James Hanford Brookfield, son of the late William Brookfield, a rich glass manufacturer, formerly of Honesdale, is just now in the lime light of fashionable society on account of his marriage in an unconventional manner to a beautiful young woman named Miss Elizabeth McGuire. The marriage followed a late supper at "Jacks," Sixth avenue and Forty-third street, on Monday night. They had been to the theatre. Brookfield proposed, was accepted and immediately the principals, accompanied by a few friends, started for Jersey City, and at 3 o'clock in the morning routed up a Justice of the Peace who, in his dressing gown, tied the knot. After the ceremony they motored back to "Jacks" where they had a wedding breakfast. The couple then went to Hotel Gregorian, where they will remain until their departure for Europe on their honeymoon.

A woman was found in a semi-unconscious condition in Central Park on Tuesday night. A constable conveyed her to the lockup. Chief Burgess Kubbach was notified and gave her a hearing on Wednesday morning, when it was developed that she had been treated by some residents of our town to considerable liquid refreshments, then left in the park where she would have succumbed to the cold and probably died had she not been discovered. Burgess Kubbach, after giving her some good wholesome advice, agreed to release her, if she would leave town on the next train. She left on the 12:25 train bound for Scranton to watch that city grow.

Word was received from Wash-ington that Private Walter W. Wood had been granted a pension on age. Mr. Wood's record is as follows: Enlisted in the 37th New York Volun-teers and also the 8th New York State Militia, his enlistments being cancelled on account of his inability to secure consent of parents, he being under age. He then enlisted in the 84th New York Volunteers and while the regiment was on its way to the front, he was taken from the ranks by virtue of a writ of habeas corpus obtained by his parents. He then enlisted and served as a substitute for a stay-at-home in the 1st New York Light Artillery, who were put to service to quell the draft riots in New York City in 1863, the New York City militia then being at Gettysburg. The subject of our sketch received a slight fracture of the skull, caused by being hit with a piece of a brick thrown by a rioter. He after-wards enlisted in the 4th Veteran New Jersey Volunteers, and reached his regiment in time to participate in the Cedar Creek fight, being on picket post, his company formed the skirmish line in that memorable engagement and he was reported killed in the N. Y. Herald of Oct. 22, 1864. After serving in the Shenan-doah Valley, his regiment, which was part of the 1st Brigade, 1st Division, 6th Army Corps, was transferred to the breast works in front of Peters-burg and was with the Army of the Potomac in the charge on Petersburg and the chase after Lee's army until the surrender at Appomattox Court House. Was honorably discharged in June, 1865.

NUMBER OF DEER KILLED.

Should Dogs Be Allowed at Large Without Their Master?

Notch, Pa., March 5, 1910.

Mr. Editor: I wish to put before the public a few facts in regard to dogs running deer.

On March 3, 1910, there was a deer, run by two dogs, through my field. The deer came within thirty feet of my house. I got my rifle as soon as I could. One of the dogs kept right up with the deer. I put two balls through him and he went down; the other dog didn't get. The deer was so near run down that I caught it and will keep it for a short time so that it will get stronger. The dogs had bitten the deer in different places and in a short time they would have killed it. There has been three other cases that the writer knows of where deer have been killed the past winter by dogs. The law now allows but one deer, with horns, to a hunter, but we find that dogs do not stop with one or two. There is no limit to them, and do they stop to look for horns? No. It is always the small deer that they get, as it is the weakest ones that come out behind, and that is the one that the dogs will get. In my own mind I believe dogs have killed more deer the past winter than the hunters did through the hunting season in November. I say our Legislature should stop such evils by passing an Act that no dog should be allowed at large unless he is under his master's control. The past winter has been such that no man could go where the dog does. Let them pass an Act so that the owners would be fined. An Act of this kind, I believe, would be well in many ways.

Very Respectfully,
HIRAM A. RAKE,
State Forest Ranger.

CONDUCTOR DANIELS DEAD.

After An Illness of Over Two Months of Stomach Trouble.

Erie Conductor Howard Daniels died at his home, No. 56 West Main street, Port Jervis, on Tuesday afternoon, at 1:50 o'clock, after an illness of over two months of stomach trouble. He was aged 60 years. On December 24th, 1909, while on his train in the Erie yards at Sparrows-bush, he was thrown against the railing of his caboose by the sudden application of the air brakes. Since that time, Mr. Daniels has been unable to work and it is believed that his fatal illness was due to injuries received by the fall against the iron railing.

Deceased was born at Hawley, Pa., on January 20, 1850, and was the son of Ira Daniels and Margaret Atkinson. The early part of his life was spent in Hawley, and in 1869, he attended Eastman's Business Col-lege in Poughkeepsie, and for a time afterwards was a clerk in the store of his uncle, Charles Taft, at Hawley. In 1872, he was Erie station agent at Hawley. He entered the Erie service in 1874, as a trainman and in 1886, was promoted to be a freight conductor on the Delaware Division. For several years Mr. Daniels has been an extra passenger conductor. He was a courteous and efficient railroad man, an excellent citizen in every way and was held in high esteem by his employers, his associates and many friends. Since 1874, he had lived in Port Jervis, where on June 17, 1885, he was united in marriage with Miss Lillie Hunterton.

The surviving relatives are his wife and one son, Russell, at home; two daughters, Daisy, an instructor in Syracuse University and Mildred, a student in Syracuse University, his mother, Mrs. Margaret A. Daniels, who is 84 years of age, and three sisters: Fannie, Delphine and Eliza-beth, all of Hawley, Pa., and one brother, William, of Pawbuska, Oklahoma.

The funeral was held at the house, No. 56 West Main street, last even-ing at 7:30 o'clock, and the body will be taken on Erie train 115 at 11:40 o'clock this morning to Hawley, for interment.

LOCAL INSTITUTE HELD SATURDAY ENCOURAGE THE PUPILS

Health of Mind and Body is the Foundation of Human Happiness, and it is in the School Where This Factor Should Receive Attention.

The local Teachers' Institute, com-prising Honesdale, Texas, Cherry Ridge, Seelyville, Bethany, and Dy-berry townships, was held in the High school auditorium Saturday, March 5th, with Superintendent Koehler as chairman.

The meeting was opened with devo-tional exercises led by Prof. J. F. Dooley, of Waymart. Following this there was a song. The first paper discussed was based on "Sablin's Common Sense Didactics" by Miss Alice Mullen. "The Hygiene of the Public School." This paper showed careful preparation and fall of good suggestions. She said health of mind and body is the foundation of human happiness, and it is in the school where this factor should receive un-divided attention. Pure air, cleanli-ness, proper diet and exercise are things to be impressed upon the child's mind. Trying to read from poorly situated black boards is detri-mental to a child's sight. Watch position of pupils. Water pail should be cleaned weekly and, if possible, individual drinking cups should be used. Worry should not be allowed to cast its gloom over the child. Send the children home happy. A lively discussion followed by the other members of the Institute. This was followed by a lesson in music by Miss Amy Clark's music class. The next number, a continuation of Sablin's Works,—"Cultivation of Taste." This paper was well written and rendered by Miss Frieda Rose. She said: Country schools fit boys and girls for the farm as the city schools prepare its boys and girls for the office, and each subject should be closely in touch with country life. These children have better oppor-tunities to study nature than city children. Encourage them to plant and care for shrubs and flowers. Singing and drawing should have their place in the daily programme. This will do much to improve man-ners and morals of children. Noth-ing will have a better influence in cultivating a fine sense of taste than books of good characters. Strive to make the school room cheerful by having well selected pictures." An interesting discussion followed and the question was asked, "Can we have too many pictures in the school room?" It was decided that it is better to have a few good subjects which would inspire the pupils, rather than many which have no meaning to them.

The next paper was the "Recita-tion" which was well written and read by Miss Rose Switzer. Miss Switzer said much attention should be given in assigning lessons. Age and ability of pupil should be con-sidered and difficult parts explained. Same number of topics must not be assigned daily as some two topics might be more difficult than four. Convince pupils a good recitation is their gain; a poor one their loss. A pupil who recites the lesson in his own words understands it far better than he who follows the language of the author closely. Each lesson must have close connection with the following lessons. Encourage dull pupils and praise their efforts. Have both oral and written reviews often. Miss Lee then gave a short talk on "Primary Reading," and after a general discussion the meeting was adjourned until the afternoon.

The afternoon session began at 2 p. m. with Prof. H. A. Oday as chairman.

The first part of the programme was devoted to Goldsmith by Misses Alta I. Many and Mayme Downing. The former discussed him as a man, and the latter as a writer. Both these papers were nicely prepared and each brought out many good points relative to his childhood, education, peculiarities, and reasons for writ-ing.

Vocal solo, Eda Krantz. Miss Essie Kelley gave a very thorough outline of the "Deserted Village." She portrayed in a very skillful manner many of the beau-tiful scenes and passages mentioned in the poem. At this period Supt. Koehler and Profs. Dooley and Oday discussed the above author. Mr. Koehler mentioned as a strong pecu-liarity of Goldsmith that he never would explain any of his writings, and when at a social affair and asked to speak would always call upon Johnson, his friend, to express his ideas. The Superintendent also said in studying his life to dwell only upon Goldsmith's most important as-sociates as Garrick and Johnson. A number of Miss Clark's music class very pleasingly rendered a song en-titled "All Hail, Land of the Free."

Miss Harriet Arnold, winner in the triangular contest, then delighted the appreciative audience with Homer Greene's great poem, "De Quincey's Deed."

Girls' chorus—Night song. Piano duet, Julia Storms and Helen Clark.

Following this, Miss Elizabeth Baird, in a very interesting manner, gave a number of good suggestions as "How to Teach Geography." Miss Baird said: "Treat continents as a whole, use drawings, study highland, lowland, and winds with their relation to climate. Teach countries in relation to latitude." She also recom-mended Carpenter's Readers as being very good. The Institute closed with the selection "Spartacus to the Gladiators," which was very nicely rendered by Charles Markle, Honesdale's contestant in the tri-angular literary competition. The Institute was largely attended, very instructive and interesting.

MAY YOHE SEEKS DIVORCE.

Former Countess Hope Seeks Release From Bradlee Strong.

Oregon City, Ore., March 10.—Alleg-ing desertion in New York five years ago, May Yohe Strong, the actress, formerly the Countess Hope, has begun suit here for divorce from Putnam Bradlee Strong.

May Yohe and Captain Strong were married in Buenos Aires on Oct. 2, 1904, after Lord Hope got his divorce. She says Strong deserted her in 1905. She came to Oregon City in November, 1907.

It is rumored that she is engaged to a wealthy mining man in British Columbia.

TOM JOHNSON TO RUN AGAIN.

Cleveland's Former Mayor Wants to Be State Senator or Representative.

Cleveland, O., March 10.—Former Mayor Tom L. Johnson, who was de-feated for the mayoralty last fall after serving continuously since 1901, has told the leaders of the Democratic party that he would like to go to the legislature next fall, either as state senator or as representative. He prob-ably will be nominated in the May primaries.

"I'd like to go to the legislature for a season," the former mayor told his political friends. "I could serve a year and then run again for mayor."

He is in power in the Democratic organization and can be nominated for the legislature if he desires. The Republicans elected the last legisla-tive ticket in Cuyahoga county, but the Democrats have held the delegation most of the time since 1901.

OBITUARY.

GOLDSMITH—Surrounded by the members of his household, Morris Goldsmith, pioneer merchant, died on Wednesday morning at 12:15 o'clock at his residence, 425 Wyom-ing avenue, Scranton. If he lived until next Christmas Mr. Goldsmith would be 77 years old. No specific illness caused the end of one of the most successful as well as one of the most highly esteemed merchants of the city. He had lived an active life, and the end came peacefully shortly after midnight. He is sur-vided by one son, Rudolph Morris Goldsmith, and five daughters, Mrs. J. R. Cohen, Mrs. T. A. Stein, Mrs. Alfred Rice, and Miss Pauline Gold-smith, of Scranton, and Mrs. Eva Levy, of Wilkes-Barre. Mr. Gold-smith came from Bavaria, Germany, when he was nineteen years old. He made his own way to the coast, and embarked on a sailing vessel for New York. As a comparison of the advance made in the short time in-tervening, it ought to be said that it took the ship seventy days and sev-enty nights to cross the ocean that the Lusitania now negotiates in some-thing more than four days. Mr. Goldsmith, with a few others, lived ten weeks on the sail boat and finally landed in New York, after many experiences. By slow process, in combination of the canal and the stage coach, Mr. Goldsmith, a stranger in a strange land, made his way to Honesdale, where, while he was still a mere youth, he embarked in the shoe business. He had lived there but two years before he de-cided it was time to take a bride and he married Miss Regina Friend, of Albany, N. Y. After several years in Honesdale, he decided to move to Wilkes-Barre, and lived there for a short time. But they returned to Honesdale, and finally came to Scranton. This was in 1846. Lackawanna avenue had plank side-walks at that time, and there was plenty of breathing space. Almost the entire southern side of the ave-nue was vacant. Mr. Goldsmith entered into business on the corner of the alley, which is now directly opposite the Western Union offices. He remained there a year, and then moved to the building where the store is at the present time. It has been there continuously for forty-five years. As the only store of con-sequence on that side of the street, many predicted an early failure for the young shoe merchant. But per-severance and strict attention to duty which has ever marked his career, won out, and he soon became the most prominent merchant in his line in this section of the state. Within four years after Mr. Gold-smith's entry into the business, or in 1863, the southerly side of the avenue was fast building up, and those who predicted that it was of no earthly good for business pur-poses, saw the error of their ways. The nucleus of what is now the Lackawanna Valley House was the principal hotel there at the time, and the one hundred block was con-sidered the most desirable location for a business house. Thrown upon his own resources at the age of nineteen, Mr. Goldsmith had learned the ways of the world, and he acquired through his own experi-ences and dealings a knowledge of business that is surpassed by few.
