UNIMAL TRIALS FARCE, SAYS WHITE

Ex-Ambassador Says They're Games Between, and Result in Spread of Crime

THE WORST IN THIS COUNTRY

Murder Forty-three Times More Common, Proportionately, Than in Canada, Where Law Prevails, He Says-A Remedy Suggested.

Ithaca, N. Y .- While optimistic over the future of this country, Dr. Andrew D. White, ex-President of Cornell University and ax Ambassador to Germany and Russia, sees grave danger in the growth of crime, especially murder. Several years ago he called attention to this, and in a lecture here he made another statement slong the same lines. He said that the number of criminal homicides in the United States in proportion to population was forty-three timos greater than in Canada and seven times greater than in Belgium which he considered the worst country in Europe in that regard. The average criminal sentenced to life imprisonment, he said, served but seven years.

"The number of felonious homicides per year per million population for various countries," Dr. White said, "is Canada, 3; Germany, 4 to 5; Englind and Wales, 10 to 11; France, 14 to 15; Belgium, 16, and the United States. over 129. These figures are based on an average for eight years.

"You will say these statements are the statements of an old, worn, and weary pessimist. Worn and weary 1 mny be, but a pessimist I am not. If there is in this country a man who is an optimist, I am that man. I believe that the world is better to-day than it ever was before. I believe that in the future it will be better than it is today, that this country is the best country on earth to live in. I believe that altogether the United States of America is the happiest country in the whole world. I believe that the Christian Church has never been so pure, so good, so promising as it is this day.

"It seems impossible that on one side of a boundary line homicide could be so much more prevalent than on the other, as in the case of Canada and the United States. But the reason is that on one side law prevails, and not chicanery and that on the other side there has taken place a break-up in the administration of criminal law. By far the greatest of all causes is the fact that the administration of criminal law has become simply a game. A trial is a game between two or three inwyers, and the whole thing has be come very much a farce."

In answer to the argument that punishment of crime does not stop the crime he gave instances of so-called "enidemics" of murder which were stopped by the hanging of several per sons found guilty. He spoke of the banditti of Italy and of the steps which England took to obtain justice for the murder of a citizen by the

INHABITANT OF WILD FOWL BAY

Animal Builds Two Rooms and a Pasage-Official Decision Makes Entire Establishment Forbidden Ground to Trapper.

Lansing, Mich .- Many and varied are the questions which the Attorney General of the State of Michigan is called on to decide, but one which came from A. C. Carton, Deputy Sinte Land Commissioner, recently is, in the parlance of the office boy, "the limit." It has to do with the apartments-eating, sleep and otherwise-of the muskrat, long famed as the toothsome lestive Monroe resident.

The rats that Carton inquires about are inhabitants of Wild Fowl Bay, in the lee of Sand Point, which pushes its nose out from Huron County, into Saginaw Bay. The last Legislature placed the rate and other denizens of the waters in Wild Fowl Bay under the protection of the Land Commissioner's office, and Carton rushes to the rescue of his charges.

He says the residents of the State. who hunt, fish and trap in Wild Fowl Bay, do not agree with the ruling made by the Attorney General, which prohibits the killing of or trapping muskrats within eight feet of the doors of the rats-not the hunters'houses. And, besides, Carton says in his letter there is some doubt as to just what a muskrat house isellke.

The Attorney General rules that all the apartments and passages constitute the muskrat house. The letter is, in part, as follows:

"It is a well known fact to every close observer of the habits and modof living of the muskrat that he has two apartments which he uses for different purposes. Each apartment, or so-called house, is for a different purpose.

"In the fall of the year the musicrat makes his preparations for the win er by the construction of his electing apartment in the marsh or shallow water. This sleeping apartment is built of marsh grass and other material with the foundation on the ground, and is, in size and thickness, as the instinct of the muskrat would lead him to believe, the severity of the winter requires.

"As soon as ice forms on the shall low water in the marsh the feeding apartment is built partly above and partly below the ice. The distance from the sleeping apartments and the feeding apartments or kitchens varies from one to four or five rods, and the number of eating apartments varies with the number of rats that live in the sleeping apartment.

"The feeding apartment might be said to have a threefold use: First, it is a storehouse and the eating apart-bandits.

"The banging of eighteen of the bandits stopped the crime forever." he said.

Dr. White had little sympathy for what he called the pseudo-scientific theory that crime is a disease.

"The truth of the matter is that crime is crime and disease is disease," he said.

He described the difference between administration of criminal justice in Great Britain and the United States.

"In a short time a jury there can be got together," he said. "There is no bother about finding twelve men that are sufficiently idiotic to satisfy both lawyers. The result of all this is that Great Britain, a country vasily more brutal than this, has 10 or 11 murders to our 129."

An Indian's Hatred.

Butte, Mont.-Charlot, hereditary chief of the Bitter Root Indiana, erroneously called the Flatheads, is de d. He was every inch an Indian, reserved, taciturn, haughty, self-contpined, and at times resentful. But to those who broke through the erust of his reserve he was known as a loyal friend, as steadfast in that role as when he played the foe. Chartot suf fered much; he was decoived and cheated; he was maligned and mintreated; his pride was hurt; but he suffered most over the wrongs that were inflicted upon his people. Same of his personal grievances he forgave. but he was resentful to the very and figainst those who had, according to his heltef, robbed his people. He was proud and he despised deceit. He had some warm friends among the whites; these he trusted to the limited. But to his last breath he cherished a florce hatred of the men who lied to him and who drove him from his ancestral home in the Bitter Root. And where is the white man who would not have done the same?

NEW KIND OF BONE FRACTURE.

Doctor Says Chauffeurs Sometimes Drive Miles Without Feeling It. Albany, N. Y .- The recent session of the Medical Society of the State of New York was devoted to the reading of a large number of papers.

Dr. William S. Thomas, of New York, in a paper on "The Chauffeur's Fracture," declared it an occupational disease caused by the slipping of the crankhandle of an automobile. If the handle strikes the chauffeur's arm it causes a fracture which Dr. Thomas found to be of a peculiar character. He told of several cases where chauf fours with dangerous fractures from being struck by a crunkhandle have driven their machines for miles after the accident without knowing that they were badly hurt.

A Squirrel Barometer.

Ottawa, Kan .- A merchant in Ottawa has a unique barometer. It is a domesticated for squirrel. He keeps the little pet in a big paint barrel, all inclosed with the exception of a small round hole for a door in one end. Inside the barrel is a good supply of straw, old paper and leaves. During a run of weather of any kind, bot, cold, wet or dry, the little animal is in and out of his house, keeping an open door. But should there be a change coming, say twelve or twenty-four bours off, he plugs up that hole with he stuff from his bed and keeps it losed until the change comes. "He ever makes mistakes," said his own-"There are no false alarms with him!

ment of the muskrat; second, it preserves a hole in the ice from which the rat procures air; third, in case of high water, which raises the ice in a great many cases and submerges the sleeping apartment, it preserves temporary quarters for the rat to live in during the time his sleeping apartment is submerged.

"Joining the sleeping and eating apartments there is a submarine passage under the ice, through which the rat journeys every day to his meals. Not alone does the rat depend upon the distance between the ice and the ground for his passageway, but he digs out a little ditch in the ground through which he can travel, for his animal instinct tells him that the wind may shift and the water lower to such a degree in the marsh that the ice may lie flat upon the ground. If he does not provide himself with this little excavation in the earth his passageway from his sleeping apartment to his kitchen and storehouse will be shut off in such a case.

"While it is essential that the muskrat have a house to sleep in during the cold winter, under certain conditions it is more essential that he had an eating apartment. In case of high water, he can live for a limited time in his eating apartment, and while it Is not as warm as his sleeping apartment he has the three things nocessary to his existence, shelter, air and food

"Trappers and hunters have taken it upon themselves to interpret the law in a manner that would give them the right to set traps in the eating apartment and to also spear rats in the esting apartment, as well as to destroy the eating apartment of the muskrat.

"Does the eating apartment, the sleeping spartment and the submarine passage constitute and make up the rat house, in the meaning of the lawf

"Is it contrary to law to destroy one apartment more than another! "Has the trapper or hunter any right to destroy the feeding apartment, spear rate in the feeding apartment or set traps in the feeding apartment?

"Have the hunters any right to treat the submarine passage, or the feeding apartment and storehouse. and temperary abode of the muskrat in high water, any differently than they do the sleeping spartment of this animal?

"In the interests of the musicrat as early realy is requested."

Determined to Succeed. Napoleon had conquered Europe in imagination before he saw Jena or Austerlitz. When only ten years of age, from the military school at Brienne, he wrote to his mother in Corsica: "With Homer in my pocket, and my sword by my side, I have to carve my way through the world."
