CHILDREN TOO NUMEROUS

Nearly All Are "Human Culls," Declares Mrs. H. L. R. Baker-Quality, not Quantity, the Need. Spokane, Wash. There are al ready too many children in the world. What we want now is quality and not quantity. Parents should be taught the responsibility of bringing children into the world, and then when they have been taught that nine-tenths of the babies born every year are nothing more or less than human culls. I be lieve the birth rate will decrease and we shall have a better and stronger race.

This from Mrs. Helen La Reine Baker, wealthlest woman in Spokane, also suffragist, reformer, philanthropist, humanitarian and apostle of brotherly love, known throughout the Northwest as "the Little Mother of Unfortunate Children."

Mrs. Baker is anything but conventional. She is young and attractive is highly educated and widely traveled and has plenty of money to gratify every whim. She looks upon Thomas Paine as her patron saint and believes Bernard Shaw, Elbert Hubbard, Moses Larmon and Luther Burbank the four greatest men in the world.

Eugenics is the technical term for the work I am engaged in," she said. "It relates to the propagation of man kind, and I mean to devote all time to teaching children the right way of living. You cannot mould character after the children are twenty years

'My studies of children all over the world have convinced me that not more than ten per cent, of them are children of love. The other ninety per cent. are not wanted, and this leads me to believe that ten years hence to be the father of a family of ten or twelve children will be as much of a disgrace as being a confirmed drunkard is at the present tir e.

Within the next decade we shall be able to teach these things to children and the result will be a new race of men and women."

WASHED IN HORSE TROUGH.

Man Worth $2,000,000 Had Primitive idea of Lavation.

th City N. C .- Louis one of the richest men of the State, and said to own real estate in every State in the Union, died recently in his primitive old farmhouse, four miles from this city, and his family is unable to make any calculation of his wealth within, though documents are at hand to show that it was over $2,000,000. It included stock and bonds in nearly every large corporation in the country. Hinton was a remarkable and primitive character. His house contained barely enough furniture for actual needs, no carpets and no curts'ns. Most of the window panes were broken out years ago and never replaced. Every morning before breakfast he washed his face in the horse trough. and whenever he drave to town in his rickety buggy he carried his dinner along in a tin pail.

NATION'S CHECKS

Announces Offer After Putting Up Money for One.

Washington.-Carrie Nation, the galoon smasher, came to Washington a few weeks ago and wrecked the Union Station bar and was fixed in police court.

She paid her attorney, Matthew E O'Brien, by check. Mr. O'Brien cashed the check with a friend. Another friend accommodated the first friend and Seventh street saloon keeper obliged the second friend.

Now the saloon keeper has an advertising card out with a photographic reproduction of the check, with the caption "We cash Carrie Nation's checks."

Mouse in Horse's Head. Winsted, Conn. For three days at least a live mouse made its home in a live horse's head, according to Mr. A. M. Raydenbow, a milk dealer, whose dairy is off the Colebrook road.

Sunday he noticed the nervous actions of Bossie, a horse used on his milk cart. Yesterday the horse sneezed every few minutes, and, thinking Bessle was either throwing off a cold or catching more, he procured cough medicine for her.

Now Bessle is all right. On the way to Winsted and after descending a sharp pitch in the road Bessie stopped and sneezed out a live mouse, which Mr. Raydenbow thinks must have crawled into the horse's manger and then up its nose.

Zones and Genders.

While inspecting examination paers recently, a teacher found various humorous answers to questions. A class of boys, averaging about twelve years of age, had been examined in geography, the previous day having been devoted to grammar. Among the geographical questions was the following: "Name the zones." One promising youth of eleven years, who had mixed the two subjects, wrote: "There are two sones, masculine and feminine. The masculine is either temperate or intemperate; the feminine is either torrid or frigid!"

"Italian chestnuts cooked properly should tickle any one's palate. In Italy chestnuts are food for the peasants, not a delicacy. One way the peasants prepare them for a meal is to line the bottom of a pot with a thick layer of nuts and then to pour boiling water over them. Several large potatoes are generally added. When the potatoes are cooked, by shaking the pot well the nuts will come to the top. After being grilled for a few minutes they are ready to be served.

Study Mysteries of the Air.

Man has been born of woman for centuries upon centuries, yet he is as little wise to the control of weather conditions as he is to the truth of what comes after death. Must it be ever so? Is prophecy, even as it may some time be perfected, to remain the ineffective substitute for the power to regulate?

The air throbs with wonders. It affords the medium of wireless telegraphy, perhaps of telepathy. The mystery of how it absorbs and restrains or lets loose the elements that make for storm or sunshine is infinitely ofter worth attention than are the shortcomings of a forecaster. Let some earnest seeker find a key to the -ddle and see how the farmers and ilors and baseball players and Easter belies and all the sons and daughters of time sit up and take notice.

Cause for Relief.

An Alabama man tells of an unique funeral oration delivered in a town of that state not long ago by a darky preacher.

Now, it seems that the habits of the deceased brother had not been irre; roachable, to the great scandal of the worthy pastor of the flock. So in summing up the case at the funeral. the preacher delivered himself of the following:

"My brethren and sisters, we are here to pay our last and respects to our departed brother. Some says he was a good man, and some says he was a bad man. Where he has gone to we can't tell, but in our grief we have one consolation, and that ishe's dead."

Who Sald Them?

The golden text was "Suffer the little children to come unto me," and it 'nd been recited to the class by a cherub on the front bench. Later in the afternoon the teacher, in the ce ree of the lessons, had occasion to refer to the text.

"New, children," she said, "who said those words?" and she repeated them. A band went up from one of the larger boys on the back bench, and receiving permission to answer. he said pointing to the cherub: "That little feller down there."

Lesson for Sunday, Feb. 20th, 1910. The Golden Rule-Temperance Lesson. Matt. vii:1-12.

Ever Increasing Beggars of Bombay. The nuisance caused by beggars in Bo thay has assumed unbearable proportions. The Orientals practice charity as a religious obligation and relieve poverty where they find it. Recitals from Kebit and Marshal never fail to touch the innermost chords of the natives with their innate reverence for spiritualism, and the fakir backs up his appeal for alms with profure quotations from the poets. Then there are lay beggars and religious begans, the ash besmeared ascetics who practice mendicancy as a hereditary profession. Last and not least are unfortunate sufferers whom the loss of limbs or eyes or some fell disare disables for work and drives them to beggary as the last resource. These latter have a genuine claim on our charity, but as there are so few asyluns in India for the halt, the maim and the blind the streets and byways of towns are flooded with beggars, pitiful types of suffering humanity .-From the Rash Grafter.

Fanny Kemble, the famous actress. was a warm supporter of "Women's Rights," and one evening at dinner the was seated next "Poodle Byng," a well-known man about town. The conversation turned on "women's rights," and Fanny Kemble expressed her views with so much vehemence that Mr. Byng took refuge in polite silence. After finishing a brilliant tirade, she turned to her neighbor and asked his opinion. "Poodle Byng" looked at her with a half smile, and answered her in five words: "I don't agree with you!"

PUTTING ON EXTRA SUPERS.

No Set Rule Can Be Given as to the Proper Time for This Work.

Knowing by experience that bees will enter upper stories without any hestitancy if placed on top of the hive er on top of any story that may be already on the hive, and as our extracting is not done until after the white-honey season is over, we have no lifting of full stories except at extracting-time. We put on the third story when the second one is about two-thirds full, or at least before all the empty comb-room is used. However, no set rule can be given as to the proper time for putting on extra supers, as there is a difference in the colonles in this respect. Some been will work in a few combs and begin to cap those started first, while those combs at the outside of the super will not be used at all. In such a case it would be folly to put on another super as long as this condit on continues. Other colonies will fill every available cell with honey before commencing to draw out the combs or to cap the cells. Such a colony will need more extra combroom than the first one mentioned, for in the first case the bees seem to be more adapted to working wax and drawing out combs. It is well to humor these dispositions, and not compel the bees mentioned in the last case to draw out the combs to tne full capacity of the space allowed. They rhould, instead, be given additional comb-room as they are able to use it, and they will store much more honey than if compelled against their will to draw out cel's to the full depth at once .- E. Clipping Queens Without Handling. I clip the wings of a queen with small crooked scissors while she is running up the comb. Several times I have found her in the act of looking into a cell, and off would come her wings, and she would look into the next one without knowing anything had happened to her. I have practiced this plan ever since I started to clip wings of queens.

The plan I use to stop robbing is to change the places of the robbed and the robbing colonies. It works so well that I have never tried to improve on it. The uproar is twice as had after the change as before; but the robbing is stopped at once. It is amusing to see those robbers come rushing out with those loads of honey, to find out they had to take It back where they got it and turn round and defend the hive they had been robbing only a moment before. I have followed this plan ever since with good success.-Isaac Balmer, Burtington, Out.
