The President Delivers a Speech on Patriotism.

Washington, April 19.—More than 4,000 delegates were present when President Taft delivered his speech of welcome at the opening session of the congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The president dodged the suffrage question by remarking that "without discussing the power and place of women, which we all agree is so high that it needs no discussion at all, I want to speak of other things."

Patriotism was the keynote of the president's speech. He congratulated the society on its chief purpose—"to keep constantly before the country that virtue which makes for the greatness and the usefulness of our government—patriotism—and to emphasize the place, the persons and the events whose memory arouses in every true American a love of country."

COULD WEDDING.

Miss Marjorie Becomes Bride of A. J. Drexel, Jr. SHE HAS DOWRY OF $10,000,000

Brilliant Social Event of the Season in New York—Costliest Presents, Prettiest Bridesmaids, Crowds of Sightseers.

New York, April 19.—The fact that the bride had a dowry of $10,000,000 and that the bridegroom possessed as much or more of the world's goods made the wedding today of Miss Marjorie Gwynne Gould, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, of Philadelphia, the social event of the season.

The wedding took place in St. Bartholomew's church, Madison avenue and Forty-fourth street, and not since Miss Gladys Vanderbilt became the Countess Szechenyi, more than two years ago, and at none of the international weddings which have followed has there been such general interest in a marriage.

Marjorie Gould was the first debutante in the Gould family since her aunt, Anna Gould, the youngest daughter of the late Jay Gould and now Duchess de Talleyrand-Perigord, made her bow to society many years ago.

The crowds at the church were larger than at any wedding for years. Everybody of social importance and wealth had been invited. The luncheon before the wedding and the reception following were more exclusive.

Bishop Scarborough of New Jersey performed the ceremony, assisted by Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's, and the Rev. Mr. Matthews.

The bridesmaids, six of the prettiest girls in New York society, wore frocks of pink chiffon over pale blue satin and high blue straw toques trimmed with pink tulle and a pink feather. The maid of honor, Miss Vivian Gould, wore the same, except that her frock was of blue over pink.

The bridesmaids were Misses Beatrice Claffin, Hope Hamilton, Marjorie Curtis, Elsie Nicol and Dorothy Randolph. Misses Elin Mackay and Edith Gould were flower girls.

At this luncheon Miss Gould presented her gifts to her bridesmaids, which were the most expensive ever given by a bride in New York. They were tiny chateleine watches, each incased in a ball of diamonds.

The bride's gown was of white satin charmeuse, cut in long flowing princess lines. There was an overdress of white chiffon, embroidered with orange blossoms and a long train, also embroidered with the conventional flower. The tulle veil, which fell below the bottom of the skirt, was fastened with a spray of orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was of orange blossoms and white roses.

The reception at the George Gould home was held immediately after the ceremony at St. Bartholomew's. Here, too, the decorations were pink, the entire house having been decorated. Every imaginable variety of pink flower was distributed in luxuriance on every floor against backgrounds of palms and vines.

Besides the bride and bridegroom and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel, Miss Helen Gould and Mrs. William A. Hamilton, a cousin of the Gouls, were in the receiving line.

The cutting of the wedding cake was one of the most interesting features of the wedding festivities. It was the largest and most wonderfully decorated cake ever turned out of an oven. It represented the triumph of the French baker's art.

The honeymoon will be passed on George Gould's yacht, which has been put in commission early for the purpose and which will take the young couple on a cruise that will end when they arrive in London in June to attend the wedding of Miss Margaret Drexel, the bridegroom's sister, and Viscount Maidstone.

The presents at this wedding surpass any ever given in New York. George Gould gave his daughter a house, 1015 Fifth avenue, worth $500,000. He also gave her a diamond necklace of oriental design with stones of graduated size.

Mrs. Gould gave a large plastron or stomacher of diamonds and sapphires especially designed and built. The Duchess de Talleyrand-Perigord sent an ancient ring set with a large black pearl, and Frank Gould, also in Paris, sent a diamond bracelet.

The Drexel family and connections sent silver, great chests of it, comprising every article which may be used in the household.
