WEDNESDAY, MAR. 23, 1910.

In advertising always say what you believe, if you wish people to believe what you say.

About as good a way to study human nature is when you are driving on the public road. If a man is willing to observe the laws and the courtesies of the road, he will duly give his share of it when meeting another, and show he is willing to do the gentlemanly thing about it. But when you meet one who takes every advantage of those he meets, and holds the road for his own selfish self, often to the great discomfort of those he meets, or will not allow them to pass, we are almost sure to think of pork in connection with such drivers of teams.

Now is the time for you to paint and fix up, and make home look as if there was a little enterprise around you. Take the garden rake and collect all the old rubbish of 1909 in a pile and set fire to it—don't burn the house down in the operation—and let it be burned up and never to collect there again. Then go for that pile of ashes collected during the winter and remove it far hence so that your yard will look as if some one was living there. There is no place like home, therefore make it beautiful, delightful, enchanting and your attachments for it will be the stronger.

Pay as you go. This is golden advice that will keep the business world moving, the wheels of industry from rusting out, and the money will surely come back to you. It should not be forgotten that the earth is round. Stand the people all in line and they will reach around the world, the last touching the first. Now pay your neighbor on your right the dollar you owe him, and he will pay his neighbor on the right and so on the dollar will travel until it will come around again to your hand from your neighbor on the left. Try it. We make no charge for this receipt for the hard times.

"You've got to advertise if you want people to know you're on earth," the Gorilla said, in the Kansas City Times. "It's the lion's roar that makes him the king of beasts. The person who makes a big noise gets to the front." The rabbit pondered these words and was convinced. Some time later he rose on his hind legs in a thicket and screamed. A coyote, learning of the rabbit's whereabouts by his noise, hopped onto him and ate him. Moral: If you haven't got the goods don't make any noise at all. There are some merchants in Honesdale that evidently haven't any goods, consequently don't advertise and our town and country people can be seen getting off the D. & H. trains loaded with goods that Scranton concerns have "roared" about in the papers. Tell the people what you have got and they are apt to come and buy.

CANNONISM IS DEAD; LONG LIVE CANNON.

Cannonism consisted of enforcing rules which had governed the House of Representatives for years and which had been used by Democratic and Republican speakers. These rules were necessary to the making of laws and shaping of legislation which otherwise could be delayed and hindered by an irresponsible minority. Just as soon as these rules conflicted with the personal aims and ambitions of a number of Congressmen of the dominant party, each believing that his district was the "center of the universe," and that all legislation should be for the benefit of their constituents, rather than for the whole people, they imitated the "thirty pieces of silver character" of old, and joined forces with the enemy to overthrow rules which once they were loud in their praises off. Enough of them repented in time, so that the motion to crucify Old Uncle Joe was lost. It is to be hoped that their repentance was sincere enough to prevent their Democratic friends from writing the epitaph of "political suicide" over their graves when they bury them next fall.

'61 SOLDIER IS JUST PAID.

After waiting forty-five years the Federal Government has decided to pay James A. Hutchinson, of Wellston, Ohio, for his services in the Union Army during the Civil war. Hutchinson served one month when he was disabled by a bullet wound and discharged. One day last week he received a voucher from Washington for $14, one month's pay for a Union soldier. No interest was allowed him.

It is difficult to ascertain the precise origin of the graceful custom so universal in France and Germany and more or less prevalent throughout the world of offering eggs at the festival of Easter. The Persians give each other eggs at the new year, the Russians and the Finns at the festival of Easter. Among the Romans the year opened at Easter, as it did among the Franks, and among the Capets. Mutual presents were bestowed; and as the egg is the emblem of the beginning of all things, nothing better could be found as an offering.

BY THE GENTLE CYNIC.

No man should play practical jokes unless he is a good loser.

Misery loves company, but the company isn't apt to call again.

A trickster is merely a person who gets the better of us.

It is one thing to marry for love and quite another thing to carry out the scheme.

The decay of poetry may be due to the fact that so much of it is rotten.

Love is blind, but self love is the only kind that is positively incurable.

If it wasn't for man's flattery there wouldn't be so much of woman's vanity.

A SHIP THAT SAILS ON LAND.

A German engineer has just invented and patented a sailing vessel for use on highways. Realizing the importance of the wind to the aeronaut and the mariner, the German inventor conceived the idea that it might be made to serve on land as well, and his unique craft is the result.

It is true that early experiments with horseless vehicles included sail wagons as well as steam wagons, but both at the time failed to promise any measure of practical utility. In these days of light construction, rubber tires, ball bearings, and, above all, of smooth, solid roads, the conditions are totally changed.

The feasibility of sailing easily over the frozen surfaces of rivers and lakes has long been recognized and utilized, and it would now appear as if the wind can render helpful service to some extent in connection with locomotion over normal roads. The sail vehicle just invented, is simple, and makes fair progress over good roads and across sandy stretches, such as a sea beach. The dominating features in the construction are lightness and effective steering facilities.

The present form is a light framework supporting a saddle and a mast for the sail, and resting upon four wheels, one wheel on either side and one before and one behind. The two latter are of a larger diameter than the former, and all are far apart, as is the practice with automobile wheels.

The chief peculiarity in the device is the connection of the wheels with one another. The rear wheel and the right side wheel are rigidly connected together, and the same is the case with the front wheel and the left side wheel. The two connecting bars are joined with each other by means of an axle or cross-bar, the attachment at each end being of a hinged type.

A person sitting on the saddle rests his feet on this transverse axle, and by suitable pressure can at once alter the relation of the wheels to the main axis of the framework. This arrangement furthermore leaves his hands completely free for adjusting the position of the sail or using a brake.

BASKET BALL.

Exciting Games That Were Played Here on Saturday.

There were three very interesting games of basket ball that took place at the High school gymnasium last Saturday afternoon. The first game was between the first team of girls, representing Hawley and Honesdale High school. This game was very one-sided, Hawley being the main factor throughout the whole game. The feature of this game was the accurate shooting of Miss Knapp and Miss Flynn. The final score was Hawley 35, Honesdale 9.

The next game was between the second boys' teams from the same schools. Compared with the other game this one was a whirlwind blowing incessantly towards the Honesdale basket, as the local boys had Hawley guessing at all stages of the game. The feature of this go was the splendid all-around work of O'Connell. Final score, Honesdale 18, Hawley 5.

The third game was practically the same as the first except for the fact that Honesdale had the upper hand at all stages of the game. There are some players that could wisely be transferred from the second to the first team. The final score was Honesdale 28, Hawley 26.

PEDESTRIANS DANGERS.

Chug-chug. Br-r-r. br-r-r.
 Honk-honk. Gilligillug-gilligillug.

The pedestrian paused at the intersection of two busy cross streets. He looked about. An automobile was rushing at him from one direction, a motorcycle from another, an autotruck was coming from behind and a taxicab from a side street. Zip-zip, Zing-glug.

He looked up and saw directly above him a runaway airship in rapid descent.

There was but one chance. He was standing upon a manhole cover. Quickly seizing it, he lifted the lid and jumped into the hole just in time to be run over by a subway train.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A GOOD ROADS CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR ON THE REPUBLICAN TICKET

HON. WILLIAM C. SPROUL,
 SENATOR FROM DELAWARE COUNTY.

Recently endorsed in every election district of Delaware County for the Republican nomination for Governor. Urged by Good Roads Republicans in many localities of the State. His friends claim he will be the nominee.

Hon. William C. Sproul, whose friends are booming him for Governor of the State is justly entitled to be called the father of the Good Roads movement in Pennsylvania. He introduced the first bill in the Senate to improve Pennsylvania roads, and last year he introduced a bill providing for a complete system of main highways to be built and maintained absolutely at the cost of the State, also introduced a resolution authorizing the State to issue bonds for fifty million dollars ($50,000,000), for highway improvement. These suggestions met with the approval of nearly all of the leading members of the Legislature and almost fifty thousand signatures to petitions in favor of these bills were presented to the House and Senate.

Senator Sproul has represented Delaware county in the Senate continuously since 1896 and is looked upon as the Republican leader of the county members. He has yielded great influence in the Senate, has been elected President pro tem of that body and has served on all of its important committees. His friends believe that his legislative experience and great business interests, together with his past record which has proven his leadership make him a most suitable candidate for Governor.

Senator Sproul was born in Lancaster county in 1870 and came to Delaware county when a young boy; he graduated from Swarthmore College. He has always been a Republican and one of the youngest men ever sent to the Senate in this state. His business career started in the publication office of the Chester Times of which paper he to-day owns a controlling interest as well as the Morning Republican of that city. He is identified, with many other enterprises in Chester and in different parts of the State. He is the President of the Seaboard Steel Castings Company; President of the Chester Shipping Company; Director in several banks, and has always been found ready to assist both by his efforts and money in the advancement of his home city and county. He is a member of the Grange and has always been interested in its work. If elected Governor his administration would undoubtedly be marked for his progressiveness along all lines, particularly in road improvement.

MARRIAGE AND COLORS.

Here's the old superstition which the Easter bride, who fortunately is always married in white, may take for what it is worth:

Married in gray, you will go far away.
 Married in black, you will wish yourself back.
 Married in brown, you will live out of town.
 Married in red, you will wish yourself dead.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
