness, moneyed worldliness that tries to pay for love, that is the base note throughout the play. "The Woman Pays" is as sweet and fragrant as an old-fashioned rose garden. The sweet, gentle, loving, self-sacrificing manner of the deserted woman, her scorn for the man who deserted her, are finely portrayed by Minnie Victorson. A quiet dignity, an appreciation of the value of the things in this world that money cannot buy, the exaltation of her love above sordid self pervade the character of the play and to one in love with the fine beauties of life, the play will make a strong appeal with its opulence of sentiment. It is a lovely thing to get away from the rush of life and leave behind its grind and noise and cheats; to go into an element made up of sane materials and to be led into the cozy corner love steals and gentle thoughts pervade, where kindness and helpfulness are the keystones upon which the play theme is composed. "The Woman Pays" is at the Lyric tonight (Friday).

This Accounts for Man's Unsteadiness.

It is well known that the earth revolves on its axis and for a long time it was supposed that it revolved absolutely and smoothly along this invisible line. One of the greatest achievements in physics and mathematics is the discovery that this is not true, but that the earth wobbles somewhat just as often as does a top when spinning which every boy has noticed. The amount of wobbling has been estimated, or rather defined, as twenty-six feet from the actual pole, so that if it is proper to speak of the poles as having any extent beyond a point it would be a circle fifty-two feet in diameter, although there is an exact axis just as there is one for a top no matter how much it wobbles in spinning.
